

RUGBY NEWS

J. W. News, Editor & Proprietor.

Saturday, Nov. 15, 1890.

The "News" is published every Saturday at the Publishing Office, Central Avenue Rugby, Morgan County, Tenn.

This paper is entered at the Post-office at Rugby, Tenn., as second-class mail matter.

County and General Intelligence from the whole District and notices of local events will be cheerfully received.

Correspondence on topics of interest is invited. The name and address of the writer must accompany all communications, if for publication.

SALUTORY.

It is with pleasure not unmixed with anxiety that we take the editorial chair of the "News." If we can please our readers, establish the "News" on a firm basis and be of any help to Rugby we shall be more than pleased. When we think of the failure of those who have been before us in this journalistic field, we feel somewhat anxious as to the result.

If we publish a live newspaper it will be certain to help the town, and if the citizens give a helping hand, the paper will stay.

We are not egotistical enough to say that we shall publish a live newspaper, but we are going to try.

We shall be ready at all times to advocate anything that will be beneficial to Rugby and vicinity.

It is an easy matter to read the past, but to read the future is very uncertain work.

Let us glance over the past of Rugby and perhaps we will find the key that will unlock the future.

During the eleven years past, Rugby has experienced all of the numerous changes of fortune.

Having had one taste of a boom, it has looked continually for another. For some years the present was disregarded in hopes of what the future might bring forth.

It was a long time before the settlers realized that they must "hoe their own row" and not look to the Board of Aid for all of their prosperity. When this finally came about, those that were not adapted to make their way, under the circumstances in which they were placed, gradually withdrew.

Our population has now settled down to two classes; those who can make a living here and those who have sufficient means to live on.

Rugby has been somewhat unfortunate in many of its settlers.

We find many sections of America in which the wilderness has been changed into fine farms, where the pioneers labored under many disadvantages unknown here.

The soil will average as good or better here, than one-half of the United States and is better watered than three-fourths of the country.

Our winters are very mild in comparison with those farther north and are not so severe when compared with those farther south.

For health it is hard to find places that will compare with ours. The rainfall is usually sufficient throughout the year and we have less very wet or very dry seasons than almost any other section of the country.

Land is cheap and not hard to clear. Stock can find their living in the woods during the greater part of the year. Now, with all these advantages, why have we not prospered more?

As we said before, Rugby was unfortunate in many of its earlier settlers. We mean nothing against them as individuals, for many of them were numbered among our best citizens. The fact is, they were not adapted to being pioneers.

Let us look at how the early settlers managed in the timbered sections of the North. If they paid for their land and had a little money left, they were well-off. A house was built according to their means.

No more stock was purchased than was absolutely needed, for land must be cleared before anything could be raised to feed them on, as there was no range. As fast as the land could be cleared, and usually it was done by their own labor, it was seeded down to grass.

They increased their stock as fast as they had feed for them.

We have known some here to invest largely in stock the first thing, and when winter came, there was nothing to feed them. The result was, a loss and dissatisfaction with the country. A large proportion of those who failed here, had more means than nine-tenths of the settlers in the northern states had.

Rugby has lived and is more prosperous than it was during the boom of ten years ago. Some will dispute this, but we insist that there is more solid prosperity in the depend-on-yourself feeling of to-day, than ever was in the time when all looked to the Board for everything.

What will the future be? The future of Rugby will depend, in a great measure, upon what the present citizens may do. Learning from the experience of the past, let us not look to much towards uncertainties, but take advantage of what there is before us.

What kind of people do we want here and what inducements can we offer them? We do not want those that will make a failure. What are we going to ask them to come here for? We have good water-power for factories, but it will take more influence to bring those, than we possess as private citizens. They must be brought by the high power. It is the small farmers whom we can influence the best.

There is an abundance of good land to be had at a reasonable price and if taken hold of by the right men, will make productive farms.

The whole section along the railroad, south of us, will furnish good markets. For the men who will come here, clear up the land, get it in grass and put on stock as fast as they can raise feed, there is a good opening. The man who comes here and buys his stock before he raises any feed, will go away wiser and poorer.

Under the present circumstances we must look in the farming communities, especially in those to the north of us, for the settlers to whom we can offer inducements.

If you know of one person that you think would succeed here, urge him to come. Do not, for anything ask a person to come who you think will make a failure of it.

There is no one that has more faith in Rugby, or a greater desire for its prosperity than we have, but we think it best to treat the matter candidly and truthfully. We shall never, knowingly, offer a false inducement to any person to locate here.

THIS GOOD OLD STAB-BY accomplishes for everybody exactly what is desired. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mustang Liniment is found in its wide-spread applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine. The Housewife needs it in case of accident. The Carpenter needs it for his hands and his men. The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench. The Miner needs it in case of emergency. The Hunter needs it—can't get along without it. The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his stock yard. The Stockman needs it in his barn and on his horse. The Horse-dancer needs it—it is his best friend and best reliance. The Druggist needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble. The Railroad man needs it and will need it so long as he lives in a world of accidents and dangers. The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, limb and comfort which surround the pioneer. The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when these come the Mustang Liniment is wanted at once. Keep a Bottle in the House. "The best of all remedies." Keep a Bottle in the Factory. In immediate use in case of accidents, sprains, cuts and bruises. Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.
