NATIONAL FOREST TIMBER IS SOLD

Forest Supervisor Macduff has just received the approved contract by which the forest service sells 66,000,000 feet of timber in the Siskiyou national forest to the California & Oregon Lumber company, which operates a large sawmill at Brookings, Oregon. This timber, which is nearly all Douglas fir, is situated on the Chetco river and will require about two miles of logging road to take out. Since the company has a large amount of its own timber to take out in front of the national forest timber, cutting of national forest timber is not required to begin until January 1, 1918, and must all be removed by December 31, 1921.

Under the present law 25 per cent of the receipts from the sale of this timber goes to the county school fund; 10 per cent goes to a fund for the construction of roads and trails inside the national forest. The remainder goes to the federal treasury.
