It is reported that Boss Hanna is quite ill at Old Point Comfort with the grip, and that McKinley and other republican notables will hasten to his bedside.

The notorious Mrs. "Langtry," the piper as the patron saint of filth, affects to be shocked and indignant at the continued rebuffs she has recently received in American cities and from all classes of people.

THE Birmingham Age-Herald classes itself among the moss-back extremists—who have failed to learn wisdom by experience, and who imagine that the democratic masses throughout the country are as ignorant and intolerant as themselves—by the publication in a recent issue of the following absurdities:

The state convention must be composed entirely of straight-tout Chicago platform democrats who will select a delegation to the Kansas City convention of straight democrats.

The man nominated for governor of Alabama by the state convention, whoever he may be, must stand on the national issues with the great masses of democrats of this state. He must be a straight Chicago democrat.

The Real Battle Ground.

Four democratic states in the South were captured by the republicans in 1896. They were North Carolina, Maryland, Kentucky and West Virginia. Oregon, also, was among the captured. These states went astray because of the Chicago platform. Others, frequently classed as doubtful—including New York and Indiana—landed in the republican camp for the same cause.

The problem confronting the democratic party managers is, How to recover these democratic states, and to turn the scale in the doubtful states? Can it be done in a campaign conducted along the same lines as the campaign in which they were lost to the party? If not, a new departure is indispensable to success. The removal of the cause of the democratic failure four years ago should insure success this year.

As the largest democratic losses occurred in the South in 1896, so should the recovery of lost ground be looked for chiefly in the South in 1900. The South will be the battle ground. If the states of the South should send delegations to Kansas City arbitrarily instructed to adhere to the Chicago platform, they would control the situation, dominate the course of the convention and become directly responsible for the consequences.

The rebuke administered by democratic voters in 1896 was by no means directed against Mr. Bryan personally. It was only as the exponent of obnoxious doctrines contained in the platform that he was involved. Thousands even accepted the obnoxious doctrines rather than sever their relations with the party and repudiate the party's chosen candidate. Even with the aid of these, failure ensued. They could not be relied upon to repeat their experience. The battle was lost, not because Mr. Bryan was the candidate, but in spite of that fact. With a platform from which has been eliminated the features that caused the disaster of 1896, Mr. Bryan should poll a democratic vote unprecedented in the history of the country. Shall the South, which will hold the balance of power in the convention, again decree the defeat of its favorite candidate—personally far stronger than he was four years ago—by insisting upon a repetition of the blunder of 1896, which its delegates might have prevented by the exercise of a little cool judgment and quiet firmness?

There are vital questions, and the time for their solution is near at hand. They cannot be avoided or evaded. How will the South answer them?

LITTLE FOLKS' MINSTREL

One of the Best Entertainments Ever Presented Here.

The Little Folks' Minstrel performance at Clutter's Music hall last night, under the efficient management of Julius Menko, was one of the best presentations by amateur talent ever seen here. And, notwithstanding other notable attractions, including the Catholic fair and the Chamber of Commerce banquet, the hall was filled from stage to back wall with as well pleased an audience as ever met together in Pensacola.

The young ladies certainly made a great hit, and it is sincerely hoped they may be prevailed upon to repeat the performance at the opera house at an early date, so that those who failed to see them last night may witness their wonderful work.

Criticism of the individual work would be out of place, for every part was skillfully and competently handled.

One of the most trying features was the orchestral work and playing the many accompaniment—two solid hours of hard work—but Misses Florence Heinberg and Lillie Jacoby went through with it without flinching and proved themselves finished artists.

The young ladies who did the fancy dancing were drilled and trained for their work by the Misses Marean, who are recognized artists in this line.

In appreciation of the efforts of their talented manager, Mr. Julius Menko, the young ladies presented him with a handsome gold watch. Miss Florence Rosenau, the interlocutor, making the presentation addressed Mr. Menko responded in brief but eloquent language.

The Little Folks' Minstrel will long be remembered by those who saw them last night.

The Croton Trouble.

CROTON LANDING, April 19.—Sheriff Malloy, escorted by troops of cavalry, has sent for the Italian settlement and will arrest thirty of the strikers for inciting a riot. The strikers have turned against Rottella, their leader, and say he went over to the contractors and furnished information which enabled the sheriff to get warrants.

Rome, April 19.—The Italian government has directed the consul general to inform the strikers at Croton Landing that the government will not interfere if disorders on their part continue. Regrets have been expressed to the American Ambassador at the killing of Sergeant Douglas. The government has decided that the attitude of the American authorities is absolutely correct.

United States vs. Turkey.

LONDON, April 19.—Keen interest is manifested here in the threatened action of the United States against Turkey, particularly in view of the Sultan's recalcitrancy in connection with the increase in custom duties. The fourth collective note of the ministries objecting to increase without previous understanding with the powers, was handed to the Turkish government yesterday, but Turkey maintains such a firm attitude that the suspicion is growing that some current intrigue is frustrating the effect of the note.

THE INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION.

The Gathering at Chattanooga Will Be of Vast Importance to the South.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., April 19.—The Southern Industrial Convention which meets in Chattanooga, May 15-18th, is daily assuming wider proportions and increasing interest. While intended purely for the educational, industrial and commercial interests of the South, many of the subjects that will be discussed are really national in interest, hence, are attracting national attention.

When it is stated that the export trade from the Southern States for the past twelve months was over four hundred millions of dollars, something over a third of that from the country at large, it will not be surprising that this feature alone is worthy of receiving the attention which national commercial institutions are giving it. The United States Export association has designated the president of that body, Mr. Francis B. Thurber, as a representative to this convention, and he will deliver an address on that occasion, relating to the export trade of the South. The Philadelphia Commercial Museum, an institution purely for the benefit of the export trade of the United States, will have an exhibit at the convention, showing what trade can be reached by the South and how that can best be obtained. This exhibit alone is worth a representation from every commercial body in the South, for it will show them how they can become active factors in developing the trade in their respective localities.

Another subject that is attracting national attention is the one of compulsory arbitration, as a remedy for strikes, boycotts and all labor disturbances. If the South is to progress industrially, as its resources justify, there must be industrial peace, and every interest in the South is therefore involved more or less, and should this become the policy of the South it would give this section so manifest an advantage that it is of vital interest to all employers of labor throughout the North. The subject will be discussed by Gen. T. J. Wilder of Knoxville, Tenn., who has been one of the largest employers of labor in the South and is a man of wide practical knowledge on this subject. He will be followed by Maj. C. C. Godfrey, a large operator in mining interests, and John H. Faxon, a banker of Chattanooga. This subject will be presented by these gentlemen on grounds of absolute fairness to both capital and labor, but with a recognition of the rights of the public, which are more or less infringed in every strike, and to protect these public rights, no less obligatory on organized society to care for, than are the grievances, real or imaginary, of organized labor to their organizations. It will be insisted that strikes should be made impossible in the South. There are many other matters of special interest to the South and the attendance promises to be large and thoroughly representative.
