

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1883. ISSUED EVERY MORNING. (Monday excepted) J. F. HALLOMAN & COMPANY, PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS, ASTORIAN BUILDING, - - - CASS STREET.

A NICE ARRANGEMENT.

"You Let Me Alone and I'll Let You Alone."

(SPECIAL TO THE ASTORIAN.)

PORTLAND, Nov. 9.—It is authentically announced that the traffic department of the Northern Pacific and O. R. & N. companies will make public in a few days the terms agreed upon at the recent railroad meeting at Topeka, Kansas. The principal points of local interest are as follows: Freight and passenger rates from eastern points will be the same to Portland, Astoria, Seattle and Tacoma, by way of the Northern Pacific railway as to San Francisco by the Central and Southern Pacific Co's. rates, and the rates to and from the east by way of San Francisco to Astoria, Portland and Puget Sound ports will be the local rates added to the through rates.

One-Half Venice the Other Half Swiss Hamlet.

The most charming of sub-excursions out of Portland was that to Astoria. There are three things at Astoria—historic reminiscences, salmon fisheries and a view of the sea and the Pacific. The reminiscences are connected with John Jacob Astor, and with Lewis and Clark, who spent a winter here, and there are not so interesting as the other things. Astoria is half a Venice and half a Swiss hamlet. One part sticks like a fly on the wall to the face of a precipice, discharging giant waves that grow to the water's edge—the other, frame and brick business buildings, saw-mills, salmon canning houses—is built on a low, sandy plain, covered with water at high tide. Above the town, which looks shabby and weather-beaten, rises an abrupt hill, 800 feet above the sea level, which gave us a panoramic view of the river mouth headlands and the bar; and gleaming like a ribbon of silver on the horizon, the wide expanse of the Pacific itself, into which the sun set like a ball of red hot metal into a sea of mercury from the deck of the steamer an hour later. There wasn't much sentiment in our party, but the view on the series of Columbia river trips which ended at Astoria kept the cabin pretty well emptied and the decks crowded with gazers. They saw some of the strange wonders of the Columbia delta, cascades or rapids—only the majestic river itself, rolling between dark cliffs from a level, which gave us a panoramic view of the river mouth headlands and the bar; and gleaming like a ribbon of silver on the horizon, the wide expanse of the Pacific itself, into which the sun set like a ball of red hot metal into a sea of mercury from the deck of the steamer an hour later.

A GOOD OPPORTUNITY.—The extraordinary dryness of last season occasioned a good many fires on the hillsides south of the city to the great fear of dwellers in the vicinity, and in a few instances the loss of property. The result was the burning over of a large area of surface. Good effect may now be reaped from disaster. By sowing grass seed it will spring up on the waste places in luxuriant verdure, and by furnishing pasture and charming the eye with verdant beauty will combine the best of both worlds in an eminent degree. If such is not done, the ferns and baby firs will reclaim their ancient foothold and the opportunity be lost.

FIRE AT SEATTLE.—A fire broke out in an early hour yesterday morning in the mill room of the Astorian mill, on Hill street in Seattle, and in a few minutes the mill house was totally destroyed. The flames then spread to the county jail, and owing to a difficulty in obtaining water the building became a total loss. Stora's loss is $5000, insured. The jail cost $18,000, on which there is said to be no insurance. The fire was got under control and the prisoners saved.

OLDEST SETTLER.—The oldest Oregon settler has been found at last. His name is J. B. Gohar; he lives six miles north of Salem. He came to Astoria in 1823, after living here awhile, he went to Marion county, where he has been living for the last fifty years. The returns are all in; there are no more counties to hear from; the accounts are all up and Mr. Gohar is entitled to the distinction. We always thought that an Astorian would eventually get away with it.

PROPOSITION.—The latest railroad proposition comes from the Northern Pacific lines, that that road and the other roads shall not encroach upon each other's territory, and as compensation from being shut out from the San Francisco business, the Northern Pacific will be paid a stipulated sum every year by the other roads, which will enable it to carry passengers at a paying figure by way of the Columbia river to San Francisco.

OBEDIENCE 413.—In the police court yesterday, were called the cases of Jas. Cook charged with setting up, opening and keeping a house as a resort for the purpose of smoking opium, and Wm. Eureka, charged with the offense of smoking the seductive drug therein. His honor continued both cases till the 12th instant.

HE BROUGHT THEM ACROSS.

How Oregon and Washington Territory Were Saved.

But for the knowledge and patriotism of one man the valuable lands embraced in Oregon and Washington Territory would now be the property of Great Britain—many whistles; the country is ours." A public dinner given in 1842, at which several officers of the Hudson Bay company were present, news was received that a band of British immigrants had crossed the mountains. Tassis were drunk in honor of the event, and one enthusiastic Englishman exclaimed: "Now the American whistles; the country is ours." There happened to be present at the dinner an American missionary, Dr. Marcus Whitman, who, when he heard the boast of the Englishman, resolved that if it were in his power to prevent it the country should not become the property of the English. The next day he started for Washington on horseback, making the journey in winter, with frozen limbs presented himself, immediately upon his arrival at the capital, to Daniel Webster, then secretary of the Interior. He stated his mission, Webster blithely told him the country was worthless, and that wagon could not cross the mountains. "Sir George Simpson, who is here, admires that," said he, "and I am about trading that worthless region for some valuable concessions in relation to the Newfoundland fisheries." Dr. Whitman was distressed for he found that the treaty had already been approved by the senate, and was awaiting formal ratification, and the signature of President Tyler. He decided to help to end upon the president himself. After hearing him through, President Tyler said: "Dr. Whitman, your frozen limbs and leather breeches are the only things that I can take out of you. Give me six months, and I will take a thousand immigrants across," says the story. "We will," said the doctor, "if you take them across, the treaty shall not be ratified." With much effort the band of emigrants was raised, and, though they were met by a detachment of the Hudson Bay company, who declared that it was impossible to cross the mountains, and were almost persuaded to abandon their project, they succeeded in their undertaking. The patriotic missionary was vindicated, the treaty was not ratified, and what will doubtless prove to be our best states were saved to the Union.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

A Worthy Society.

This order was organized at Washington, D. C., February 19, 1854, by Justice H. Hathorne, who is recognized as the founder of the Order. Its growth at the beginning was not at all rapid, for, although several lodges were formed during that and the succeeding year, they were but short-lived, and at the close of the year 1855 there remained but one lodge, having a membership of fifty-two. With the year 1856 the growth of the Order became more substantial and that year closed with four lodges and 379 members. The next year was a very prosperous one and the lodges grew to number forty-one, having a membership of 6847. In 1868 began the marvelous growth which first attracted the general attention of the country, and which has continued steadily ever since, showing the vitality and the need of the Order. At the close of 1878 there were 197 lodges and 34,624 members, and the Order began to find recruits in other fields than the immediate vicinity where it first saw light. In a few years it was to be found in every state and territory of this country, and active lodges are now at work in forty-four states and territories, the District of Columbia, the province of Ontario, New Brunswick, Manitoba, and British Columbia and the Sandwich Islands. At the beginning of the year 1883 there were 1876 lodges, with a total membership of 125,743 Knights, and the Order is increasing at the rate of about 25,000 members annually. There are three ranks—Page, Esquire and Knight. The Esquire rank is entirely separate from the others, save that to enter it one must be a Knight in good standing in some lodge of the Order. There are three classes in the Esquire rank. The first pays $1000 on the death of a member; the second class, $3000, and the third class, $5000. All members under 50 years of age enter only the third class. 50 years can enter only the third class. As often as is rendered necessary by deaths occurring, the members are assessed $1.10 in each class, and have the privilege in which to pay it after the issue of the notice. The average cost of this insurance is about 1 per cent. annually of the amount that will be received in the case of death. Up to June 30, 1883, the Endowment rank has paid out $1,734,970 in benefits to families and deceased members.

The uniform rank is another rank that is strictly optional with the members after having attained to the rank of Knight. To those fond of display, or possessed of military desires, this rank offers a means of gratification. Its uniform is one of the handsomest ever devised for the members of a secret order, and it is rapidly coming into favor and new divisions are constantly being organized.

Dr. King, P. G. U. and S. of Toronto, has sent out a large quantity of grand jurisdictions represented at the New Orleans session of the Supreme Lodge in 1884. With that end in view he is corresponding with the Deputy Supreme Chancellors, both New Brunswick and Manitoba.
