The association has provided a wood yard at the city hall and any traveler who wants to earn a meal may go to David Blair at the city hall and by splitting wood receive a meal ticket. By this method all impostors will be kept from defrauding the people, all who are willing to work will be able to earn a meal. Clothing and other supplies should not be given to men who apply at the home as all can be provided for at the city hall. Every one should aid the association to this extent at least, and it will do justice to all needy persons. Under no conditions should money be given to tramps.

The Colonial Fayre.

The colonial fayre, conducted by the ladies of the Episcopal church, at the armory, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings, was a financial success and furnished entertainment for a large number of visitors. The armory was filled with evergreen booths in which the ladies and gentlemen and children arrayed in all sorts of costumes, were selling all sorts of articles. The postoffice, with Miss Mande Gates as postmistress, did an enormous business, while Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Horsman as gypsies, told fortunes that made the hair of the unsuspecting stand on end and scared the maidens out of any notion of marriage for years, the wishing well brought comfort to many who have wanted something for years, but until visiting the well, had no hopes of getting it. Old ladies and young old ladies and old young ladies sold flowers, candies, pop corn, etc. The city band furnished music and various members of the church choir and others, sang solos, duets, and choruses, which, with recitations and dancing, made a pleasant affair of the colonial fayre.
