Opinions from the Profession.

Dr. A. Clark says, "Health is that state of our bodies in which the functions of it go on without our notice or observation, and in which existence is felt to be a pleasure, in which it is a joy to see, to hear, to feel, to touch, and to live. That is health! Now, let me tell you, that it is a state that cannot be benefited by alcohol in any degree. Indeed, it is a state which, nine times out of ten, is greatly injured by alcohol. It is a state which often bears alcohol without any sensible injury; but, I repeat to you, it is not one which can in any way be benefited by alcohol. It can bear it sometimes without obvious injury, but be benefited by it, never!

And I venture to tell you that there is a certain joy of existence, a sense in which one feels what a pleasure it is to look, for instance, upon green fields, to hear pleasant sounds, to touch pleasant hands, to know that life is a satisfaction. This is a state in which a sort of little discord is produced by it. This is a state in which, sooner or later, the music gets out of tune under its continuous influence. As regards its influence upon our health, our bodies, our complexions: Perfectly good health will in my opinion always be injured by even the smallest quantities of alcohol imbibed—injured in the sense of its perfection and loveliness. Perfect health is the loveliest thing in this world. But alcohol will, even in small doses, soon take this feeling away, injure the perfection of loveliness of health, mentally, morally, and physically."

James Startin, Surgeon to St. John's Hospital, London, says:—"I myself never drink spirits under any consideration; neither do I recommend them to my patients, except under the most exceptional circumstances, and have not for three years. I could not have believed what a difference it has made to my health and strength; I think better, I work better, I am physically stronger, and my patients, both in private and hospital practice, express gratitude to me for my recommending absolute abstinence from alcohol to them."

Science declares now that alcohol is in no sense of the word a food. If it contains any nourishing properties (which remains to be proved) the resolute seeker after food would be hopelessly intoxicated over and over again before he came in sight of a respectable meal. Alcohol is not a heat giver; on the contrary, it robs us of our vital heat, and makes it exceedingly hot for us by heating the surface of our bodies, during the abstraction of this very necessary property of life. Alcohol does not furnish us with supplies adequate to repair the three-fold loss of substance, heat, and moisture, without which renewed health cannot be, these drinks are not a necessity of healthful life. Science further deposes that intoxicating liquors owe at once their potency and their charms to an irritant and narcotic poison, alcohol—that in its effects, vitiates the blood, inflames the stomach, overtaxes the heart, destroys the kidneys, softens the brain, hardens the liver, and destroys the complexion. It dims the intelligence, it darkens the judgement, and paralyses the will. It is indeed a mocker. It promises us strength and mocks us with weakness, it promises us endurance and mocks us with faintness, it promises us substance and mocks us with shadow, it promises heat and mocks us with cold, it promises us life and mocks us with premature death, it promises us intelligence and wit and mocks us with confusion, it dazzles us with visions of happiness, and plunges us into the depths of despair, worse; by the operations of the laws of heredity, alcohol transmits diseases both of body and mind which it induces, and stamps upon posterity the indelible hand of an inherent crave for the deadly narcotic, which is the cause of all the mischief. To the medical man this comes more home than to any other member of society, since on him is naturally laid the grave task of investigating and promulgating the truth with regard to the physical habits of his race. The great testimony of science is that alcohol is neither a necessity or an advantage, and, in plain terms, is a brain and body poison.

For a period of twelve months the French doctors had been keeping nine pigs in a state of habitual drunkenness. This was done with a view to test the different effects of several kinds of alcohol. The Prefect of the Seine put some styes and a yard in the municipal slaughter-houses at the disposal of the savants, in order that they might conduct the experiments at the smallest possible cost to themselves. We learn that the pig who takes absintha is first gay, then excitable, irritable, combative, and finally drowsy. The pig who had brandy mixed with his food is cheerful all through till he falls asleep. The rum-swilling pig becomes sad and somnolent almost at once; while the pig who takes gin conducts himself in eccentric ways, grunting, squealing, tilting his head against the sty door and raising on his hind legs, as if to sniff the wind. The effects seem to be about the same on quadruped or biped animals,—it makes fools of them all.

"WHAT ALEXANDER MIGHT HAVE DONE"

The late Czar of Russia was eminently a great man, his action in liberating thirty-six million serfs from slavery qualified him to be. Yet with all his greatness, Alexander left it to Dr. Swayne to liberate the world from the annoyance and pain of scores of skin diseases, by producing Swayne's Ointment. Think of the tens, hundreds, thousands it has cured, and then remember it is economical, effective, reliable, and pure, and if you will only try it you will have a cure.

It is said that Kentucky breeders have sold in the past six months over $295,000 worth of thoroughbred and trotting horses. Breeding good horses pays.

"Little thanks are due to him who only gives away what is of no use to himself." The thanks of the world over are being showered on the inventor of Kidney-Wort for it is giving health to all. Kidney Wort moves the bowels regularly, cleanses the blood, and radically cures kidney diseases, gravel, piles, bilious headache and pains which are caused by disordered liver and kidneys. Thousands have been cured—why should you not try it.

Think of a calf growing 29 pounds per week for ten weeks! That is what ails a young Greenville bovine, according to a local paper there.

Solving A Jilted Lover.

Quite a romance in real life was enacted a few days ago, wherein a Dover gentleman figured as the hero. This young man according to the State Journal, has been paying attention to a young miss in the lower part of the state, which soon ripened into an engagement of marriage. The day was set, and the eager groom passed the intervening time in feverish expectancy. Finally the long-looked-for moment arrived, he donned his best bib-and-tucker and hied himself to the residence of his fair innamorata. His face was wreathed in smiles as he boldly entered the gate and rapped at the door which separated him from all that was dear to him in life. The door opened, he entered, inquired for his love, and what was his astonishment to find that she had been married six weeks before to another man. Filled with rage he rushed to the new home of the faithless maiden and demanded an explanation. After a season the young lady succeeded in quieting his passion, and in order to ease him down as gently as possible, permitted him to escort her to church that evening, which he did. Feeling that she had ruthlessly destroyed his peace and happiness, she puzzled her brain to find some way by which she could make reparation, and finally took off her ring and gave him a souvenir of the episode. The father, wishing to do his part also, presented the young man with a pair of little gossins, but which were too small to be removed from the mother goose; so he left them behind, and slowly and sadly wended his way back to Dover, swearing vengeance upon all womankind.

POSITIVELY CURE BY Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First. Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased tubercular, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second. Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third. Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth. Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth. Because over 3000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth. Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster! SEABURY & JOHNSON, Manufacturing Chemists, New York.
