ACADEMY LOSES TO LISBON

The Green and White Baseball Team Is Defeated by Lisbon's Good Playing

The Academy base ball team took a bad beating at Lisbon yesterday afternoon, being out batted, out fielded and out general.

The green and white team made sixteen errors while Lisbon's play was faultless. In one inning the Lisbon team got eight runs on two hits and three bases on balls. The poor showing of the Academy team was due partly to the fact that three of the regular players were lost to the team Thursday because they were not passing in the required number of studies and consequently were detained from playing and the new infield had not had any practice together.

St. Johnsbury scored in the first inning when Lovell was hit by Wright's bean ball and scored on singles by Beck and Cutting. Lisbon came back in her half and scored two, but the Academy immediately took the lead in the second when another bean ball hit Ling; and Lanpher's long drive brought him in.

Then it was nip and tuck until the fifth when the St. Johnsbury battery and inner works went to pieces and made seven errors and let in eight runs.

Lisbon scored five in the seventh when the Saints let loose another shower of errors and clean hitting drove in three more in the eighth.

Beck and Cutting were the hitting heroes for St. Johnsbury and Leavitt, Wright and Clough for Lisbon.

The umpiring was very good, in fact, was the best the local team has encountered on any foreign diamond.

WALTER GOULD DAVIS

Formerly of Danville Was One of World's Best Known and Highly Respected Meteorologists

The meteorological service of the Argentine Republic will be the enduring monument of Walter Gould Davis, whose death on April 30th, at his old homestead in Danville, Vt., removed one of the world's best known and most highly respected meteorologists.

As a young man Mr. Davis went to Argentina to serve as assistant to Dr. Benjamin Apthorp Gould, who founded the Astronomical Observatory at Cordoba, and, in 1872, established the Argentine Meteorological Service. Dr. Gould continued in charge of this service until towards the end of 1884, when he left Argentina, and in 1885, Mr. Davis succeeded him as director, continuing in that position until his retirement in 1915, after 30 years of active work. Under Mr. Davis' able leadership, the Argentine Meteorological Service attained a position in the very front rank of government meteorological organizations. When he resigned his post to secure well-deserved rest and to seek to regain his health in his own country, the Argentine service extended over an area of nearly 3000 miles in a north and south line, its southernmost station being in the South Orkney Islands, in latitude 60 degrees 43 south. Over 2000 stations were then cooperating in the work of taking meteorological and magnetic observations. The morning and evening observations from nearly 200 stations were being used in the construction of the daily weather map, in addition to the daily rainfall records from about 1350 rainfall stations.

Mr. Davis was a tremendously keen, active and progressive director. He was always well abreast of the times, and often was a pioneer in keeping ahead of the times. An illustration of his desire to have the organization under his control contribute in every possible way to the advancement of meteorological knowledge was his acquisition, in 1904, of the meteorological and magnetic station at Laurie Island, in the South Orkneys, which had originally been established by the Scottish Antarctic Expedition. Since 1904, this remote southern station has been operated, without a break in its records, as a part of the Argentine Meteorological Service. The personnel of this lonely outpost is relieved only once each year, when supplies are sent for the coming 12 months. The men are then completely isolated, without (at last accounts) any mail or cable communication, until the relief vessel returns the following year. Under these conditions of extreme loneliness and hardship, the observers at Laurie Island have maintained labor observations for fifteen years. This is a remarkable record of scientific work of the greatest importance in the study of world meteorology. In this Laurie Island station Mr. Davis always took great pride, and well he might do so.

Fully alive to all the needs of his service, Mr. Davis called to help him in his scientific work the best meteorologists whom he could find. From this country, for example, he secured Professor F. H. Bigelow, formerly of the Weather Bureau, who has had charge of the magnetic work in Argentina, and H. H. Clayton, formerly of Blue Hill Observatory, and now chief of the Department of Forecasts in Buenos Aires.

The high quality of Mr. Davis' work was fully appreciated by his meteorological colleagues everywhere. His reputation as a meteorologist and as the successful administrative head of a large and remarkably efficient organization won for him a position on the International Meteorological Committee, the highest international authority on meteorology. This was a well-deserved recognition of the importance of his contributions to meteorology, and of his sound judgment on scientific matters.

The many publications of the Argentine Meteorological Service which were issued under Mr. Davis' direction constitute an inspiring record of splendid work, well planned, thoroughly organized, and ably carried out.

By the death of Walter Gould Davis the world has lost one of its most eminent meteorologists, and those of his colleagues who had the privilege of knowing him have lost a warm-hearted, sympathetic and helpful friend.

Barre Woman Found Something Valuable.

Mrs. Carl Hunt of 22 Upland Ave., Barre, Vt., says: "I suffered a general break-down and weak spells some-time ago and nothing seemed to help me get my strength back until I tried Goldine. I had headaches and dizzy spells all the time. My heart also bothered me. My appetite was good but I was troubles some with gas. I would get up three or four times every night. I was very nervous. Nothing did me any good and then I came across Goldine. After taking it, I felt stronger and much better."

Ask Mrs. J. M. Clarke what GOLDINE did for her liver and stomach trouble.

Mrs. Carl Hunt Goldine is sold by the following dealers: C. C. Bingham, Welcome B. Eastman, Frank G. Landry, C. A. Seales & Co., T. R. Stiles. Also throughout the county in Passumpsic, Barnet, West Barnet, Peacham, East Peacham, Ryegate, East Ryegate, Groton, Danville, West Danville, Walden, South Walden, North Danville, Hardwick, East Hardwick, Greensboro Bend, Sheffield, Wheelock, Lyndon Center, Lyndon, Lyndonville, Burke, West Burke, East Burke, Sutton, Concord and North Concord. In case your dealer does not stock Goldine, ask him to secure it for you through the Burlington, Vt., or Gibson-Snow Co., of Albany, N. Y., the wholesale druggists. Price liquid, $1.15. Tablets $1.00 per box. Lax. 25c per box.

Goldine No. 1 for stomach and nerve trouble to build up the strength. No. 2 for kidney and rheumatism, also catarrh and the blood.

Use Goldine Laxatives with this medicine. Watch the papers for your friend's statement.

T. E. Irons, employed as cook at the Berwick hotel at Rutland, has filed with the county clerk a suit against Daniel E. and Agnes Kimball of North Ferrisburg, Vt., in which he seeks to recover $10,000 for the alienation of the affections of his wife, Lillian Kimball Irons.

An agreement has been reached whereby the machinists who have been out on strike at Barre for 10 days have returned to work. Under the new agreement the men are granted an eight-hour day with advance of wages. The agreement runs for one year from May 1.

S. B. Bates, state highway commissioner, and H. M. McIntosh, state engineer, have gone to Readsboro, N. J., where they meet Governor Clement to attend a hearing relative to the national projects on roads.

When "Buddy" needs a laxative—the "little Indian" will eat too often—give him

FIGSEN

THE FRIENDLY LAXATIVE

SOCIETY OF COLONIAL WARS

General Society Meets in Burlington With Vermont Society June 4, Flag Day

(Special to the Caledonian)

BURLINGTON, May 17—Harry S. Howard, governor of the Vermont Society of Colonial Wars, has just received from William Whitehead Ladd, governor-general of the General Society of Colonial Wars, with headquarters in New York, an official acceptance of the invitation of the Vermont society to meet this year in Burlington. The date of the meeting is June 14, flag day.

Three French Republics.

The French were not able to permanently establish a republic until they had tried three times to do so. The monarchy of the French revolution produced Napoleon Bonaparte, as first consul, and then as emperor. The revolution of 1848 resulted in Napoleon III as hereditary emperor of the French by an almost unanimous vote in November, 1852. The third republic was a result of the Franco-Prussian war and the king of Prussia was proclaimed emperor of the Germans, September 4, 1870, and his coronation took place at Versailles January 18, 1871. The third French republic was saved from destruction by the ability and activity of Louis Adolphe Thiers. Like Cavour he carried his country safely through a great crisis.

Odd Requests.

When men begin to think about winding up their worldly affairs and disposing of their earthly possessions, then do they, as at no other time of their mortal career, reveal the odd requests of their minds by the strange bequests they make, of which this extraordinary instance is given:

"I bequeath to George William Steel all my fancy stockings, and to Mary Hannah Wiggin my set of false teeth for waiting upon me." Thus, on a half-sheet of notepaper, William Greenwood, an English retired cotton spinner, disposed of his worldly "goods and chattels."

China's Peanut Industry.

Before the war the peanut industry of China had reached its highest point in its relation to the foreign export trade. The annual exports then were about 70,000 tons of shelled peanuts and about 50,000 tons of oil. More than 40 per cent of these amounts went from the port of Tsingtau, as Shantung has become the largest peanut-producing province of China.

The Hottest City.

The city of Hyderabad, on the great Sind desert of India, has the reputation of being the hottest place in the world, having a shade temperature of 127 degrees during the summer months! Even the natives find it hot—and that is saying something.

In order to cool their houses as much as possible, the people make use of curious ventilators very much like those on shipboard, "setting" them so as to convey a breeze to the dwellers in the hot rooms below. Every residential building has several of these queer shafts leading down to the principal living rooms, and especially to the bedrooms. Even so, it is practically impossible, during the terrible heat of summer, to get to sleep until two or three o'clock in the morning, and then one only gets a couple of hours' rest, as the rays of the Indian sun are specially strong early in the morning, and soon raise the temperature again to an unbearable extent.
