Disastrous Runaway.

Yesterday morning a pair of horses—a black and a gray—belonging to the stable of G. W. Drawdy, became frightened on Orange avenue and ran away. A direct run was made to the lumber yard on Palmetto avenue, and they cleared the entrance, but the mule belonging to the lumber company blocked the way with a light wagon and the runaways dashed into it. A shaft penetrated the body of the gray horse, making a frightful wound. Realizing that death would follow, and to put the animal out of misery, Marshal Alderman, who was on the scene immediately after the crash, shot the beautiful horse in the head, one shot causing instant death.
