THE ST. PAUL ROUTE JURY HIBERNY CASE. The policy of the Department of Justice in withholding the publication of the star route bribery statement is explained by the fact that the government has not yet given the accused an opportunity to escape. No arrests have yet been made. Payne is not in the city, and it is rumored that the arrest of Foreman-Dickson and J. J. Brown will soon be ordered. The understanding seems to be that if any arrests are made on star route bribery warrants the prisoners will be sent to jail, but when the hearing is given the Government will attempt to show that the warrants are null and void. The special agents of the defense. The defense held their sittings at the door of the Department of Justice when they were found out. IMPORTATION OF BOOKS COPYRIGHTED IN THE UNITED STATES. The circular states that the law is not intended to prevent the importation of books by the owners of United States copyrights but file with collectors of customs duly authorized certificates of such ownership. On importation of any books, whether by mail or otherwise, they are covered by any such certificate, and the importation of any such books without the consent of the owner of the copyright, the proper officer of the customs will detain the books, and at once notify the owner of the copyright to the end that the latter may take

There were 216 deaths among the white troops, 25 among the colored, and 9 among Indian troops. CHEAP ENVELOPES. Stamped envelopes are coming down. Four years ago there was a reduction in the price of 50 per cent on the envelope alone, and now there will be a further reduction of 10 per cent. A dozen years ago the best quality was sold at $4.80 per thousand, exclusive of postage. The price now is $2.00, and it will be an improvement. The first quality will be sold at the same price as the second quality now is, and it will be a trifle better than the present first quality. LAND CLAIMS. Acting Secretary of the Interior Joslyn has requested Atty. Gen. Brewster to make a motion in the supreme court to advance the cases involving the title to what are known as the "Houmas" claims in Louisiana, amounting to 125,000 acres of sugar lands, belonging to the heirs of the late John Sidel. The claims were made before the land departments of the government seventy-five years, and are among the most complicated cases ever before the interior department. The late Justice Clifford, when attorney general, made a decision adverse to the present claimants. A SURPLUS FROM FEES. During the last fiscal year the receipts from the steamboat inspection service exceeded the expenditures by $22,000. This sum added to the fund in the treasury makes $700,000, which will be carried over to year to year as a surplus. The law passed at the last session reducing the license fees to 50 cents went into effect on the 1st of April, and during the last quarter of the fiscal year a reduction of $1,000,000 in the receipts. It is estimated that during the current year the expenditures will exceed the receipts by about $18,000, owing to the reduction of the license fees; but this deficiency can be met for five years by the surplus fund now in the treasury. STATUTE OF GARIBALDI. Sig. Tommaso Gagliardi, who executed the sculptures of the pediment of the east front of the senate wing of the capitol, Washington, has made a clay model of the statue of Garibaldi, which is to be erected in that city. The head will be uncovered, while over the shoulders will be carelessly thrown a military cloak, and a loosely knotted scarf will bind the flowing collar of the historical red shirt. THE PLAINT OF AN EDITOR. Editor Ramsdell has addressed the following unique communication to the District commissioner: "I live on Q street, between Front and Twenty-first, and I own a new and handsome house. him. Books covered by such certificate will not be admitted to an entry on behalf of the importer, but it will be the duty of the collector to request the district attorney to intervene for the duties in any proceedings which may be instituted for their forfeiture. CUTTING IT FAT. The cause assigned at the signal office for the arrest of Sgt. J. A. Bryce, the observer in charge of Pittsburg, is a discrepancy in his accounts. It is charged that Bryce, who is a practical printer, did work himself which should have been given to outside parties, and made out false vouchers in his own name. The test of the entry of Bryce was to add $50 and $60 per month to his salary, and this has been continued for several months. The matter was brought to the attention of a special agent of the signal service, who after establishing a good case, relieved Bryce from his position and placed him in Allegheny arsenal for safe keeping, pending a court-martial. Gen. Hazen, the chief signal officer, says that although the amount in the case was not $100,000, the interests of the department demand the prompt punishment of the offender. It was his opinion that the court-martial would bring in a verdict of guilty and recommend, the discharge of the prisoner from the service and a punishment by imprisonment. THE JEANNETTE INQUIRY. Lieut. Danenhower, in his testimony in answer to questions, said: "My opinion and judgment at the time of leaving the ship was that too much was carried, both of provisions and clothing. I thought at the time it was best to reduce everything to a minimum of weight, to carry sixty days' provisions, and strike due south as rapidly as possible for the Asiatic coast waters. Question. With the exception you have noted, were all other preparations adequate and sufficient? Answer. No. Each boat should have been provided, in anticipation of separation, in the way of a compass, sextant, almanac, and logarithmic tables. The articles were in the Jeannette and in October, 1879, a box was prepared for each boat to carry a full set of everything that might be required for their navigation. This was done with a list of articles specified by the captain. The boxes were packed in the stowage were stowed in the starboard chart-room ready for immediate use. I don't know that the articles were intentionally left in the ship on the afternoon of July 12, 1881. The prismatic compasses were always kept hanging in the chart-room ready for immediate use, and were taken out on that day. A GUTTEAU OPINION. The opinion of Atty. Gen. Brewster upon the papers presented to the president, last June, in support of an application for the appointment of a commission to consider the mental condition of the late Gen. Gutzau, and asking for a reprieve pending such investigation, was given out Tuesday. The opinion, addressed to the president, concludes: "At last hour you are asked to reprieve this justly-condemned man, to investigate in an unusual if not irregular way the fact that has been solemnly determined by the constituted authorities of the law. I submit that to do this would be to establish a dangerous precedent. It will shake the public confidence in the certainty and justice of the courts by substituting your will for the judgment of the law and its forums at the instigation of a man who asserts that he was insane, and who presses their application contrary to the preponderance of medical talent of this country who believe the other way and think him sane, as is admitted by the most conspicuous, earnest, and important of the petitioners. A LAND-GRANT DECISION. The president's appointment of Thomas Hazard as a commissioner to inspect two hundred miles of the New Orleans Pacific implies the decision by him of a legal point pending in congress. The New Orleans Pacific derives its claim from an assignment made by the New Orleans, Baton Rouge, and Vicksburg road, which received the grant in 1857, but never built the road. Last winter, when it was known that congress to declare forfeiture of the land grants made to companies that had not constructed the roads, the New Orleans Pacific applied to the attorney general for an opinion, and he expressed his belief that the New Orleans Pacific, having built the road in good faith under a grant made to its predecessor prior to any declaration of forfeiture, no such declaration could affect it. The railroad committee of the senate reported unanimously in favor of the New Orleans Pacific title to what is known as the "backbone" grant. In the house the matter went to the judiciary committee, and this committee took no action. The president rested at the adjournment, but the president's action implies that if the road is satisfactory patents for the land will be issued to the company. HOWE FOR A POSTAL TELEGRAPH SYSTEM. It is understood that in his annual report Postmaster General Howe will devote considerable space to the postal telegraph, and it is believed that he will recommend its adoption by the government. He will present figures indicating the extent of telegraph facilities in this country and England, showing the comparative point of cheapness and accommodation of the British system, controlled by the postal authorities, over the American system, managed by corporations, in the interest of a few owners. The general public, however, in this country, and the demand for increased speed in the transmission of correspondence is not wholly met by the fast trains which are now used for this purpose, and it is said that Mr. Howe will endeavor to show that the use of the telegraph by the postoffice department will accomplish everything in this direction that can be desired. The reduction of tolls, and the consequent benefit to the general public which must follow the adoption of such a system by the government, will, it is said, also be urged. Patent Barbed-Wire-Fence Corsets. We more than half expected that if the deacons and elders throughout the country were not more quiet and reserved and less ostentatious and bold in their hugging of the girls, someone would be getting up an arrangement for putting the kibosh on their funny business. And at last it has been done, and some scientist has invented a patent corset with a padlock on it, and all around the usual path of a man's arm is filled up with sharp-pointed spikes. The corset resembles the muzzle used for weaning a calf, and is said to be equally effective. It is mighty tough for the men of the country to be broken of their hugging propensities by the means of a loaded corset, but we doubt if this new scheme will prove satisfactory. You would have to stand over the girls of this city with a club to compel them to wear this new, patent barbed-wire-fence corset.—Chicago Times. GENERAL MARKETS. CHICAGO.
