PASSED THROUGH FIRE
BUT KEPT HIS SHOES ON

Papeete, Island of Tahiti, May 31.—(By mail.)—Walking over stones heated white hot is the recent experience of an English newspaper correspondent who makes his home here. He emerged without injury or the slightest trace of fire on shoes or clothing and said he felt no discomfort whatever. He participated in the ceremony of "passing through fire," or "Umiti" as it is called by the Tahitians.

Whatever trick there may be in performing this ceremonial is a secret religiously held by a small clan of natives on the island of Raiatea.

A large pit is dug in which are placed huge, dry logs of wood overlaid with a thick layer of large river stones. The fire then is kindled and made to burn fiercely until the stones become white hot. Native priests, or wizards descend into the pit, notwithstanding the fact that the intense heat radiating from it keeps the onlookers at a distance, and walk barefooted over the heated stones inviting those who have the courage to follow them.

Many theories have been advanced as to why the naked feet of the natives are not scorched, but no satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon yet has been advanced. The Englishman wore his shoes.

SUPERSTITIOUS DUTCH
SEE BOCHE FUTURE

Amerongen, May 17.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The people of Amerongen, old fashioned in their ideas, have been given recently what they regard as a token of the future of Germany.

Two storks every year make their nest on a tower of Amerongen Castle where the former German emperor is staying. This year the female stork returned alone and built her nest. Soon came three male storks but all were beaten off with violent peckings. Two days later a lone male stork arrived and he too was accorded a hostile reception. However, he hovered about perseveringly and fought off a fourth. The combat was watched with intense interest both by the occupants of the castle, among them the two Hohenzollerns. Next day the male stork shared the nest with the female on the nest, from which the eggs had been ejected. The two birds appeared quite happy.

Superstitious villagers compare the non-appearance of the male stork after the winter absence with the disappearance of the erstwhile emperor from Germany after the war. The first widders of the widowed female stork are likened to the various parties which tried to fill the place of the former imperial ruler and were rejected. The persevering male stork is taken as the emblem of the German people determined to become their own rulers. The last fight of the male storks is said to represent the struggle of the German nation to shake off the bolshevik. The ejection of the eggs from the nest is assumed to mean the casting out of all that belonged to the old imperial system of rule, while the happy outcome of contented family life in the nest is looked on as the portent of the happy future of Germany.
