RICHMOND.

Nothing new has transpired since last report. Business remains quiet and unchanged.

The question of local option is now engaging the attention of the average Richmonder, and we may expect fun in this line in April. This case will be tried under the title of "Wet vs. Dry."

A few hands only are employed on the Custom House repairs, the main work not commenced yet.

Typographical Union No. 90 are pushing the boycott against Bangham Bros., the only printing establishment in the city that has refused to do fair by organized labor.

The bricklayers and carpenters have a thorough organization, and expect to improve the condition of their trade much this spring.

It is hardly necessary to give in detail the various industries here in whose various fields workmen in a body have of late organized.

Business has a fair outlook in Trenton at the present time. The iron mills are running on better time than for several months; the potteries are working steady with good sales; the brick yards are about to resume work at an increase of wages; the cotton mills are kept busy and no reductions in force or wages are attempted; the building trades are thoroughly organizing with a splendid outlook for spring work, in every department of industry the moral effect of 6,000 or 7,000 organized wage-workers is being felt.

A number of new industries are expected to open up here in the summer, among them a watch factory which is now in course of erection and will furnish employment for more than two hundred skilled artisans.

The situation existing at present between the street-car companies and their employees. A bill was introduced into the Legislature two weeks ago, which restricts the companies in working their drivers and conductors over twelve hours. The pay of the men is $2 per day. The companies contend that they cannot afford to pay the men the present rate of wages and reduce the number of working hours at the same time. The plea set forth by these corporate bodies in being unable to comply with the demands of their employees, is that the principle company at least is saddled with an annual Park tax of $100,000, which the city demands in consideration of the franchise granted. It is contended by many that this company can meet this obligation, reduce the hours of its employees without a cut in wages, and still pay a handsome dividend to stockholders.

The Federation of Labor presented the bill to the Legislature, but organized labor, as well as our citizens in general, were taken all back on Friday when it was learned that the House of Delegates had passed the bill with an amendment tacked on, which relieves the Baltimore city street-car company of any direct tax whatever. In this flank movement there are many who openly express their belief that money was freely used in buying up the majority of the delegates in the House, among whom are several professed friends of labor.

The shoemakers are hard at work in agitating in the interest of organization; they have also a fair prospect of seeing abolished speedily the system of contract shoemaking in the penitentiary.

Housepainter Union, No. 1, has consolidated with Hope Assembly of House-painters, K. of L.

The Knights of Labor are taking active steps in arranging for the election of a hall.

About 200 shipcarpenters and caulkers collectively who went out on strike last August are still idle and have good the shock of battle like men. The appeal for assistance is being met with liberality by the Knights of Labor and the Unions generally.

The Federation of Labor declared a boycott against the Steiff piano, manufactured in this city, also the Davis piano, said to be manufactured in some obscure part of New York city and which is designated by pianomakers as a sort of music box.

The hands employed at the Northern Central railroad shops will hold a meeting this week to try to get piece work. It is thought by the men employed by this company that the proposed Relief Association will fall through owing to the opposition shown toward it by employees.

Baker Bros. glass manufacturers, put out fire to-day in one factory, in order to make repairs.

About 200 butchers met in Frohman Hall on Sunday afternoon to further consider the advisability of closing their stores every evening, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock. The chairman, Mr. Thomas Collings, in his remarks stated that he was pleased to see that the butchers of Cleveland were coming forward to advocate the early closing movement, though at the same time he did not think it prudent to at once rush upon the public with the movement, but that they should be gradually brought to understand the importance of early closing.

The butchers present who had signed the petition resolved to close their stores at 7 o'clock in the evening from April 1st.

Mr. W. J. Lynch moved that a committee of five be appointed on permanent organization, and that they formulate a constitution and by laws and report at the next meeting. The chairman in his remarks on this motion stated that there had been a great deal of jealousy among the dealers in this city and he would like to see the meat market men come together in a social way every two weeks, and then they would not undermine each other. "Let us be prepared to meet all monopolies," said the speaker, "on a fair and square ground. If they can beat us let them take possession and we will go West."

The early closing movement by the dealers in merchandise on the West Side, went into effect on Monday night and promptly at 8 o'clock the lights were turned out.

A mass meeting on the eight-hour question was held in Turn Hall on Friday, the District Assembly K. of L., called the meeting and good speakers were in attendance. A series of resolutions were adopted favoring a reduction of working hours.

At the present time the building out look in this city is not very bright. Contractors are timid to accept contracts until the eight-hour question on May 1st is settled. They state there will be a number of strikes which will result in their having unfinished work left on their hands.

Knights of Labor and Strikes.

General Master Workman Powderly of the Knights of Labor in a recent interview said: "If many of the men who are striking would only display a little more common sense and use a little more patience they would get all they are striking for and save their time and money in the bargain. If they would exercise proper moderation in their negotiations with their employers, and submit their claims, firmly made and properly presented, to arbitration, I am free to say that I am sure that nine out of ten cases that end in a strike could be as satisfactorily arranged without resorting to such an extreme and generally doubtful expedient. Indeed, in the nine cases there would be no necessity for a strike. Had such advice as this been followed, the strike in Manchester, N. H., would not have taken place and much suffering been averted. Mr. Powderly claims that no less than 350 disputes between employers and employed have been settled by the Executive Board by friendly arbitration since January 1. Arbitration is coming to the front in the settlement of labor disputes."

Lynn Bee.

STRIKES SHOULD BE AVOIDED.

Strikes are terrible remedies to be resorted to only in desperate cases, and then even only after all other remedies have failed. Too frequently by far the strikers are hasty and inconsiderate. They go out in a body without having fully counted the cost and dangers of their course. If they succeed it is all right, but if they fail it is one of those cases where the second estate is worse than the first. Strikes this year have largely been a success. There was recently a monster strike in New York city, 15,000 employees connected with the surface street cars that had tied up insisting upon modifications of the terms and prices of services. They struck their points, at least their main points, and the remaining ones are submitted to arbitration. These men were fully prepared for the contest. They had a most perfect organization and had fully and carefully considered the situation, hence the result. Besides this, they knew the profits of the business enabled the road to pay the prices demanded, and even more. The success of which the papers are now almost daily filled, of strikes made under the regulations of Knights of Labor are successes because of the justice of their cause and their perfect organizations, and because of the cool and deliberate way in which they enter upon their work. The Knights of Labor were not connected with the great strike of Manchester, N. H., in which 5,000 laborers lost nearly three full weeks' time and in the end gained nothing. It was an officer of the Knights of Labor that advised them to return to their work and whose advice they accepted. If they had been actuated by the Knights of Labor principles in the first place, they would not have gone into the strike. It is to be noted that these workers do not organize new assemblies among employees who are engaged in or about to embark in a strike.—Burlington Independent.
