BURNED OUT

Mrs. Frank Main's Home Goes up in Smoke.

What was at one time, Mrs. F. Main's elegant home is now a mass of black ruins.

Thursday morning about 2 o'clock persons living near the Main residence on Cayon street, saw flames rising from the back of the house and sound ed an alarm which soon caused a large crowd to gather, who did all they could to save the building and valuable contents but with little success as the back put of the building and the roof were already on fire and only a few pieces of the handsome furniture were rescued from the flames which spread with remarkable rapidity.

The house was an old one, perhaps fully covered by insurance, but the contents could not have been bought for any price and the loss to Mrs. Main is great.

The cause of the fendish deed may never be known for no one was occupying the house at the time, Mrs. Main being away from home, and all trace of the perpetrators was wiped out by the total destruction of everything that would burn.

We join the entire community in expressing sympathy for Mrs. Main in the loss of her elegant home and hope the party or parties who did the deed will be captured and dealt with as the law requires.

A PIONEER GONE.

"Uncle" John Roberts Died Wednesday Evening.

On Wednesday evening Feb. 22, John W. Roberts, better known as "Uncle" John, breathed his last after a lingering and painful illness.

About a year ago he began to suffer from gun-shot wounds received in the long ago, and the past month he had been growing weaker and weaker and at the end grew near he suffered an told agony. Wednesday evening that grim monster—Death—appeared; the light of life was put out, and kind loving friends who had been faithful to the last, took charge of poor "Uncle" John's remains and prepared them for their final resting place in the Masonic cemetery.

John W. Roberts came to Arizona in 1848 from Kentucky, since which time he has held many positions as a peace officer, being for many years a faithful guardian of the peace in our border city, which position he held at the time death overtook him. John Roberts in the years gone by labored for the upbuilding of Arizona and has done more than most men to help rid the country of the rough element that ruled it and were the terror of honest people. "Uncle" John possessed many a scar as evidence of hard-fought battles, which more than anything hastened his end.

The funeral, which took place Thursday afternoon, was largely attended, for "Uncle" John Roberts had many friends here. Beside the Masonic lodge of which grand order deceased was a member, the militia and the boys' brigade turned out to honor the dead.

James Temple appeared yesterday in Justice Culver's Court. Attorney Satterthite & Lovel appeared for the defendant. As nothing was produced to show that Temple committed the murder of four months ago and charged to him, the counsel asked that their client be discharged, and it was so ordered. Thus ends the famous Temple case which has led to deplendency and a whole lot of red tape in bringing it to a hearing and ending in Tucson.—Tucson Star.

A LITTLE HISTORY.

Why Al Peck Asks Uncle Sam to Pay Damages.

In 1886, nearly thirteen years ago, Mr. Al Peck, our worthy townsman, a native of these United States of America, upon which the sun never sets, owned a stock range and happy home in the Patagonia mountains.

One night in April of the year mentioned, that fiend incarnate—Geronimo and his band of cut-throats, made a raid on Mr. Peck's peaceful home killed his wife and only child, also the hired man in cold blood, tied Mr. Peck to a tree, then destroyed his property; and ran off his horses and cattle, taking with them Mr. Peck's niece as a captive. She was rescued three months later by some U. S. soldiers.

Yes, if ever a man possessed an honest claim against the government for Indian depredations, that man is Al Peck. Ye Gods, what more could a man lose! Just think of it; a loving wife, a sweet baby and a faithful servant butchered by those red devil's—wards of our government—a government which is pledged to protect its citizens.

Mr. Peck's claim is a just one as the evidence in the case proves beyond a shadow of a doubt and we insist that it should be recognized by the government and we believe it will be if presented to the authorities at Washington by a lawyer who knows the difference between Blackstone and a yellow back novel.

A few days ago the following letter was received by a gentleman who knows Mr. Peck is asking that to which he is entitled and is doing all in his power to help him recover a portion of the great loss he sustained at the hands of Uncle Sam's Apache wards:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1899.

I received your favor of the 25th ultimo in relation to the claim of Mr. Peck for Indian depredation. I have since seen Mr. Cotton and he tells me there is nothing in the case because of the fact that the Indians who committed the depredations, have been held not to have been in amity at the time of the depredation. This accounts for the non-prosecution of the case by the general.

The above letter almost took Mr. Peck's breath away. He thinks there is a mistake and will investigate further before giving up all hope.

Al is beginning to believe that he is a "hoodoo." After the redskins cleaned him out thirteen years ago he came to Nogales and built him a home on that ill-fated 60-foot on the border, thinking he was safe, but not so; recently when our Uncle Samuel cleared the strip Al was again swiped off the earth. And the end is not yet.

If there is anything as "Law of Compensation," it ought to begin to act in Mr. Peck's case.

TRIED TO KILL NELSON

Shooting Affray at a Sheep Camp Near Mesa—Old Fight Renewed.

Yesterday forenoon Messrs. Grover and Nelson left Mesa and went out to their sheep camp on the desert a few miles east of Mesa, says the Republican. The gentlemen had been in camp about twenty minutes when two young men rode up on horses and leading a pack horse. The one leading the pack horse accosted Mr. Nelson with the pertinent question, "You don't know me, do you?" Mr. Nelson replied, "Yes I do, you are the man who made a gun play on me two years ago."

"You are right," replied he on the horse, "and I am here to make that same kind of a play again." Whereupon he drew a revolver from his pocket and fired five shots at Mr. Nelson, none of them taking effect. Mr. Grover stood between the two and his position must have ruined the aim of the shooter. All the time these leaden missiles were trying to end the career of Mr. Nelson, that gentleman was endeavoring to get his Winchester from his saddle. When he succeeded, his assailant had placed 300 yards between them, and although Mr. Nelson fired two shots, the distance and his excitement, (excusable under the circumstances,) prevented him from bringing down his man. In their escape, the men left their pack horse, which Nelson and Grover brought into town with them.

The assailant's name is Ed. Dougall and that of his companion, Garfield Ferrell, both from the vicinity of Flagstaff.

Two years ago Dougall worked for Mr. Nelson and a dispute arose over wages, and it was at that time he first drew his gun on Nelson. The difference was not settled and evidently Dougall called yesterday for a settlement. Parties report that they saw him riding up and down on the banks of the Highland canal all morning, with the intention, it appears, to intercept Nelson on the way to his sheep camp.

Deputy Sheriff Chas. Lewis, Constables Burton and Eugene Daily and Mr. Nelson left Mesa yesterday afternoon in pursuit of the fugitives, who had taken a north-easterly direction, toward Tonto Basin.
