

With the Red Cross Here and Over There

Thousand Nurses Per Week Wanted—

An army of a million men needs 16,000 nurses, according to General Ireland, U. S. A., who has cablegrammed the National Red Cross department of nursing in regard to conditions brought about by the present offensive.

There is a shortage of nurses in France according to this estimate as we now have more than a million men there and less than 8000 nurses—less than half the number required in times of actual warfare.

One thousand nurses per week for a period of eight weeks is the enrollment asked of the American Red Cross by the Surgeon General's office to meet this shortage and replace those being withdrawn from cantonments for service in Europe.

Miss Lillian L. White, director of the Pacific division of the bureau of nursing, is conducting a campaign to meet the quota of this state. In former drives for enrollment only registered graduates were accepted, but in this emergency graduates who have not registered are qualified and the ruling prohibiting foreign service by those with brothers in the army or navy has also been cancelled.

Over 2600 nurses were enrolled by the Red Cross in July and the papers of 1150 nurses for service in military hospitals were sent to the surgeon general's office. Approximately 300 nurses for foreign service per week have been equipped through the equipment center in New York, but to meet this new emergency call it will be necessary to double enrollments and increase assignments to duty.

Defamation Red Cross a Crime—

Defamation of the Red Cross is a crime punishable by fine and imprisonment, according to a recent decision of the United States district court for western Wisconsin, which makes section three of the Espionage Act applicable to the organization. Louis B. Nagler, on trial for calling the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. private grafts, was convicted under this law. The penalty provided by the law is $10,000 fine or imprisonment for not more than 20 years, or both.

Day Nursery at Havre, France—

A day nursery to care for 30 babies whose mothers are among the 1500 Belgian refugee women employed in local industries, has been opened at Havre, France, by the American Red Cross. Mothers of very young babies are permitted by their employers to visit the creche at regular intervals to nurse their children. This nursery, which contains necessary beds, bathing facilities, laundry and diet kitchen, is also used as a center to demonstrate.

Red Cross Bath House—

In one morning at a hospital in France the American Red Cross bathhouse accommodated 350 men who had received first aid in the field and been sent to the hospital for treatment. Red Cross men presented each soldier with a comfort bag as he left the bathhouse and the hospital cooks served them with hot coffee and soup.

Village for Tuberculars—

The American Red Cross is establishing a model village at Malabry for families having tubercular members, 18 demountable houses having been erected in one week. Foundations for 40 more have been laid. These houses are so built that patients can receive outdoor treatment and live under the same roof with their families without endangering the well members of the household.

"Them as Has"—

A nurse who recently enrolled with the Red Cross for overseas duty says she came to the realization of her duty through reading an interview with a mountaineer who enlisted during first war days, although past the age limit. "When it's all over," he is quoted as saying, "thar'll be only two kinds—them as has and them as hasn't." She says this put her to thinking, and she decided she wanted to be one of "them as has" done her part in the world struggle for freedom.

On to Berlin—

Red Cross canteen workers at Dunsuir, Cal., tell a good story of a facetious citizen who asked a colored soldier on a troop train if he was going to Paris or to France. "Well, boss," drawled the dusky trooper, "Ah doan know ef we-all will touch dem ports or not, but it's betwixt in' no military secret to inform you dot our destination am Berlin."

RED Xmf.b American prisoners of war depend exclusively on food furnished them by the army and navy through the American Red Cross at Berne, Switzerland, according to letters which have gotten through. They turn over their regular prison rations to the less fortunate prisoners from other nations.

Red Cross Donations—

Since last reported the following donations have been received by the Mohave County chapter American Red Cross:
Aug. 16, Mr. Morey$ 1.00
Aug. 19, Ball game 17.65
Aug. 22, Mrs. M. P. Chapman..... 2.50
(Raffle of watermelon.)
J. T. WATKINS, Sec'y.

Red Cross Mother to Orphans—

Among the varied activities of the American Red Cross, being mother to the French war orphans adopted by one of our American Expeditionary Forces is a somewhat unusual one. When a company or regiment decides to adopt one or more orphans the men send their collected funds to their official newspaper, "The Stars and Stripes," which in turn places it with the Red Cross. "The Greatest Mother in the World" then selects and takes charge of the children.

Girls are most frequently asked for, but if no choice is made the Red Cross generally favors the adoption of boys. The many requests for red-headed kiddies—which cannot be filled—has brought to public attention the rather novel fact that there are no red-headed children in France. However, right at present there is no more popular color in France than red—when it assumes the shape of the reversed cross.

The American Red Cross is assisting a Paris organization known as the Union des Familles to promote gardening among delicate children. The kiddies are allowed to plant small vegetable gardens on the fortifications of the city and the Red Cross permits the use of a barracks for a shelter and rest room.

LIVE STOCK MEN

MET IN KINGMAN MONDAY EVENING

A large number of stockmen of the county and those interested in farming pursuits met at the courthouse Monday evening to hear Prof. Musgraves, of the United States Biological Survey and D. A. Gilchrist, talk on predatory animals of the range and how to rid the country of those animals. Also how to treat the many ailments of range animals and the prevention of infectious diseases.

The persons present were very much interested in the talks and it is probable the visit of these gentlemen will do much good. During the day I. M. George drove the visitors over a few of the nearby ranges to familiarize them with local conditions. It is the purpose of the survey to deliver a course of lectures to the cattlegrowers and farmers once or twice a year and also to look over the important ranges to see that destructive diseases are not spread to other ranges.
