SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

Manuel Lopez Accidentally Receives a Fall Charge of Shot in his Face.

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon an accident occurred by which one of the parties will be disfigured for life and in all probability lose the sight of his right eye. The facts as near as can be learned are to the effect that Manuel Lopez, who has been herding cattle for S. Tribolet for several months, was a short ways from town taking care of the cattle as usual when several boys came up to him and asked for a drink of water from his canteen. A shotgun was among the party, though it is not certain who carried it. The gun was laid down on the ground while the boys crowded around for a drink. Young Lopez jestingly refused, saying that he did not have much water and there would be none left. Several words passed jokingly and one of the boys threatened to shoot if the water was not given to them, at the same time reaching for the gun, when it was discharged, the entire contents striking Mexican boy in and around the right eye. The boy who held the gun was only a few feet from the Mexican boy and the powder burned his face and discolored it terribly. The news was soon brought to town and a conveyance sent for the wounded boy. He was brought to Tribolet's butcher shop and Dr. Willis called, who dressed the wounds. Little hope is felt of saving the right eye and it is possible that the left eye will also be blinded.

Mr. Tribolet swore out a warrant for the arrest of young Garrett, who was present at the shooting, and he was arrested and taken before Justice Easton charged with the offense. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $150 to appear to-day at 2 o'clock, his father furnishing the bond. The other boys who were present all say that Garrett did not do the shooting and that it was young Connor, who is too small to hold the gun to his shoulder; that as he attempted to raise the gun it went off accidentally. The Mexican boy says Garrett and himself were chums and that it was another boy who did the shooting but does not know his name. No attempt can yet be made to extract the shot, although all the wounds have been probed and none have penetrated the skull. The boy was resting easy late last night and will be taken to the hospital this morning.

It doesn't seem to be of any use to warn parents to not allow their children to have guns. Playthings are for children, but loaded guns are dangerous toys and children should not be allowed to have them.

Low at Long Range.

A prosperous Slavonian rancher residing in the south end of the Huachuca mountains has hit upon a happy plan for getting wives for his bachelor neighbors. Some time ago he visited his native land and while there found that there were a large number of worthy young ladies among his acquaintances who would only be too happy to find homes and husbands in the land of progress and liberty. Securing the photographs of a number of these young ladies he brought them back with him and lost no opportunity to show them to his bachelor friends. He told them that he had the promise of these young ladies that they would come to America and marry the men he would recommend, and as a consequence, a great many of his neighbors have secured excellent wives, each one selecting his choice from the photographs.—Nogales Herald.

The Fate of Amel Ziegler, Who Sought Fortune in the Mountains of Sonora.

George Ziegler and a man familiarly known as "Shorty" Fisher returned from Sonora last Sunday, where they had been searching for news of Amel Ziegler, George's brother. From Mr. Ziegler we learn the following:

About fourteen months ago Amel Ziegler, accompanied by Mr. Fisher, left this city on a prospecting trip to Sonora, between Fronteras and Bacuachi, in the Nacosari mountains, intending to be absent about six weeks. In about a month they separated and two weeks later Fisher returned to Tombstone and was much surprised that Ziegler had not arrived, as he had said he would return about the same time. Fisher remained in Tombstone a few days and went to Colorado, finally drifting to California and from there returning to this city about a month ago. In the meantime information had been received that Ziegler had been sick at Opoto and had lost his animals, a mule and horse, and his entire outfit, but had recovered and was searching for his animals in order to return to Arizona. Several months afterward the report came that Ziegler had left that place and gone down the Yaqui river on a prospecting trip. About this time information was received that the mule belonging to Ziegler was at Felipe Nuñez's ranch. Up to this time no anxiety had been felt, as it was natural to suppose that a prospector would be always searching for some new excitement. But the last report aroused the suspicions of the brother and he commenced making preparations for an investigation. Not knowing what part of the country to visit to make inquiries he was in a quandary until the arrival of Fisher from California. The two men went to Nuñez's ranch and found the mule. From there they went to Dillon's ranch and learned that in the latter part of June, 1888, a prospector with a horse, mule and dog and a prospecting outfit had passed the ranch and that about ten days afterward the dog had come back to the ranch shot in three places and had died soon afterward. The dog had a collar on, which was taken off and preserved and shown to the brother, who recognized it as the one worn by his brother's dog. The description of the prospector tallied with the missing man, even to a slight deafness. The same day that the dog returned one of the men working for Dillon discovered a trail made by a horse and mule, accompanied by Indian tracks. Some time after this three Apache Indians, who had escaped when Geronimo was captured, were seen in that vicinity with the animals. Ziegler was never heard of afterward and there is no doubt that he was killed by these Indians, who are yet in the mountains in that vicinity. An exhaustive search was made for the remains but nothing could be discovered and another mystery of the mountains has been discovered, the solution of which will probably never be known.

"Scar-faced Charley" was taken to the city lock-up yesterday for being in the usual condition of a man after trying to help the prohibitionists by drinking all the whisky in our city and leaving none for the other fellow. He will give a learned opinion this morning to His Honor why his capacity did not equal his fond anticipations.

Medicinal Properties of Vegetables.

The following information may be useful to some at this season of the year, if not new to many:

Spinach has a direct effect upon the kidneys.

The common dandelion, used as greens, is excellent for the same trouble.

Asparagus purges the blood. Celery acts admirably upon the nervous system, and is a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia.

Tomatoes act upon the liver. Beets and turnips are excellent appetizers.

Lettuce and cucumbers are cooling in their effects upon the system.

Onions, garlic, leeks, olives, and shallots, all of which are similar, possess medicinal virtues of a marked character, stimulating the circulatory system and the consequent increase of the saliva and the gastric juice promoting digestion.

Red onions are an excellent diuretic, and the white ones are recommended to be eaten raw as a remedy for insomnia. They are a tonic and nutritious.

A soup made from onions is regarded by the French as an excellent restorative in debility of the digestive organs.

Idleness is a Dangerous Fault

In the kidneys. When inactive they speedily fall into despair. Those obstinate and fatal maladies, Bright's disease and diabetes, ensue with terrible certainty upon the inaction of the organs affected. Catarrh of the bladder, enuresis, gravel and strangury are also to be apprehended from a partial paralysis of the bladder, of which weakness and sluggishness are the causes. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a fine tonic and promoter of activity for the renal organs, and one which can be relied upon to afford them the requisite stimulus without exciting them—an effect to be feared from the unmedicated alcoholic excitant of commerce. A further beneficial effect of the Bitters, by renewing activity of the kidneys, is to enable them to drain from the blood in its passage through them, impurities productive of rheumatism and dropsy. Nervousness, fever and ague, constipation and dyspepsia are conquered by the Bitters.

Tourists.

Whether on pleasure bent or business should take on every trip a bottle of Syrup of Figs, as it acts most pleasantly and effectually on the kidneys, liver and bowels, preventing fevers, headaches and other forms of sickness. For sale in 50c and $1.00 bottles by all leading druggists.
