GENERAL CRONJE.

Cronje, defeated and a captive, is the most popular and admired of all the military commanders in Africa today.

Cronje lost his army, but his reputation as a military hero is secure.

Cronje was too brave and manful an antagonist to have been subjected to the humiliation of going to Roberts' tent in person to announce his surrender.

General Cronje has a little to be thankful for in the fact that there is no word in English with which Sir Alfred Austin can make his name rhyme.
