DAMAGE WROUGHT BY FOE IN ITALY

Wanton Destruction and Pillage Revealed in Report.

FOR WHICH HUN MUST PAY

Systematic System of Cruelty and Oppression Inflicted Wherever Enemy Set His Foot—Facts Gathered by Italian Committee Surpass Anything Hitherto Believed Possible—Exceeds in Atrocities Destruction Suffered by France and Belgium.

(Special to the Italian-American News Bureau, Chicago.)

The committee appointed to investigate the violations of right perpetrated in Italy, and the inhuman treatment of prisoners of war has made its first report.

The material to be considered is vast, and the preliminaries disclose the enormous damage done by the enemy wherever he set foot in this country. The losses due to airplane bombing and bombardment along the coast, already gathered by the military governors and placed on file, and of the nonmilitary buildings destroyed or damaged are receiving first attention.

The public has received fragmentary news of what was done. The reality surpasses anything hitherto believed possible. It is the result of a systematic system of cruelty and oppression intended to intimidate or massacre the inhabitants.

At the same time steps were being taken to get all data about the loss of shipping due to submarine warfare. It is estimated already that the Italian merchant navy has lost 1,000,000 tons of shipping, both of sailing and steam vessels.

Heavy Loss in Vessels.

The value of the cargoes sunk is huge, and includes Italian shipments by foreign as well as by Italian vessels. A rough estimate places it at a billion lire. The responsibility of Germany has been established clearly, especially when it comes to shipping belonging to neutrals or allied countries, carrying Italian cargoes, and frequently also the Italian ships, whenever the submarines did not show their colors before attacking.

The devastation of the invaded parts of Italy exceeds perhaps in atrocity and intensity the analogous destruction suffered by Belgium and French departments. For this circumstance which must be set forth in strong relief there were several causes: The density of the most active industrial life; the highly developed intensive agriculture, and the raising of every kind of domestic animal on a large scale.

In an area smaller than one-fiftieth of Belgium, there was a laborious and moderately wealthy people, about one-sixth of that of the whole of Belgium. Workshops gave employment and wealth to every village. Villas and stately palaces with priceless collections of art and important libraries graced the countryside and cities.

At the beginning of the invasion, the German soldiery wanted the first fruits of pillage, and, from the testimony gathered, the other troops were prevented from giving way to excess in order to let the German leaders and soldiers have the first pick of what was worth carrying off. Thus, when the Germans left Italy, the Austrians followed in their footsteps and redoubled their acts of oppression and barbarity to give vent to their insensate and often deluded rapacity.

The depredations fell on the poor as well as the wealthy. Articles of even the slightest value were the objects of their cupidity. No house escaped the iron hand of the invader. All household linen was carried off without pity. Sheets and mattresses were torn from the sick and bedridden, and every sign of resistance was met with inhuman cruelty.

The victuals, even in the poorest houses, were carried off, even to the tables around which the families gathered to eat their miserable food.

Food Carried From Tables.

In the country besides the damage done to every crop, a complete devastation was wrought, cutting down vines and fruit trees purely from wanton savagery, or for the firewood the enemy needed. Thus one of the sources of agricultural wealth for centuries was destroyed.

All metals, as has been related, were the special objects of cupidity and were taken without the least pretext of legality. The number of bells taken from the churches is estimated at 12,000. It gives an idea of the extent and thoroughness of the pillage committed in private houses and public buildings.

The sanctity of sacred places was not respected. In almost all the churches religious paraphernalia were stolen with sacred vestments and articles used in worship, often of greatest historic or artistic value.

Prepared Meat Perfection

OF course every butcher has a perfect right to brag about his sausage, bologna, chopped meat and other things of that sort.

He knows very well what's in them, and the buyer doesn't.

We could tell you things about certain kinds of sausage, for instance, that'd fairly bark with interest.

Only safe way is to trade with a reliable butcher—one whom you know will give you a fair deal. Can we serve you?
