ROOSEVELT'S NEXT MESSAGE

Forecast of What the President Will Recommend.

PUBLICITY AS A TRUST CURE.

A "Tariff Commission" Will Be Asked For.—Other Features.—Views of An Arkansas Congressman.

St. Louis Republic's Forecast.

President Roosevelt has already done considerable work on his annual message to be sent to congress when that body assembles next December. It will be his second message to that body and it will probably be far more important than his first, both to the country and to him. In his first message he did not go much beyond recommending the carrying out of many important things that had been sanctioned by his predecessor. In his coming message President Roosevelt will discuss a number of questions that require recommendations original with him and bearing upon his future and upon the future of his party. Foremost in importance of these will be the tariff and trust questions.

The President's main recommendation as to dealing with the tariff will, it is understood, be for the establishment of a permanent tariff commission, as far as possible, a nonpartisan, unprejudiced body, that will at once take up consideration of all facts connected with the tariff with a view to wise recommendation to congress for changes here and there. The President will not take a radical attitude as to the adjustment of the tariff. He will favor tariff changes, but will say that congress, without the assistance of a trained body like a commission, cannot take up with wisdom and justice the changes that are needed and must be made. The president will point out that Congress is surrounded in the readjustment of tariff schedules by influences for or against such changes that greatly hinder that untrammelled consideration which Congress itself would prefer to give. By receiving facts and figures from an expert body, however, Congress would be in position to act without a number of long hearings.

DEALING WITH THE TRUSTS.
On the trust question the President will follow the line of his recent speeches to a considerable extent. He will recommend that safe and judicious legislation be attempted by Congress for the regulation and control of trusts, but will likewise take the position that pending the enactment of laws that may be of assistance, consideration may be given into of the question of a constitutional amendment giving thorough Federal control of these mighty institutions. The president believes that the Government should go slowly in a matter of such vital concern as this, but holds that with serious and earnest thought a way will be found that will meet all proper requirements and not interfere with the smooth running of financial affairs throughout the country.

It is understood that Attorney General Knox is engaged in the preparation of a measure that will go before Congress, supplementing laws in existence for the control of the trusts, and that the President may make a specific recommendation for the enactment of this law, taking the position that it is a good legal step and within the limits of the constitution.

With other things in connection with remedial legislation for the trust danger, the President will again recommend publicity of the business of all corporations. He holds, and has held for years, that the trusts are a source of evil through their ability to water their stocks and to create fictitious conditions that will open danger to the entire business of the country. In their ability to carry on dangerous work without the general public being apprised of the conditions surrounding them, the President holds that they are hurtful to the general welfare. The President takes the position that to show the difference between sound business enterprises and those more or less open to suspicion, the Government ought to have the right to inspect and examine the workings of the corporation engaged in interstate commerce. Publicity will reveal the facts so that what further remedies are needed may be determined. Without these facts the trusts may force legislation that will bring trouble upon those not needing punishment as well as those that do need correction and supervision.

The coal strike will be discussed in the message, but the President will withhold his writing of that portion until the last, in view of a possible report early in December by the commission that is going to take up the question. Should the commission not be ready to report by that time, the President will reserve any pointed discussion of labor and capital questions until the report has been received. He could then transmit this report to congress in a special message accompanied by his own recommendations.

CUBAN RECIPROCITY.
The President will push his ideas on reciprocity with Cuba and will insist that no further time be lost in carrying out an understanding with the little republic.

Statehood for the territories will be urged by the President. In fact, the friends of statehood secured the assistance of the President at the close of the last session and obtained from certain senators assurance that the statehood bills would receive full consideration.

Conditions in the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii will make a chapter in the message, with notes on the progress toward good government and peace.

The President will not make any specific recommendation in relation to the Panama canal, but will treat of the proposed route and the progress made toward securing a clear title thereto.

The President will again discuss the need of abundant protection to the great forests of the country. He will also renew his recommendations for legislation that will not recognize the Indian as an individual and not as a member of a tribe. The President holds that the tribal relations should be broken up, and funds be divided and the lands and moneys of the Indians allotted to them individually, so that they may have an opportunity of proving whether they are making any progress as citizens.

TARIFF COMMISSION WON'T WORK.

Washington, Oct. 29.—"The people of the country are demanding a revision of the tariff," remarked Congressman Brundidge of Arkansas, who is in the city, "and they'll not accept any tariff commission appointed by the president as an answer to their demand. According to the newspapers, the president will ask congress to let a commission of tariff experts settle the question, and it may be that the republicans in the House and Senate will be willing to shift the responsibility and turn the subject over to a commission."

"But," added Judge Brundidge, "the scheme will not work. The people were fooled once by a 'tariff commission,' and they will not be fooled a second time. Congress never paid the slightest attention to the commission's recommendations. The discussion of the tariff cannot be delayed much longer, no matter how much the trusts and the administration try to sidetrack it. Like Banquo's ghost, it will not down."

American's Famous Beauties.

Look with horror on Skin Eruptions, Blisters, Sores, Pimples. They don't have them, nor will any one, who uses Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It glorifies the face. Eczema or Salt Rheum vanishes before it. It cures sore lips, chapped hands, chilblains. Infallible for Piles. 25c at C. M. Fallon's drug store.

TRADING ON TREASURERSHIP.

Republicans Will Sacrifice Anything for Treasurer.

DESPERATE CAMPAIGN METHODS.

An Old Veteran Turns Down the Bosses.—A Few Cheap Campaign Lies Launched by the Republicans Against Tittle.

"The fight in this county has gotten down to the basis of booze and a five-dollar bill, especially on the treasurership," remarked a prominent citizen to THE UNION Wednesday morning, and it certainly looks like it.

A certain 'patriotic' representative of the local republican clique approached an old and decrepit G. A. R. veteran, who had openly stated his intention to support Chas. P. Tittle for county treasurer, and offered him five dollars if he would 'get in line' and support the republican candidate. Although himself a loyal republican, the old veteran spurned the proffered bribe with the remark that he would still support Mr. Tittle if the republican managers made the offer a thousand dollars. He was not for sale, nor could they brow-beat the old fellow into line. There are others like him throughout the county.

One or two republican campaign lies have showed up, aimed at Mr. Tittle, but his standing as a man and his record as an official are too clean to be injured by any such methods. Yet the whole republican clique seems to be sacrificing everything on the ticket in an effort to defeat Mr. Tittle.

His Life in Peril.

"I just seemed to have gone all to pieces," writes Alfred Bee, of Welfare, Tex., "biliousness and a lame back had made life a burden. I couldn't eat or sleep and felt almost too worn out to work when I began taking Electric Bitters, but they worked wonders. Now I sleep like a top, can eat anything, have gained in strength and enjoy hard work." They give vigorous health and new life to weak, sickly, run-down people. Try them. Only 50c at C. M. Fallon's drug store.

AN IMPORTANT MEASURE.

Want Wyoming Inspection Law for South Dakota.

John D. Hale, one of the best known cattlemen in western South Dakota, is a candidate for representative over in Meade county on the democratic ticket. If elected, Mr. Hale proposes to push the adoption in this state of the excellent inspection law now in force in Wyoming. Among other things, this law provides that no shipment of stock can be made without inspection by the sheriff of the county and on a clearance issued by him, and on the first of each month a complete list of the brands borne by stock shipped during the preceding month are published.

This method has practically put an end to stock stealing wherever it is in force and would be a good thing for South Dakota. If Meade county stockmen want this law, let them vote for J. D. Hale for representative next Tuesday. They can't vote for a better man, that's sure.

Goes Like Hot Cakes.

"The fastest selling article I have in my store," writes druggist C. T. Smith, of Davis, Ky., "is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, because it always cures. In my six years of sales it has never failed. I have known it to save suffers from Throat and Lung diseases, who could not help from doctors or any other remedy." Mothers rely on it, best physicians prescribe it, and C. M. Fallon guarantees satisfaction or refund price. Trial bottles free. Regular size 50c and $1.

The Lecture Course.

The attractions secured for the lecture course during the season of 1902-03 are the very best to be had in the country. They embrace two lectures, two concerts and two mixed entertainments. All six have been secured and booked and are the very cream in their respective lines.

The first number on the course occurs at Library hall this evening in the recital of Katherine Eggleston, one of the best elocutionists in the country. She is as good as the best and ought to be greeted by crowded house.

A Big Beet.

J. H. Garrett was in town Tuesday from out near Grashull, and called on THE UNION long enough to subscribe and pay for this great household necessity. He also brought along a beet from his ranch that spots pretty near knocking the spots off of anything yet shown in that line. It is on exhibition in THE UNION window, weighs an even twenty pounds and is just two feet around. Mr. Garrett raised a carload of the same kind, though they are not all as big as this one. Stop and take a squint at the big beet.

Out Of Death's Jaws.

"When death seemed very near from a severe stomach and liver trouble, that I had suffered with for years," writes P. Muse, Durham, N. C., "Dr. King's New Life Pills saved my life and gave perfect health." Best pills on earth and only 25c at C. M. Fallon's drug store.

Weekend Goes to Jail.

At the last term of circuit court for Butte county Joseph Weckert was tried on the charge of horse stealing and found guilty by a jury which had returned to the court room after a short deliberation on the evidence. Saturday the motion for a new trial was heard by Judge Rice in chambers, but was denied. The case is an important one to the citizens of Butte county, for not only is the defendant one of the wealthiest residents of the county, but the question involved in the case is one which vitally interests every cattle owner and stock raiser. Weckert had placed his brand on another man's horse, and although he denied any intention to steal the animal, and when his mistake was made clear to him, denied his intention to lay any claim whatever to the horse and asserted that the brand had been placed on the animal through a mistake, the jury convicted him and he was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary.—Pioneer Times.

When you vote, vote "No" on the question of changing the boundary line between Pennington and the counties of Meade and Lawrence. If you vote "Yes," you simply vote away a piece of Pennington county territory and deprive your own county of a slice of taxes. Vote "No" on this question.

In voting next Tuesday remember that the office of county commissioner is one of the most important in the county. Lee Platt, the present efficient chairman of the board, is up for re-election and deserves to win. Geo. Wells, a pioneer in this county and always a good taxpayer is the other candidate. Vote for both of them.

GRAND SALE OF PURE BRED CATTLE.

The Union Stock Yards Co. at Sioux City, Iowa, has succeeded in inducing some of the leading breeders of Herefords and Shorthorns in the country, to make a three-day's sale of cattle at their stock yards, which will take place Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 6th, 7th and 8th.

70 head of Shorthorns will be sold on Thursday, the 6th, and 108 head of Herefords will be sold on Friday and Saturday. No one appreciates better than the managers of the Union Stock yards, the benefit these pure-bred cattle will be to the country tributary to their stock yards. Every pure-bred bull or cow that comes into this community, tends to improve our beef cattle.

The stock yards people are to be congratulated for securing consignments from several of the leading herds of pure-bred cattle in the United States. Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa will be represented in this sale.

Read their advertisement in this issue, and arrange to attend the sale.
