THE MAN WITH THE HOE.

He Doesn't Always Like to Hear Poetry About Himself.

"Grumpily used to think that the finest thing in the world was to dress like a tramp, neglect to shave and dig around upon a farm that he owns not far from the city," said Smith, with a reminiscent grin. He was out there one day last summer on a vacation, and he invited me to pay him a visit. I accepted and hardly arrived when I was asked to put on a pair of overalls and help him hoe a field of cabbage that was near the house. I declined with thanks, but told him not to let me interfere with his labors. So he seized a hoe and started in, while I selected a shady spot where I could smoke and watch him swing his hoe.

"He had only been at work a few minutes when a couple of women drove along the country road and stopped where he was at work.

"Oh, look," exclaimed one. "There is the man with the hoe! How romantic!"

"A brother to the ox," quoted the second.

"Who loosened and let down this brutal jaw?" murmured the first.

"Whose was the hand that slanted back this brow?" said the second.

"Whose breath blew out the light within his brain?" continued the first.

"There is no shape more terrible than this!" cried the second.

"With the emptiness of ages in his face!" exclaimed the first.

"That was the last straw. With a grunt of rage Grumpy threw down the hoe and fled to the house, while I was careful to have my laugh out before I faced him. He came back to the city with me, and I understand that the farm is on the market, his agent having orders to accept the first offer received."—Detroit Free Press.

Only One Thing to Do.

"That set of antique oak furniture does not match the woodwork of the house," she said.

"Well, if you think I'm going to buy another set of furniture," he announced, "you are mistaken."

"Why, of course not, dear," she answered. "The furniture is all right, but I'm afraid we will have to get another house."—Chicago Post.

A Successful Poet.

Meddiger—You don't mean to tell me Will Jones made all his money through scribbling poetry? Why, the stuff he used to grind out was simply rot.

Thingumbob—I know, but he got into the magazines occasionally, and his rich old uncle, whose name is the same, got tired of being accused of it, so he bought Will off.—Philadelphia Press.

Asinine Philosophy.

"There's one consolation," mused the donkey, murching away at the thistles to which the penuriousness of his master had reduced him. "It takes a run of adversity to bring out a great soul's really strong points. Aw-he-haw-he-haw! Aw-he-haw-he-haw-he!"—Chicago Tribune.

Chelsea Boys Are Not So Slow.

Chelsea Boy—Mamma, how old are you?

Mother—On my next birthday I shall be 50 years old.

Chelsea Boy—Oh, mamma, why don't you celebrate your golden wedding?—Boston Globe.

Cautious.

He—Does the cook know we are to have any one to dinner?

She—No, dear; I haven't told her yet.

He—Then conceal it from her as long as you can. We want to make as good an impression as possible on our guests.—Types.

Paradoxical.

"Raw weather," suggested the first.

"True," replied the other. "And yet I just saw a man who stepped on a coal hole cover 'done to a turn.'"—Chicago Post.

Calling Down a Poet.

The Indiana poet who blithely sings, "Ho, for the maple and ho for the sap," is respectfully informed that the "Sap-ho" isn't running to any extent this spring.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Theoretic Man.

He was rather fond of posing in his college cap and gown; in several universities he'd won superb renown. He had out one book on physics and one on home economy and a treatise on the bronchial tubes, another on astronomy.

He'd theories on everything, from earthquakes to biology. He'd talk with you on placer mines or lacework or philology; he could write on Christian Science or on falconry or on history. For to him the world of history held not a single mystery.

But he met a girl from Louisville who'd never been to college. Nor even gone to boarding school to win a store of knowledge.

But she gave him just one little look that bowled him out completely. And then she calmly tripped away a-smiling very sweetly.

Ah, for that man of theory. It was a sad un-doing. He wanders round dejectedly Miss Louisville pursuing. 'Tis not because she turns him down, or hearing is believing. But he has no rule to fit the case, and that is why he's grieving.

IN UNITED STATES COURT.

Martin Enters Suit Against Building and Loan Association.

ATLANTA, April 14.—No sooner did the Interstate Building and Loan association avert a receivership fight in the superior court of Fulton county by paying the petitioner the withdrawal value of his stock than it was confronted by a similar bill in the United States circuit court. T. B. Martin et al., through Rosser & Carter and J. L. Hopkins & Sons, attorneys, have filed a bill of complaint in the federal court and Judge Newman ordered the defendant association to appear before him Saturday, April 21, 1900, to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed and an injunction granted as prayed for.

In the meantime, and until the hearing, the defendant, its officers and agents, are restrained and enjoined from selling, encumbering or disposing of the assets of the corporation. They are allowed to conduct the business in the usual and customary way.

THE TURF REVIEW.

The Duke of Westminster's 19 horses averaged $18,876.80.

I Direct showed a half in 1904 recently at Pleasanton, Cal.

Up to the time of his sale Flying Fox had won $280,000 in stakes.

The German emperor has 300 horses for his personal use, one-third of which are for the saddle.

One of the pacers which Henry Jewett will take to Germany is a brother to June Bug, 2:10 1/4.

One New York boarding stable alone houses nearly 50 trotters and pacers with records of 2:15 or better.

It is claimed that there are more promising youngsters in Kentucky by Expedition, 2:15 1/4, than by any other sire.

The Maid, 2:07 1/4, is being jogged at Lexington and is guessed to be able to beat the record of Lady of the Manor, 2:04 1/4.

The average loss of horses transported from England to Africa has been 4.5 per cent, exclusive of the transport ismore, which sunk.

Rev. J. W. Arney, the well known divine, formerly of Michigan, is in New York getting up a stable to campaign through the grand circuit.

A. T. Ward's fast pacing mare, Thelma, 2:27 1/4, by Ben-factor, is in charge of Joe Ralph, Portland, N. D., who will train and race her the coming season.

The exact price for Flying Fox in American money was $190,968.75. A guinea is $5.16 2/3, and 37,500 were given for the horse, which makes the sum stated above.

The Praytell-Maxine match preliminaries being settled, Quaker City horsemen are now interested in a proposed match race between Patsy K, 2:08 1/4; Paul, 2:07 1/4; Maxine, 2:09 1/4, and Dick Mack, 2:14 1/4.—Horseman.

Every woman in the country ought to know about

Mother's Friend

Those who do know about it wonder how they ever got along without it. It has robbed childbirth of its terrors for many a young wife. It has preserved her girlish figure and saved her much suffering. It is an external liniment and carries with it therefore, absolutely no danger of upsetting the system as drugs taken internally are apt to do. It is to be rubbed into the abdomen to soften and strengthen the muscles which are to bear the strain. This means much less pain. It also prevents morning sickness and all of the other discomforts of pregnancy.

A druggist of Macon, Ga., says: "I have sold a large quantity of Mother's Friend and have never known an instance where it has failed to produce the good results claimed for it."

A prominent lady of Lamberton, Ark., writes: "With my first six children I was in labor from 24 to 30 hours. After using Mother's Friend, my seventh was born in 4 hours."

J. L. BAKER KILLS HIS WIFE.

Walks Up to Her and Shoots Her Without Any Warning.

ATLANTA, April 14.—Because she had refused to live with him, James L. Baker walked into his wife's house on Kennesaw street last afternoon and shot her through the head, inflicting wounds from which she died four hours later.

Mrs. Baker had separated from her husband last Saturday, and had gone to live with Mrs. Martha J. Payne, at whose house the tragedy took place.

The inmates of the house were at supper when Baker walked into the dining-room. There was so little said, and the shooting was done so quickly, that no one realized what had happened until Mrs. Baker fell from her chair mortally wounded.

Officers were summoned and Baker arrested, while the ambulance carried his wife to the hospital where she died about 10 o'clock.

The affair has some sensational and dramatic features. Baker claims, first of all, that his wife and himself disagreed on account of her son by a former husband, and he also says that he shot his wife because of Charles A. Pittman, a young carpenter, who is a son-in-law of Mrs. Payne. He first admitted shooting at his wife, but later in the evening he changed that statement and said he shot at Pittman and, missing him, hit his wife accidentally.
