

Milady in Gold Attire

JUST as gorgeous and just as beautiful as it can be, this gown in one of the many wonderful gold shades shows the cleverest handling of the most extreme ideas in this winter's modes.

of draping in the best way. There is a pretty fichu of net worn under the bodice, and a standing ruff about the neck. A finish of long loops of black velvet ribbon in a narrow width is placed at the termination of the neck ruff at each side.

CREPE AND CHIFFON FOR ACCESSORIES THAT MATCH HAT

IN keeping with the ideas of the season, which show a preference for muffs and neck pieces to match the hat, crepe has been utilized to make very chic accessories to be worn with mourning millinery.

ration, lend themselves with unusual appropriateness to this material. The crepe set of three pieces, hat, muff and scarf, shown in this picture, illustrates how successfully this beautiful fabric may be used in this way.

Color Contrast. Sometimes no color contrast is to be found in a dress. And then the dainty woman provides it by the flower which she tucks into the corsage or waist.

The small round hat with slightly rolling brim is covered with the material put on smoothly. The crown is small and puffed, and the odd standing ornament is made of a hemmed strip of crepe wrapped about a supporting wire and ruffled about it at the top.

The scarf is only a plain length of chiffon with its edges finished with a wide border of crepe. The ends are gathered and finished with an ornamental made of folds of crepe and finished with a bound scarf end of the fabric. This is a strip of the material bound with a narrow bias fold of crepe like that which trims the muff.

A ready made muff bed lined with black silk and covered with it as an interlining makes the construction of the muff a simple matter. Five deep folds of crepe are placed over each side and sewed down at the ends. A strip bound of the material is brought across the top, tacked down one side, covering the ends of the plait and tied in a knot with hanging end as a finish.

The set is as handsome as anyone could wish and only ordinary skill in sewing is required to make it.

Refreshening Furs. Any fur coat, muff or neck piece that needs freshening up may be greatly improved in appearance simply by brushing with a soft brush and water, to which one tablespoonful of pure alcohol has been added for every quart.

Ribbon Sets. Detachable sleeve trimmings to match the waist garniture are easily made, and afford a desirable way of rejuvenating a last season's blouse. These ribbon sets are delightful bits of work for leisure moments and quite transform an otherwise plain waist.

BETTER THAN HASTE

Slow Congressional Deliberation Proper.

Under Autocratic Rule of Former Republican Speakers Important Measures Had Not the Proper Consideration Necessary.

Certainly no one can accuse the Democratic congress of being headlong in legislation. The Underwood-Simmons tariff bill had been under consideration in committee for months before it was submitted to the house, and after its passage there the leisurely senate debated it for just four months before taking favorable action.

The currency bill seems to be following much the same procedure. Though President Wilson had hoped to have it disposed of in the special session, it is now predicted that serious debate upon it can hardly begin before December 8, and that probably two months more will be required for discussion.

It all seems provokingly slow, but it may well be believed that the cautious methods followed by senators and representatives are the best for both the country and the dominant party. It was always brought up against Speaker Thomas B. Reed, who introduced the autocratic rules that led to the revolt against Cannon, that he boasted that under his regime the house had ceased to be a deliberative body. That cannot be said of the present congress.

West Indorse Administration. "Out in the western country the people are approving President Wilson's administration," remarked A. C. Milner of Chicago at the Willard. Mr. Milner was one of the developers of irrigation projects in the western country and is a strong supporter of the administration.

"The national banks," continued Mr. Milner, "are a unit against the proposed currency measure, but the state banks are not opposed to currency legislation. There is a general impression that the president is going to force through his program of legislation and that a currency law will be written on the statute books before the present session of congress is ended. The national banks are opposing governmental control, of course. I did not find that the people were greatly interested in politics. They appear to have accepted the tariff revision with the utmost equanimity, and are ready for any other legislation."

When a Tradition Disappears. The belief has been assiduously cultivated in this country that protectionism is essential to its prosperity. This theory became a tradition with a generation that did not know that the most rapid industrial development in the nation's history came before the war in an era of low tariff.

Millions of persons have been imbued with the belief that a reduction in tariff means business distress and hard times. With a multitude of politicians this tradition has become their stock in trade and their chief political asset.

Higher Plane of Debate. In times past the tariff in congress has attracted many men whose knowledge of the subject was scant. In the debates they used the matter of the stump. They marshaled catch phrases and poured them out in profusion. The rich were getting richer and the poor poorer. Robber barons were hogging everything. Give the poor man a chance. And so on.

Such deliberations were principally assertion and came from men without practical knowledge of business of any kind. They were particularly unfamiliar with big business and could not have found their way around unassisted in a manufacturing plant.

By pitching the recent debate on a higher plane, both Republicans and Democrats served their parties and their policies.

Mr. Underwood's Position. Mr. Underwood has never appeared to be anything like the type of radical free trader that wants to hack away every duty, whether or not, as the Republicans claimed. His general course in congress has indicated that he has never desired to exterminate or even weaken American industries.

The President's Duties. The people chose Woodrow Wilson as their president and voted the Democrats into power because they wished certain policies carried out. Few of the Democrats who supported their party in the recent campaign care anything whatever about the offices. What they wish is to see their party and its president make a record that shall commend itself to the people. That is all they ask. The country as a whole is deeply interested in the work that is to be done.

Robbed the People. It will be a surprise to many to know that those supposed to be made of leather are often made of "leather board," straw board, pine board and other things. Decidedly, we ought to know what we are getting for our money. We buy $600,000,000 worth of shoes annually. Besides this we under the recent protective tariff, a tax which enhanced the price of shoes and enabled the shoe machinery trust and the combined makers to rule the roost.

HEAD ITCHED AND BURNED

604 Greenville Ave., Staunton, Va.—"My head broke out in pimples which festered. It itched me so that I would scratch it till my head got all most in a raw sore. My head had been that way all summer, itching and burning till I couldn't sleep in any peace.

MUST RESTRAIN HIS GRIEF

Everybody Except the Clergyman is Privileged to Weep During Wedding Ceremony.

A peculiarity of bridegrooms was pointed out by the curate, who asked arithmetically for a medical certificate showing that he had a cold in the head.

"But that is self-evident," said the doctor. "You don't need a doctor's word for that. You are all choked up and your eyes are watery."

Bridesmaids may snifle, mothers sob, and bride and bridegroom falter, but the man who ties the knot must remain dry-eyed and clear-voiced. Emotion on his part is construed as grief over the bride's bad bargain, and the best-natured bridegroom on earth resents it.

Beat Signs of Genius. "My son," said the Old Philosopher, "when you hear a fellow talkin' night and day about 'the fire of genius,' just trail him to where he lives at and you'll very likely find a cold hearth and the wind whistlin' through the cracks in his dwelling place. I much prefer to hear 'em talk about the 'strength' of genius, and see 'em give an example of it by swingin' an ax and choppin' trees stove-length. You see the freight twinkle" from the windows of that feller's home, and you can lay yer last dollar on it that his table's always got enough to say grace over."

Friendly Qualities. If you wish to make friends your heart must be kind, your tongue gentle, your motives disinterested and you must cultivate the blessed faculty of responsiveness.

Education. Education is the whole effect of environment. The individual is in some way affected by everything with which he comes in contact, from the first moment of life until the end. Teaching is therefore a factor in evolution. It is a means of carrying on the development of the individual. Man is as yet incomplete; it is likely that all his best exercises still lie before him. He must be ready for what is to come.

OTHER SIDE OF THE CASE

Accidental Meeting Almost Caused Man to Consider a Revision of His Previous Ideas.

"I see," said the man who had been scanning a newspaper as he enjoyed his cigar—"I see that at the present time there are no less than six counts and lords here with us in search of American brides."

"Yes," briefly replied the one addressed. "They want rich ones, of course."

"It's got to be a real matter of business."

Untold Story. An irrepressible young woman who interviews theatrical people for a Chicago newspaper had a bright idea recently. She was gathering material from Frank McIntyre at the Illinois theater. The generously proportioned comedian had confided to her that he knew several good stories. He knew that they were good, because they had made him laugh. "And," he added, "I can tell six to the other fellows' one."

Figurative. "A schoolboy of eleven," said Prof. Thomas R. Lounsbury, Yale's authority on English, "once gave an apt illustration of figurative usage. He gave it to a composition, writing: 'A figurative saying is, 'to keep the wolf from the door.' It does not mean to keep a real live wolf from the door. A good instance is when the landlord comes for the rent. He knocks at the door and you keep awful quiet, in the hope that he will think there is nobody in and go away.'
