A Varteiy of Short

Articles on a Variety of Subjects.

Somehow the Ohio republicans are not as confident of carrying the states as those elsewhere are. Jimmy Campbell is an ideal candidate; he doesn't always win, but he always scares the opposition.

Perhaps the English editors who say the Monroe doctrine has nothing to do with the Venezuelan boundary dispute may change their minds before they are much older.

Cuba's worst enemies in the United States are the political demagogues who are selfishly trying to play upon the public sympathy for the revolutionists.

The overcoming of a dangerous Chicago madman by the burning of sulphur in the furnace furnishes Uncle Sam with a hint which may become useful if Congress gets too obstreperous.

What does Senator Teller mean by wishing John Sherman were ten years younger? What would Teller's silver constituents think of his becoming a Sherman man?

Atlanta changed its name to Clevelandville during the visit of President Cleveland and his Cabinet, but had Mrs. Cleveland gone the name would have been Francesville.

With Teller taffying Sherman and "Little Billie" Chandler taffying the silver men, it is not surprising that some people don't know "where they are at."

If Benj. Harrison fails to capture that nomination he may feel disposed to let the public into a few of his political recollections.

Some day Tom Platt may spring "What I know about Presidential Conventions" upon the book market.

There are parts of Senator Sherman's book which should be sent out as democratic campaign documents.

It's a mighty good thing for John Sherman that some of the men he criticises in his book are dead. John knows who to jump on.

Why doesn't Mr. Harrison also publish some recollections? Perhaps he knows of some corrupt deals, too.

John Bull is preparing to swallow Ashanti, but he will not be allowed to even build a shanty on this continent, outside the limits of his own territory.

Mrs. Waller says Ambassador Eustis is treating her imprisoned husband with the "utmost consideration and tenderness;" the republican editors that Mr. Eustis is neglecting or ignoring him. Which is most worthy of belief?

New York's "sparrow cops" don't know a "joke" from an ordinary bicycle rider. That's why one of them run in the Vanderbilt's English "joke" for scorching.

The Corbett Fitzsimmons fight was called off, instead of pulled off.

It begins to look like Mr. Harrison would be quarantined by the voters as well as by the scarlet fever.

After the republican Congress has been in session a few months democratic prospects will look much brighter.

Some of the professional reformers now out of a job might offer their services to the Sultan of Turkey, who has promised to "reform" Armenia.

Gov. Morton is having his portrait painted, but there is no probability that it will be needed for campaign purposes.

Now that Mr. Reed has consulted his friends on the republican National Committee, what does he think of the outlook?

McKinley and Harrison cannot even console with each other over their waning chances.

The top round of the ladder of impudence would seem to have been reached when John Sherman accuses others of corrupt political bargaining.

We had the pleasure of hearing Bob and Alf Taylor Tuesday night at Columbia in the lecture of "Yankee Doodle and Dixie." Bob, who eloquently represents Dixie, assumes that there is no "New South." He maintains that sectional strife still exists, always should and will, saying that Mason and Dixon's line may not exist in law, but that it does, in fact, as the dividing line between cold bread and hot biscuit, and that it will always be drawn as long as Yankee Doodle says 'you hadn't ought to do it,' and Dixie replies, 'I done done it.' The war, he says, brought this line out vividly by placing Yankee Doodle on the pension roll and Dixie on crutches. There is a North, South and West, each separate and distinct in its sentiments, but the time will never come when they will not be united for common interest and against a common foe.
