REPAIRING THE WIGWAM.

Hundreds of people visited the Democratic national wigwam to view the work of the storm. The broken center pole and huge strips of canvas scattered about were all they saw. The building itself showed no evidences of strain. Thousands of feet of planking were delivered during the day, and the labor of erecting a timber roof instead of the airy canopy originally proposed was in full swing. Night and day shifts of men will be on hand constantly till the wigwam's construction is complete. No fear is expressed that all will not be ready in time.

"Now," asked the neophyte, "should I surrender my conscience in the interest of my client?"

"No," answered the preceptor, "you should not. That matter should have been attended to before you began the study of law."
