JAPAN'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

It Seems to Be Too Subtle For Occidental Minds to Master.

Japan was the first foreign country where I saw moving pictures shown. In Yokohama one whole street is given up to moving pictures—Theater street. Great banners hung clear across it with the picturesque Japanese alphabet racing up and down them advertise the respective performances.

On the floor the audience sits, with their feet squarely turned under them, absorbed in the shifting shadows. The subtitles are in English, but so common is English coming to be in Japan that the meaning doesn't go over their heads. There is always some one to whisper the title's meaning.

American manufacturers have labored long and hard to find films that will amuse the Japanese, but their success has not been very marked. No white mind can fathom a Japanese's sense of humor. Our funniest films over there go flat. But in the midst of a death scene in some dramatic film they will suddenly begin to rock with merriment. There is a fortune in it for any one who will locate the Japanese bump of humor and manufacture plays that will hit it.

The Japanese are now manufacturing their own films, but they are not of much interest to white people, as nothing ever happens in them. There is no action. Half a reel may be given up to drinking a cup of tea. But this may be exceedingly funny to the Japanese, for there has been more going on than shows on the surface. By the way they lift their cups, by the way they swing their fan they are passing a message. Two Japanese can talk to each other with their fans, while the white man standing alongside understands nothing of what they are saying.—World Outlook.

A King's Ransom.

The expression "worth a king's ransom," though generally supposed to mean the ransoms paid for a king, more probably refers to that paid to a king. In early times, when armies received practically no regular pay and the soldier's reward was the booty taken from the vanquished, each soldier had a right to the bodies as well as the goods of the prisoners he captured. The conqueror might slay his prisoner, sell him to slavery or set him at liberty on payment of a ransom. But, though it was the common practice in feudal times for the individual captor to receive the ransom for prisoners of low degree, those for princes or great nobles were always paid to the king; hence a king's ransom.

The Wizard.

"It's a remarkable thing," said old Brightboy at tea time, "but I can push my saucer through the handle of my cup."

The others glanced at the small handle and gave the speaker a withering look.
"I can," persisted Brightboy.
"Do it, then," they challenged.
Calmly taking up his spoon, Brightboy passed it through the handle of the cup and then pushed the saucer with it.

WARNS U. S. TROOPS.

El Paso's restlessness over the Mexican situation was increased today following a night without street car traffic to Juarez and without the usual protection of several companies of regular infantry which were ordered back to their quarters at Fort Bliss.

Brownsville, Texas, June 17.—Three Mexicans are reported to have been killed in a clash with United States troops and a band of about 30 bandits 10 miles east of San Benito, Texas, last night. There were no American casualties. Two companies of the 26th infantry were rushed in automobiles from Harlingen to Odmito, 10 miles north of Brownsville, to cut off the retreating bandits who are reported early today heading for the Rio Grande.

San Antonio, June 17.—General Funston today received a message from General Bell at El Paso, stating that General Trevino, commanding the Carranza forces in northern Mexico, is understood to have warned General Pershing that any attempt to send additional troops into Mexico or move the American forces now there, would be considered sufficient provocation for an attack by Trevino's troops.

El Paso, June 17.—Official knowledge of any Carranza threat to attack American troops was denied by General Bell at Fort Bliss today. Advice from Columbus, however, were that a message from General Pershing, relating to a communication from the Carranza general, Trevino, had been relayed to General Funston at San Antonio.

Columbus reported that the communication might be construed as a threat of attack if the United States expedition in Mexico advanced. Precautions against Carranzista attacks on the 280-mile American line stretching from Columbus to Namiquipa have long been in force.

General Bell said today that he advised both Pershing and Funston of the report circulated here that Trevino telegraphed an ultimatum to Pershing. Bell's information came from mining men, he said, declining to make public their names.

He Took It.

"I hear you were held up and robbed of your watch."

"Yes."

"What did you say to the fellow?"

"I tried to be smart. 'Take it from me,' I said."

"What did he say then?"

"Never said anything. Just walked off."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

of Mrs. Edgerton's sister, Miss Nina Paddock, who is here visiting. After all the guests had arrived they were requested to buy tickets at the ticket office, each ticket reading "From Funville to Where-You-Will." Miss Nina, as conductor, then called all aboard and the merry crowd was off for a most enjoyable trip around the world, visiting points startlingly remote from one another. Places were found on the tickets to write the names of the countries and places visited, which were to be guessed from numbered articles placed in various parts of the room. The conversations of the party were numerous broken into by the train boy passing through the car, calling: "Peanuts, chewing gum. Have some bananas, lady, nice and fresh. Latest magazines. Have a book, lady, or a bunch of views to pass away the time. Peanuts." Most of the party purchased chewing gum, to prevent car sickness. The journey finally led up through California, where a stop was made at beautiful Shasta Springs for a drink of Shasta water. At Ashland a 30-minute stop was made for lunch, and as the train came to a stop a rush was made for the lunch counter arranged across one end of the dining room and where Mrs. Hackett and Mrs. Edgerton, in caps and aprons, served a quick lunch of iced tea, sandwiches, ice cream and cake. The travelers declared the lunch counter service to be much improved since their last visit to Ashland. The trip finally ended at home in good old Grants Pass, where all spent the remainder of the evening delightfully with vocal and instrumental music. The invited guests were the Misses Nina and Winifred Paddock, Genevieve Pattillo, Edith Ruaseil, Courtney Ross, Daisy Cole, Florence Smith, Millie Drake, Helena Herman, and Mesdames Pearl Manuel, Pauline Heath, Louise Clark and R. K. Hackett.

Inventor of Roller Skates.
The inventor of the roller skate was a Dutchman named Merlin, who visited England in 1700. Eight years later he exhibited a "pair of skates contrived to run on wheels" at a museum in London and also gave public exhibition of his prowess in skating over a smooth floor, playing a violin the while. It appears, however, that his demonstrations were on occasions rather more exciting than successful, for "he used to fall about and smash into mirrors and pictures which covered the walls of the room."

Genuine Genius.
"Jones is a genius."
"I never thought much of his poems."
"They are not the reason. He succeeds in selling them."—Buffalo Express.

SCANDAL.

Be too broad minded to encourage the sin of scandal. When a gossip begins to relate some scandal in your presence say to him, "Come; let us go to that person and see if the story is true!" Hannah More, the English authoress, always followed that course, and it never failed to work.

"Why Swear, Dear? Use 'Gets-It' for Corns!"

It's the New Plan. Simple. Sure as Fate. Applied in a Few Seconds.

"Why, John, I never knew you to use such language! I've told you several times it's no use to try those bandages, salves, tapes, plasters, and contractions for corns. Here's some 'Gets-It'; it's just wonderful how easy, 'clear and clean' it makes any corn come right off. Takes but a few seconds to apply. It dries at once. Put your sock on right over it—there's nothing to stick or roll up, form a bundle of your toe, or press on the corn. It's painless, simple as rolling off a log. Now put away those knives, razors and saws; use 'Gets-It' and you'll have a sweeter disposition and no more corns and calluses. 'Gets-It' is sold by druggists everywhere. Use a bottle or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in Grants Pass and recommended as the world's best corn remedy; by Geo. C. Sabin.

"You Wouldn't Lose Your Temper, John, If You Used 'Gets-It' for Those Corns!"
