A FAMILY ROW.

It Ends in the Fatal Shooting of a Mer-chant and His Son-in-Law. chant and His Son-in-Law.

Late the other afternoon William Smith, a Detroit produce merchant, and his son-in-law, Peter Hartwell, a portrait pain er, shot each other in a family quarrel in bront of the former's place of business. Hartwell was trying to persuade his wife, who had left him some time ago, to return and live with him, when Smith interfered. A quarrel ensued which led to blows and finally Smith drew a revolver and shot Hartwell in the left breast. Hartwell reciprocated, firing several shots, which took effect in Smith's head and arms. Hartwell also snapped the revolver at his wife, well also snapped the revolver at his wife, but it failed to discharge. Smith was sixty and Hartwell fifty years of age. Both mea

Driving Out Poddlers. The Ishpeming city authorities have begun a war of extermination on all peddlers, fakirs and agents of all sorts. They will be refused licenses and promptly arrested when caught at work. Several arrests have already been made and the cases will be watched with great interest. The city has been overrun with all sorts of peddlers and hawkers for the rest three years. hawkers for the past three years.

Taught Them a Lesson.

Miss Kate Young teaches the village school at Sebewa. She has also taught the school board a trick or two. When she was refused money for soap and towels a few days ago she instructed each scholar to bring an egg to school. With the result of this assessment the lavatory necessaries were purchased, and Kate is happy and the children clean.

Marriage an Experiment.

Marriage in Bay County is apparently regarded as an experiment. A woman applied to the county clerk the other day for a license that would carry her through two years, and enable her to quit her husband at the end of that time if she didn't like him. She was surprised to learn that there were none of that kind to be had.

Health in Michigan. Reports to the State Board of Health by fifty-seven observers in different parts of the State for the week ended on the 11th indicated that whooping-cough increased, and pneumonia decreased in area of prev-alence. Diphtheria was reported at eight places, scarlet fever at seventeen, typhoid fever at five, and measles at four.

A New Invention.

Ex-Representative Moulton, of Grand Rapids, has invented a "binavere." The concern is a species of the genuine bloycle, but is aquatic in its nature. When once mounted one can skim the waves like a duck, and rather enjoy the possibility of a "header" if the water is warm and the rider not out of sight of land.

. The State Fair.

The Executive Committee of the State Ag-ricultural Society met at Lansing the other day and decided to locate the State fair in Lansing permanently, the local fair society deeding its handsome grounds to the State society. It is probable the fair will be held during the week beginning September 9.

The new teacher in some rural districts, if he is young and unmarried, is often supposed to have matrimonial designs on the young ladies of the district, no matter how innocent he may be of such intention. Sometimes his supposed preference for one or the other is made the subject of gossip, and occasionally the teacher is even the innocent cause of most absurd jealousies.

A diffident young man, who chan-ced to be already engaged to be mar-ried, taught his first term of school in a western rural district some years ago, and, in accordance with the ru-ral custom, he did a great deal of "vis-iting around."

He spent one night at the house of an old farmer who had a daughter fa-mous, not for her beauty, but for her lack of it. To enumerate her pecul-iarities of face and figure would be to Those who regard bulk as a mark of beauty, who think a head of red hair, cut short and parted at the side, is an attraction in a young lady, would have been charmed with "Becky

Ann."
When our somewhat | fastidious young teacher was introduced to this paragon, her uncomeliness was in-creased by the fact that she was bare footed and wore an inharmonious gown of green and yellow calico.

Naturally enough his amazed gaze was fixed often on Miss Becky Ann during the evening. When he retired to his room for the night, he was followed by her father, who almost stu-pefied him by saying, with perfect gravity:

"Look here, I'm going to tell you something I reely think you'd orter to know, ez it may save you from to know, ez it may save you from raisin' any false hopes to have 'em dashed to the ground. I seen yer castin' sheep's eyes at my Becky Ann all the evenin', an' it's my bounden dooty to tell ye that she's spoke for by Jarvis Sipes. Sorry for ye, young man, but Jarvis hez got ahead of you this time."—Youth's Companion.

The "Thunderer's Retraction.

Years ago the great London Times was a power in the land of England, and it has always been as stubborn as powerful. It was strong enough to be called the "thunderer." In its younger days the thunderer was not much of a blunderer. It made mistakes, of course, which others saw; but it would retract nothing. It assumed the virtues of a king, and persuaded itself that the Times could do no wrong. That was before childishness and Pigotts overcame it. It would never acknowledge a fault, or take back or correct anything once pubback or correct anything once pub-lished. Once it struck a snag by pub-lishing a report that a certain gentle-man had committed suicide by hanging himself. The gentleman happened to be an English gentleman of considerable importance, and he objected to being slaughtered in that way. He called at the office of the thunderer and said that he objected. There was a dilemma for The Times. With an English love for fair play it wanted to be just, but it could not retract, and did not like to contradict its own report. For that once it promised to make a correction. The gentleman felt honored by the exception made in his case and went away satisfied. the morning, damp from the Walter press, the thunderer came to him with his coffee and rolls. He read the cor-rection in his case. It said that there was a partial error in the statement that the gentleman had actually com-mitted suicide by hanging. It said they had since learned the gentleman had been cut down before life was ex-tinct and had been resuscitated.—New Orleans Pierry 1990. Orleans Picayune.

The Harbor of Greytown. The most difficult feature of the Nicaragua canal is the restoration of Nicaragua canal is the restoration of the harbor of Greytown, which has been destroyed by silt deposit from the San Juan river. The United States survey allows $1,767,000 for this purpose, but it may cost $5,000, 000. It is not more difficult, however, than was the construction of a harbor at Port Said, and the work will resemble it in character. The method of restoration is a question whereon opinions differ; that favored by the United States engineers being the di-version of the lower San Juan into the Colorado branch, which already carries to the ocean eleven-twelfths of the volume of the river. This can easily be effected, and once the harbor is iso-lated, it is intended to dredge it, and to run a breakwater 3,000 feet from the outer line of the harbor into the Caribbean, with six fathoms at its sea-ward end. The breakwater may have to be subsequently extended seaward. The soil is a volcanic sand, easily handled, but difficult to locate permanently.—Overland Monthly.

Author of "Beautiful Snow." Mr. J. W. Watson, the author of "Beautiful Snow," having been de-scribed by the New York World as the author of an unsuccessful book of poems, and at present an elevated railroad brakeman, writes to that journal as follows: "My book of poems is not a failure, but, the publishers inform me, is one of the best selling in the trade, though I derive no profit from it, nor do I own a copy (fact), the price being beyond my pocket ($3) and the publishers never having presented me with a copy. There are many bet-ter poems in it than 'Beautiful Snow,' and several almost as popular. Frank Leslie never offered me $1,000 to write any poem, though he has paid me enuch money for doing so. -Frank Leslie's Newspaper.

. Is Your Dander Up?

The word "dander" is a corruption of d-auger, and has generally been considered an Americanism, but in Halliwell's Archaic Dictionary he gives the words dander (anger) and dandy (distracted), the former com-mon to several English counties and the latter peculiar to Somersetshire. A dandy is generally used to mean a coxcomb, a fop, and is the French word dandin (a conceited fellow).— Detroit Free Press.
