The Lane that Had no Turning.
Since adventuring into Egypt in quest of the raw material of which fiction is made, Mr. Gilbert Parker's Canadian fields have been lying fallow. He returns to them, however, with new vigor, and even fuller power; and the serial which he has just completed finds him at the highest dramatic level to which he has yet attained.

The Lane that Had no Turning is remarkable for its honest strength, through originality, and absorbing interest. The scene of the story is Pontiac (whither Valmond came), and the period the middle fifteenth. The leading character are Madeleine, a famous singer, and her husband, Seigneur of Pontiac, for whom she dares all and risks all. The story gains interest as it progresses and concludes with a striking and wholly unexpected finale.

The "Lane that Had no Turning" began in The Saturday Evening Post for September 26, and run through five numbers.

Salt Rheum Cured.
Dr. Darrin—Dear Sir: It is with great pleasure and a thankful heart I wish to inform you that I am cured of salt rheum, which I have suffered with for 25 years, at times so bad that my hands would crack to the bone, and my body was also affected. I have no words that can express my thankfulness to you.

OUR PARIS EXPOSITION LETTER

The Art Galleries at the Exposition—Paintings and Sculpture of all Ages and Countries

(From Our Regular Correspondent)

Paris, September 10, 1900.

For those who are interested in art, the Paris exposition offers a formidable collection of specimens. There are assembled here, as in a gigantic encyclopedia, all the materials serving in the history of art in the past, making its development by stages, and showing in the present by means of a comparison between the displays of all races, the dominant thoughts, the modes of expression, and the progress achieved throughout the exposition. It is true that these materials are scattered throughout the exposition. In the grand palace of fine arts, one can with a single glance embrace the simultaneous effort of nations in what was formerly called the noble arts; one can recognize what each people has achieved in painting and sculpture in the last ten years, but the conclusions to be drawn from this examination are incomplete. One must go to the Hotel des Invalides, and from there to the Cham de Mars, and study the collections according to the classes, in order to obtain the necessary data as to the present development of art and as to the forms it has taken.

The fine arts, so called, show only one side of the artistic temperament of a nation. Its natural tendencies, its taste are shown as well, or even better, in the special character it gives its work, in the products of its most humble industries as well as in its creation of articles of luxury, in its decoration for interiors, in the forms given to furniture, in the selection of colors, in the arrangement of designs for carpets, for hangings, for goldsmith's work, for crockery, for toys. These represent a country more fully than the fine arts themselves, which often receive their models from foreign countries, are subject to influences and obey fashions in actual contradiction with the genius of their race.
Besides, these are usually produced for the richer classes alone, while the applied arts, exploited for the benefit of the masses, receive inspiration from them and are modeled in accord with their taste. Much better than painting or sculpture do they show the instinct and the artistic capacity of a people.

In this connection, the artistic development of Germany is especially interesting. With all the wonderful progress made by the country since the foundation of the empire in 1870, art has remained more or less stationary. There remain a number of petty states, principalities, grand duchies, toy kingdoms, which have kept feigning importance, among other lines, by the maintenance of local schools of art and universities.
The latter have been forced to adapt themselves to modern conditions and methods of education; but the schools of art, located for more than a century in the same cities, remote from industrial or commercial centers, have continued to seek models in the past and to avoid contact with the life of the present day.

Add to this lack of a common source of education and to the superannated instruction given, the differences in races and temperaments of the German people—from the positive, realistic German of the north to the expansive, sentimental German of the south, influenced by the tastes of the neighboring Italy—and the reason for the lack of homogenous art in the country will be seen.

Among the representatives of the northern school only two are worthy of mention, Werner and Vogel. The pictures of the first are noted for the exactitude of the physiognomies depicted. Vogel knows how to use color, and his work has marks of distinction; but there is a decided monotony.

Liebermann is of quite different type.
During his long stay in Holland he gained the ability to give an atmospheric quality to his pictures. He gives us views of fishermen and laborers engaged in their dreary occupation under the grey sky of Zealand; all refreshingly true and lacking in any attempt at dramatic effect.

The "genre" picture, as shown by Dellegger, in Bavaria, appears frequently.
The principle on which it rests, which consists in a study of types studied separately and arbitrarily culled and grouped, is without authority. There are some notable exceptions to this class among the Germans. William Lieble succeeds in producing studies of colors and lights in which figures play a part, but do not predominate. One of his pictures in the Grand Palace represents a man seated before a window. The curtains are raised and the light falls full on his face. The atmospheric effect is perfect, and one sees the hand of the true artist in every detail. Gotthard Kochl goes a step further in this direction by making the human figure a mere accessory on his canvas. He excels in darkened interiors, in which a ray of light is multiplied in dancing reflections on walls and floor. He has exhibited a view of the inside of a church, in this style, that is a work of the first rank.

Herr Ulde, of Dresden, paints religious subjects with much feeling. He takes his types from the masses, but chooses the models that he thinks accord best or contrast best with the figure of Christ.
He clothes them in rags that might be of any age; they resemble the casual hair robes of the Bedouins, which might well have been worn by the companions of Jesus; but they are also not unlike the torn garments with which the poor of today cover themselves. In his execution, Ulde has returned to Rembrantesque ideas, shrouding in shade all unnecessary details, concentrating the light on the face of Christ. Above all, he breathes into his canvas that motive of charity and pity, differing from that of the evangelists but partaking of their depth and ardor, that inspires the world today.

Max Klinger, of Leipzig, has also the ambition to represent religious subjects.
He seems to have one of the most vigorous temperaments that has appeared in Germany in twenty years, but he does not find his best form of expression in painting. His engravings derive their power from the very qualities that injure his canvas originality of design, roughness of style, strength of execution. In the completed picture, the attitudes are convulsive, the types hideous, the coloring atrocious. It is impossible to give an idea of the vulgarity of his Christ, or of the glaring effects he produces.

Should come directly in the center of the lens—sometimes—not always.
Whether your eye should look through upper, lower, inner or outer part of the lens is immaterial to you, but that you should look through the right part is of the utmost importance. A knowledge of the eye that will enable us to place the lens properly is what we offer you. The wrong glass wrongly placed will injure your eye, the right one rightly adjusted will strengthen it.

Dr. Darrin is prepared to fit glasses to any eye. Those who have not been fortunate to consult the Dr. before now, will have until November 11, to do so.
Dr. Darrin not only tests to fit glasses but treats all curable diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, as well as all chronic, acute and diseases of a private nature, and can be consulted free at the Josephine Hotel.

Tables of the Rail.—XIII.

A minister was going to a city one day to accept a new charge, but the train was very much delayed and the minister lost his temper and swore softly under his breath. Now it happened that one of the new congregation was an absent treatment doctor and with his telescopic mind he read the preacher's thoughts and immediately imparted the information to the rest of the congregation so that when the minister arrived he was given the marble heart, at which he left the town in high disgust.

Moral—He should have left the town in a North-Western Line train. Anyway he ought not to have taken the town with him.

Oregon Mining Stock Exchange.

We present to our readers and those interested in mines and their development the following letter:

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 27, 1900.

ROGER RIVER COURIER.
GENTLEMEN—Your paper is received regularly and read by the visitors in the parlors of the Oregon Mining Stock Exchange. Having passed through our first three months of activity and experiment, we are settled down to solid business and are in a position to assist those interested in mining in the various mining sections of Oregon in creating a market for stocks and bringing money to develop the meritorious prospects. The Exchange is not necessarily for the booming of big mines but simply an encourager of mining in a general way, and will manage so as to give every square mining proposition, a fair show. Some of our brokers have sought other fields for their labor, as is always the case in exchanges and is impossible to suit all notions of everybody, all of the time. In the place of those having gone, new brokers are coming. The directory of the exchange is to be strengthened by the addition of some of the best known business men in Oregon. At our daily calls at 10-30 A. M. there are many visitors, the attendance increasing each week. We hope for your continued encouragement and good wishes and will assist in putting before the public the claims of your section to our utmost, in co-operating with you, in the motto, "Oregon the first mining state."

I am very truly yours,
E. J. HARD, Secretary,
The Oregon Mining Stock Exchange

Farmer Thrifty got the idea that if he could keep a horse without the cost of feeding, it would be a great economy, so he reduced the horse's food a little every day. Unfortunately just as the experiment promised to succeed, the horse laid down and died. Farmer Hard sensesays Farmer Thrifty was a fool. But there are people as much worse than old Thrifty as it is more foolish to work your own body under starvation conditions, than your horse's. But every farmer has plenty to eat. Yes, but it isn't what is eaten, it is what nourishment is obtained from food that decides the question of starvation. It wouldn't do the farmer any good to run a stack of wheat through a thrashing machine which was so out of gear that it didn't get the grain out of one head of wheat in fifty. That's just the way with the dis-ordered stomach. It doesn't get the good out of the food that is eaten.

There is no medicine will so quickly act on the organs of digestion and nutrition, and put the stomach in perfect working order, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It makes pure blood, and rich blood, and puts the body on a plane of perfect health.
"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. F. Fossel, of Aurora Springs, Carroll Co., Arkansas. "I felt there was no help for me. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and within a few days I was improved from the start. I am now in good health."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels healthy.

Washington Letter.

(From Our Regular Correspondent).

WASHINGTON, Sep. 24, 1900.

Uncle Sam has decided to play a lone hand during the remainder of the Chinese game, and has so informed those who were his partners in the early stages of the game. The division of the powers as to what ought to be done made the outlook for trouble in China so threatening, that this government concluded to take no chances of being drawn into a war either against China or any of the allied powers, and in diplomatic terms informed the powers that the U. S. Minister at Pei-king had been directed to arrange the preliminaries for opening negotiations with Li Hung Chang and the other peace envoys of the Chinese government. And he further accentuated the intention of this government to act alone by announcing that excepting a strong guard for the American legation, it would order all American troops out of China at once. What effect if any, this will have upon the plans of the other powers in China, is at yet problematical, but the impression in Washington is general that this government was wise in taking advantage of its first opportunity to honorably withdraw from the alliance. The guard for the American legation will be a strong one of about 2,000 men, artillery cavalry and infantry, and will not be subjected to the orders of Count Waldersee, commander in chief of the allied army.

The troops withdrawn from China will be sent to the Philippines, where the renewed activity of the insurgents makes them needed. In fact, the need for soldiers in the Philippines, is believed to have been a factor in causing the administration to decide to hurry up the withdrawal of the American troops from China. There will be no delay, as Gen. Chaffee was ordered nearly a month ago to hold himself in readiness to withdraw at any time.

Recent news from Cuba has not been pleasing to those Americans who are sincerely desirous of seeing the island governed by the Cubans at an early day, and the prediction is freely made that the programme provided for the withdrawal of our military authority next year will not be carried out. It is the result of the constitutional elections that has caused this uneasiness as to Cuba's immediate future. Unless those who ought to know are mistaken, a majority of the delegates elected to the constitutional convention represent the worst elements on the island, and there is no probability that they will formulate a constitution that will provide for a stable government or be accepted by our congress, to which it must be submitted when complete. Officials will not discuss the matter, saying that the constitution will speak for itself when finished, and the only duty of the president in connection therewith will be to transmit it to congress. Private letters received in Washington say there is much alarm felt among that class of Cubans who are not seeking personal profits out of the government of the island. They are afraid that congress may accept the constitution that will be prepared by the convention, and will take steps to inform congress and the people of this country of the true character of the majority of the men who will be members of that convention. General Fitzhugh Lee, who is in Washington on leave of absence, said of the coming constitutional convention in Cuba: "Everything in connection with it is problematical and experimental. If the Cubans can frame a constitution and prove their ability to govern themselves, so well and so good, but if they can't do this for themselves, well, then somebody will have to do it for them."

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, although politically opposed to the administration, highly commends its Chinese policy, which he declares to be conservative. He thinks it calculated to remove danger of our becoming involved in a common war of the powers against China, of which he says: "The United States cannot afford to run the risk of accepting the fruits of such a war, whether successful or unsuccessful.
We cannot become involved with the European powers. The American policy is separate and distinct from the policy of other governments. It is above board and open. Our ends and our aims are not identical with those of any other country. We cannot afford to ally ourselves with any of them. We may co-operate with one or all of them, but we do not need to agree with them."

Prof. J. W. Jenks, who has been in Europe for three months making an investigation of trusts for the information of the United States industrial commission, has submitted a preliminary report. He found that Germany led in the number of trusts in Europe, the courts of that country having upheld contracts with them in decisions, and that they flourish in England and Austria and are beginning to make headway in France. In both Austria and Germany, banks are active in the promotion of trusts and frequently control them. He learned in Germany that they are trying to form an international trust in certain lines of iron manufacture, to include German, English and American manufacturing concerns.

An exchange wants to know what it becomes the $20,000,000 worth of chewing gum that is sold in the United States every year. That's easy enough. Just feel around under the chairs and sofas and benches and you'll find it.

Dr. Darrin's Place of Business.

Dr. Darrin gives free consultation at Hotel Josephine, Grants Pass, from 10 to 5 and 7 to 8 daily. All curable chronic, acute and private diseases confidentially and successfully treated. Circulars and question blanks sent free to any address, and correspondence solicited. Most cases can receive home treatment after one visit to the doctor's office. Batteries and belts furnished with full directions for their use. Rupture, tumors, varico-cele, hydrocele and stricture cured in every case. Diseases of women an important specialty, such as weakness, displacements, ulceration, painful, irregular and suppressed menstruation, quickly relieved. The poor treated free, except medicines, from 10 to 11 daily. Those able to pay treated for half former prices for another month.

Private Words for Women.
The eminent and successful electromagnetic physician, Dr. Darrin, has discovered and perfected a system of treatment that has caused a revolution in the treatment of female diseases. Wherever their treatment is tested and known it has done away with all dosing with nauseous drugs and surgical operations whereby so many precious lives have been lost.

As a discovery, it ranks with Harvey's discovery of the circulation of the blood.
It has proved in more than a thousand cases of the worst kind to be a positive cure for the following female diseases: Ovarian tumors, polypos uterina and dropsy of the womb, inflammation, congestion and falling of the womb, leucorrhoea, painful and suppressed menstruation, flooding, frequent urination, bearing down pains, backache, headache, hacking cough, melancholy, absence of ambition or desire to live, or, in fact, any complaint having its origin in a disordered state of the generative and accompanying organs, whether from contagious diseases, hereditary, accident, tight-lacing, miscarriage or other causes.

Their method of treatment is harmless, pleasant and mild. It is applied directly to the womb without the use of instruments; can be applied by the patient themselves, thus securing correct local treatment at home, and its application is easy and simple. Its curative action on the inflamed, congested and ulcerated parts is immediate.

Dr. Darrin refrains from making public the names of hundreds of ladies who have been restored to health with due deference to the delicacy of their afflictions.

Dr. Darrin can be consulted free at the Hotel Josephine, Grants Pass.
Hours 10 to 5 and 7 to 8 daily. The poor free, except medicines. The cure of seminal weakness, lost moustard, varicocele, hydrocele, gonorrhoea, syphi-litis and stricture a specialty, as well as all chronic diseases. Batteries and belts furnished if necessary. Eyes tested and glasses fitted.

Deafness Cured in 10 Minutes.
Mr. Editor: I wish to state through your columns that Dr. Darrin, cured me of deafness in 10 minutes. Refer any one to me at 423 Clay Street, Portland.

Absolutely Pure BAKING POWDER

No inferior or impure ingredients are used in Royal for the purpose of cheapening its cost; only the most highly refined and healthful.

Royal Baking Powder imparts that peculiar sweetness, flavor and delicacy noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

Alum is used in making cheap baking powder. If
