A. B. Sperling and wife took dinner with Lawrence King and wife Sunday.

The way a baby laughs, and the way a dog wags his tail, tells what sort of man occasions them.

Most folks of a practic turn of mind, or have a soul that seeks after nature's beauties, are more interested in the fishing pole now days than in the north pole.

Mr. Williams and Mr. Mitchell partook of the palatable viands at the home of J. T. McCraw Sunday noon.

Millard Richardson and family entertained Mr. Stoffer and family, Mrs. Gamble, and Bro. Humphries and wife Sunday.

L. P. McCraw and family, Master Gallen Sperling, and Mr. and Mrs. Moltham, from near Sterling, took dinner with Tom Sperling and wife Sunday.

Sunday night saw a good crowd at prayer meeting. Mr. Williams, who spoke in the Sunday school, gave a good discourse on the influence of Christian environment on the child, and all who heard him were animated and greatly helped. Mr. Mitchell, Frank Mitchell's father, who is eighty-one years of age, told how he had lived a Christian life for sixty-seven years, and his short talk was rich with scriptural quotations.

Last week, after the rain, when all nature smiled and promised to do so for a whole week, Uncle John McCraw and A. B. Sperling gathered together their fishing tackle and hied away in the old "Studebaker" for Big Beaver. They had hardly arrived when that northern hit the lowlands. These two piscatorial sports were game however, and, though they had to build a fire to keep warm, they stayed with the water and had fish for breakfast as a result.

Last Sunday was the gala day of Mistletoe. Folks that pray had asked for sixty to be present and our reward was seventy-two, and fifteen visitors. "The oldest inhabitant" says it was the greatest day Mistletoe has ever seen—and that old school-house has been here a long time. Mr. Williams, of Apache, gave a short talk on Sunday School Work, and inspired the audience with more of the same kind of "Convention" material that our Superintendent gave us some time ago. Elgin folks were there galore. Mrs. Dr. Gamble, Fred Stoffer and family, and others from that town listened to as fine a sermon as ever fell from the inspired lips of mortal man, by Bro. Humphries. He and his good wife came in as per schedule, and our brother gave us such a sound searching sermon as this writer has seldom heard in years. A collection, or free-will offering was taken for the preacher and $6.85 was the result. SHORTY.
