GREAT FUTURE OF AFRICA

CAN A BRITISH MAJORITY BE SECURED BY IMMIGRATION?

Tendency of the Rural Population to Go to the Cities Where No More People Are Needed—Horses and Oxen For Military Transportation.

[Special Correspondence.]

CAPE TOWN, April 27.—While all the world is watching the South African war the people of South Africa find time to speculate about what is to come after. Rhodes and his party want the republics annihilated and the land and people attached to Great Britain as goods and chattels. The opposing party want freedom and equal rights for all, believing that the Boers and British would assimilate or that British immigration would soon place that nationality in the majority. If there is any immigration, it must be agricultural, for the mining companies want no more expensive workmen, preferring Kaffirs, who expect no great amount of wages and are willing to trade out what little may be coming to them in company stores.

Those who hold the theory of agriculturist immigration from Great Britain after the war should not lose sight of the fact that in South Africa, as elsewhere, there is a tendency to leave the country for the city. In the Transvaal, although it is said the uitlander financial houses own nine-tenths of the land, they have never yet succeeded in inducing any large number of settlers to take up farms. In Rhodesia, where there is no Dutch government to be reckoned with, although the country has been a British possession for ten years and has been connected for two years with the markets of Kimberley, Mafeking and Bulawayo by rail, there is only a handful of farming settlers, and they are mainly Dutch. In Natal, where also there is no Anglo-Dutch question, the small agricultural settler, unless he be an Indian, is rarely seen. In the Free State, where the government was admirable—far the best in South Africa—the climate is magnificent and most of the land is already held. In this colony the government used to give assisted passages to emigrants from Great Britain, but the agricultural settler never came.

Another circumstance which will retard the development of agricultural South Africa will be the lack of beasts of burden. Practically all the horses have been absorbed by the war, and oxen are being taken for military transportation. Oxen are less expensive than mules. They are slow, but sure, never doing more than three miles an hour, or 20 miles a day, which is considered a good trek. The Zulu ox is the best bred animal, but small and unserviceable when compared with the bastard Zulu or Natal ox, which thrives on both the "sour" veldt or coast grass and the "sweet" or up country veldt. Oxen, however, require very careful handling and must on no account be overdriven. They must have at least six hours a day for grazing purposes.

A team of 18 oxen will easily draw a buck wagon (weighing a little over a ton loaded to 6,000 pounds over the South African roads, many of which are little better than tracks across the veldt. Twenty miles a day for a heavy baggage column in such a country as South Africa is really good going.

One of the great merits of the ox wagon is the simplicity of its harness. The two beasts nearest the wagon draw from a pole on which the yoke is fastened, and the couples in front are attached to a wire or hide rope known as the trek touw, to which the yokes are fastened by reins or thongs of hide. Any breakage or deficiency in such tackle can easily be made good, as it is free from the complexities of a set of harness.

It is always a pleasure to record deeds of heroism. When the British entered the Free State capital, Major Hunter-Weston, with ten men, passed through the Boer lines and succeeded in cutting the telegraph wires and also in blowing up the railway to the north of the town.

From Bethulie Bridge, in the north of Cape Colony, come particulars of another gallant deed by a young officer, Lieutenant Popham of the Sherwood Foresters. In the hailstorm of Boer missiles he cut the wires the enemy had laid to the mines planned to destroy the bridge. Advancing through the trenches, he noticed some boxes of dynamite ready for use, picked his way back to his regiment, collected a few men and with them again crept across the bridge, 1,486 feet, a quarter of a mile, long, and under a brisk fire took the explosive back to the camp.

This feat of reckless gallantry performed in the full glare of a South African day was emulated at night by Captain Grant, an engineer officer, who traversed the bridge in spite of the Boer guards and removed the dynamite charges from the mine borings which the enemy had so carefully prepared.

W. S. Musser, Millheim, Pa., saved the life of his little girl by giving her One Minute Cough Cure when she was dying from croup. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. It quickly cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, grippe, asthma and all throat and lung troubles. B. R. Wilson & Son.

TAKING THE REINS.

Five of the 12 horses named in the $20,000 stallion stake are owned in New England.

Orrin Hickok is now at Patchen Wilkes farm, Lexington, Ky., at work on a new good ones which he is preparing for the grand circuit campaign.

Steve Phillips, who drove Sleepy Tom, 2:12, when the blind pacer was a grand circuit sensation, has been nominated for sheriff of Fayette county, O.

Should Alta Belle and Monbels come up to expectations this year Beautiful Bells will lead all brood mares, with 11 standard performers to her credit.

Prince of India, 2:12½, by Baron Wilkes, is in Charley Lyon's stable at Louisville and is said to be much faster than he has ever shown before.

Lucie May, 2:22½, by Oakland Baron, winner of the pacing division in the Kentucky Futurity last year at Lexington, Ky., is being trained at the trot this year. She is in James L. Dodge's stable at Paris, Ky.

The 5-year-old stallion Director Feek, by Director, dam Mammino Maid, 2:15½, by Mambrino Startle, has been added to W. L. Snow's stable. He is owned by the veteran A. J. Peck of Syracuse and is said to be an unusually promising horse.

Madden, in the string of Phil Dwyer, will do to watch, as he ran a cracking good race in the Bouquet Stakes. He was interfered with at least four times while coming down the hill, and he will win shortly at a good price.

After an absence of over a year from the saddle, Jockey Charley Ballard has been signed to ride for the Canadian turfman William Hendrie for this season. Ballard is now training hard and has reduced his weight to 110 pounds and expects to ride much lighter.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Minnie Palmer is playing in London in her old success, "My Sweetheart."

Mrs. Felix Morris is to go on the vaudeville stage as a monologist.

Augustus Thomas was at one time a ticket seller in the Olympic theater, St. Louis.

Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer have written a play called "The New Minister."

James J. Jaffries will take the part of an Arizona sheriff in the new play "Clay M. Greene" is writing for him.

Charles H. Hoyt has a new play well in hand for next season. The title is to be "A Bunch of Blue Ribbon."

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt and M. Coquelin, it is announced, will make a tour of the United States to last six months.

Sir Arthur Sullivan's new opera, "The Rose of Persia," is to be produced in New York by the original London company.

Mme. Patti has for some time held the record for the highest sum that has been earned in a year by a woman, her highest total for the 12 months being $350,000.

Elita Proctor Otis, now playing the leading role in "Woman and Wine," is considering an offer to star in David Belasco's "Zaza" in Australia next season.

The first role of any length Della Fox assumed was Editha in Augustus Thomas' "Editha's Burglar," which was the first of Mr. Thomas' plays produced. This was in 1884.

Dr. Loyal Ford's Dyspepticide is a cure, not a mere relief for indigestion. It digests the food and makes the stomach right. B. R. Wilson & Son.

MEN OF MARK.

Senator Perkins of California still recalls his sailor days by tying his loose neckties in a half sailor's knot.

In times of peace gardening is the favorite diversion of President Kruger. Last year his collection of phlox in the garden of his home in Pretoria was famed for its beauty.

Lord Kelvin, the physicist, has been made honorary colonel of the volunteer corps of electrical engineers organized recently for service in South Africa. He will not go to the front.

N. C. D. Hodges, librarian of the scientific library at Harvard university, has been elected librarian of the Public Library of Cincinnati to succeed A. W. Whelpley, the librarian, who recently died.

Governor Crane of Massachusetts was the subject of conversation in the lobby of a Boston hotel the other day. "Crane," said one man, "isn't such a bad fellow." "You bet he isn't," remarked another. "Crane is a bird."

Alexander R. Shepherd, formerly of Washington, who has sunk a fortune in the Batopilas silver mines in Mexico, is about to realize a handsome return on his investment, according to The Engineering and Mining Journal.

Henry A. Bingham of Philadelphia, who is now serving his eleventh consecutive term in the house, affects the white vest and can be seen at any and almost all times wearing a daintily embroidered waistcoat of that immaculate hue.

Governor Lew Powers of Maine has straight black hair and high cheek bones. He looks as if there were Indian blood in his veins, but as a matter of fact he is a Maine Yankee of pure strain. Governor Powers is one of the best story tellers in the country.

Senator Culberson is the eldest son of David B. Culberson, for 22 years a member of the house of representatives from Texas. In 1890 he was elected attorney general of Texas. He served four years, then was elected governor and held that office two terms.

General H. V. Boynton has accepted an invitation to attend the annual Fourth of July celebration at Guilford battlefield, Guilford Courthouse, N. C., and to deliver the address on the occasion. General Joseph Wheeler has also been invited and is expected to attend.

The son of William Waldorf Astor, who lives in England, is 19 and will get the bulk of his father's fortune. At the present time it is estimated that that fortune is $200,000,000. John Jacob Astor of New York, while not so rich as his brother, has over $75,000,000, most of which will go to his 9-year-old son, a bright youngster.

Because Oliver Wendell Holmes in a poem written over 20 years ago referred to the first marshal of the class of 1900 at Harvard as the "young mustachioed marshal" the Harvard seniors now want W. A. M. Burden, their first class marshal, to let his mustache grow in time for the class day procession. Mr. Burden has as yet kept a clean upper lip.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The Duke of Connaught is today, next to the queen, the most popular member of the royal family. His popularity among the soldiers is only equaled by that of Lord Roberts.

Queen Victoria appears to have passed through the excitement and grief caused by the early reverses of the South African war in excellent shape. She is now reported in good health.

Archduchess Stephanie of Austria, now the Countess Lonyay, and the Empress Frederick of Germany are the only royal patronesses of yacht clubs. The former is the head of the Eglitz Balaton Fleet, while the dowager empress is the august chief of the Norddeutscher Regatta Verein.

Queen Wilhelmina has an appetite that would do credit to any peasant in her domain, and no dainty things find favor with her. She will have roast beef, mutton and fillet of beef and ramp steak as her regular diet and at her feasts on great occasions also if she can have her own way.
