MAN HUNT ENDED.

Dr. Fraker, an Insurance Swindler, Found at Last.

DULUTH, Sept. 3.—After a hunt that has lasted two years, in which the insurance companies interested spent thousands of dollars without avail to discover an alleged dead man alive, and finally had to pay his presumptive heirs the whole amount of his life insurance, $48,000, the man has been captured alive, and the companies have been vindicated in their assertion that the insurance was taken out for the purposes of fraud—and fraud that has apparently been successful so far as its beneficiaries are concerned.

The man insured is Dr. George Fraker, of Topeka, Kas. He was alleged to have been drowned in the Missouri river two years ago. But he was captured Sunday in the woods near Tower, this state, and has admitted his identity. He will go back to Kansas without a requisition. He said he had no intention of defrauding the companies at first. He fell into the Missouri accidentally, but swam out on the opposite side of the river. Learning from the newspapers next day that he had been drowned he concluded to let it go at that, so his heirs could get the insurance.

The case is one of great general interest because of a reward of $20,000 which was offered for his capture. Fraker is a physician and up to the latter part of 1893 was physician to the St. Elmo hotel, the leading hotel in Excelsior Springs, a famous health resort near Kansas City. Together with seven or eight companions the doctor went fishing on the Missouri river one day and after dark, and while in company of George Harvey, James Triplett and Jake Crowley, a negro, he disappeared and was seen no more. These parties afterwards swore positively that they witnessed his drowning while rowing in a leaky boat, but after a strict search his body could not be recovered.

It is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by druggists, price 75c. Testimonials free.

Strikers' Headquarters Burned.
SHEPPING, Mich., Sept. 4.—The only exciting feature in the strike situation was the burning of the headquarters of the strikers' at Union park at an early hour in the morning, also the grand stand and astble. It is thought the place was fired by some one not in sympathy with the strikers.

Use It In Time.
Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucous discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across the forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles.

The Greenacre Congress.

GREENACRE, ELIOT, ME., Aug. 23, 1895.
The Greenacre lecture course proceeds with unabated interest. All the accommodations in the inn and its vicinity, are crowded with guests. Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, as widely loved and honored as she is widely known, drew a great crowd in and around the auditorium tent to hear her speak on "Life and its Possibilities." Despite her seventy-five years, she stood erect and strong and spoke for more than an hour without notes and with the burning eloquence of the true orator—one who has a divine message. She presented the Christian idea of greatness which was expounded and lived by Jesus, the Christ. His rule for attaining it was, "Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant," and He proved its practicability. Mrs. Livermore believes that such a life is one of the greatest joy, and repudiates the prevalent idea that Jesus was a man of sorrow and suffering. Service is the secret of sovereignty. Literally and truly, the only way to gain your life is to lose it. A life of true, unselfish service will bring greater rewards and happiness than one of self-seeking. In judging men, we should judge them by their possibilities and not by their performances. Mrs. Livermore said she had often been puzzled to know where the creeds of the churches came from, for, though a great bible student, she had never been able to find them in the teachings of the Founder of Christianity. But no matter how few or how many articles of belief they have, the important point is that not a single one of them shall run counter to the fundamental laws as stated by Jesus—love to God and love to man. If a man says to you, I can love my fellow men because I can sympathize with them but I cannot love God because I cannot understand what he is; then say to him that God is the condensed name for our ideals of all that is good. Love of God is simply love of the good. If, on the other hand, a man says I can love God, but my fellow men are so wicked and repulsive that I cannot love them, say to him every man has divine possibilities, and that it is our highest privilege to help furnish the environment which will develop the highest possibilities of human life.

The address by Ralph Waldo Trine, "Living upon the Heights," was an inspiration to all. He said that here and there all over the world, rare souls have escaped from the disease, laden valleys of materiality, and ascended to the mountaintops of spirituality, where health, joy, peace, freedom and purity shine resplendent. What they have proven possible of attainment is equally possible for us all. We need but to arise and go to our Father. To do this, man must know himself as a spiritual being, made in the image and likeness of God, who is spirit. Mr. Trine added that he heard one of our most noted writers and thinkers say, recently, "Men talk of having a soul, I have no soul. I am soul. I have a body," and this represents the absolute truth. Because of our non-recognition of this, our true selves have been the slaves of our physical selves—we have been giving our chief time and attention to the body and called that living. But as we come to realize what we truly are, it brings us into rapport with the universe. Great laws and forces before unknown reveal themselves to us, intuitions become keener and their guidance more unerring. Health takes the place of disease and there comes a spiritual power which when sent out, is adequate for the healing of others. Why should we not have the power of the foremost in former days? The universe is the same, its laws are identical, and God, the unchangeable, is in the world just the same. The fault has been that we have taken ourselves out of harmony with the higher laws of our being.

Dr. W. C. Gibbons, of Minneapolis, Minn., made a very startling statement in one of his addresses, recently, which will bear cogitation. He said it had been forced upon him as a vital truth, though he trembled when he first gave it utterance from the platform, knowing it would arouse opposition, that "Applied Christianity never contemplated building a hospital, jail, workhouse, poorhouse, nor asylum for the feeble-minded, insane or for the deaf, dumb or the blind; nor did Christ's plan of redeeming the world include the building of an orphanage or a home for aged men and women, or old soldiers. Applied Christianity means 'preach the gospel, cleanse these evils and raise the dead,' and if the principles of Christ had been really applied, the world would not need any of these institutions today." Abbey Morton Diaz had made practically the same statement from the Greenacre platform two days before. The thought thus thrown out without amplification, was taken home by your reporter, and pondering on the testimony of these two witnesses of undoubted honesty, who loved God and their fellow men supremely, she came to this conclusion: This assertion, contrary as it is to our long accepted ideas, is true in the absolute; for, if the teachings of Christ had been applied for eighteen hundred years, the sick would have been healed, and so no need for hospitals; evil would have been overcome with good, and jails and workhouses, things unknown; children would have been born of the highest love and spirituality, and not of lust or accident, and so would have been perfect in form and mentality, and no institutions for the deaf, dumb, blind, feeble-minded and insane, would have been needed; and should there have been any little ones bereft of parental care, or any aged or infirm, these solitary ones would have been 'set in families,' and not have been allowed to pine amid the rigors of an "institution," no matter how well regulated. Poverty would have been a thing unheard of, if the perfect law of love in its spirit of co-operation and brotherhood had prevailed, and thus there could not have been any poorhouses. So pass this message along, friends, and co-operate with might and main with those noble souls who are trying to hasten the coming of that glad day when the principles of Christ shall govern the world, and so the conduct of all from the least unto the greatest.

A BABY CONTRADICTS THE DOCTORS.

All Are Happy, Glad, and Well.
(SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.)

The theories of physicians in regard to female complaints suffer a "Waterloo" very frequently, when sensible and thinking women take matters into their own hands.

Women are sometimes compelled to act for themselves, because of the suffering forced upon them by incompetent doctors, who are baffled by very simple complaints, because they are not the right sex to comprehend them.

Lydia E. Pinkham, when she gave to the world her Vegetable Compound, lifted women from the darkness into light. She placed within their reach a guaranty, not only of health, but of delicacy and self-respect.

The following letter is a little story where a "dear little boy" was the "Waterloo."

"I have taken three bottles of your Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills; and now I have a dear little babe four weeks old, and I am well. I have to thank you for this."

"I have spent $200.00 for doctors' bills without a cure. For my cure I only spent $5.00."

"I was once a victim of female troubles in their worst form. I have suffered untold agonies every month; had to stay in bed, and have poultices applied, and then could not stand the pain."

"My physician told me if I became pregnant I would die. I had bladder trouble, itching, backache, catarrh of the stomach, hysteria, and heart trouble, fainting spells and leucorrhoea. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?" Mrs. GEO. C. KITCHNER, 351 Spediker Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.
