SCHOOL DIRECTORS' NOTES

Charles F. Fortier, who has been instructor in French and chemistry, has resigned his position because of ill health. The directors have released Mr. Fortier upon the certificate of his physician that he is physically unable to continue his duties because of disability resulting from his war experience. In the place of Mr. Fortier, the directors have secured the services of Oliver L. Baril of Spencer, Mass. Mr. Baril is a graduate of Holy Cross and has had one year's experience in the high school of West Boylston, Mass. Here he was instructor in history and chemistry and also served as athletic director of the baseball activities.

PEOPLE'S ACADEMY

The following pupils have attained the highest standing in scholarship during the last six weeks and their names are entitled to a place upon the honor list: Post graduate, Reba Hollis; seniors, Edith Richardson and Mildred Stewart; juniors, Addie Freer, Freda Putnam, Ralph Graves, Raymond Hastings; sophomores, Alice Douglas, Marguerite Margie, Charlotte Slayton; freshman, Doris Russ, Amy Sparks, Arthur Brown, Ralph Davis; class II, Walter Heterburge, Shirley LeBaron, Americo Rosetti, Walter Sargent, Archibald Valleau; class I, Mildred Fortier, Harriet Johnstone, Robert Briggs.

Madeline Hastings of North Wolcott has returned to school after an absence of five weeks because of sickness.

Last Friday night the freshman class, under the direction of Miss Houston, held a St. Patrick's party in assembly hall. Dancing was the principal feature of the entertainment. Music was furnished by the school orchestra. Games were played in room 6 by those who did not care for dancing. Over $30 was netted for the class treasury.

The basketball season ended Friday evening, March 24, when Waterbury High School captured the final league game by a margin of but one point, the score being 26 to 25. The P. A. boys have already turned their attention to baseball and Manager Bianchi has called out a squad for practice in the gymnasium.

Messrs. Fortier and Stafford of the board of school directors visited the school Tuesday morning of last week and discussed some matters pertaining to graduation with the senior class.

A. Hadley; song, Louie and Jennie Gray; reading, Anna Newton; question, What inducements does Vermont offer to a wide-awake farmer; speakers, Leon Newton and Hallett Hurbut; drill and song, Girls' Glee Club; song, "America," Grange. Everybody come.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Jones of Cadys Falls have purchased of Mrs. Dolis Jones her home at Cadys Falls, immediate possession being given. The latter has moved to Johnson.

THE SENIOR PLAY

Under the direction of Mrs. Hosmer, the senior class of People's Academy presented the play, "Miss Somebody Else," last Thursday and Friday evenings to capacity houses.

The story of the play, already outlined in these columns, centers around the adventures of Constance Darcy, young daughter of a modern Croesus. Traveling in search of a young man who had defrauded her father, she calls to see Mrs. Delevan, a former friend of her mother's, and finding her in need and shunned by the social leaders in the community, sets to work to restore prosperity. She succeeds, and in the process, finds not only a lover, but the criminal as well.

The part of Constance Darcy was taken by Faith Edmunds. Gifted with unusual natural charm and ability, she succeeded in making a quite difficult part appear easy; and, as an attractive Irish colleen, no less than as a millionaire's daughter, carried her audience with her. As French maid to Miss Darcy, Aidelena Raymond was pert, chic, and as convincing vocally as she was in appearance. John, the chauffeur (and on occasion), the more or less unwilling butler, found an exact counterpart in Porter Greene. Mildred Stewart, as Ann Delevan, achieved a dignity and grace beyond her years, and met the requirements of her part with ease. Jasper Delevan, her scientist husband, who, with coat buttoned awry and wearing odd shoes, periodically crossed the stage of action on his way from laboratory to attic in search of solitude and the Elixir of Life, oblivious of the need of his family, was occasionally present in the person of Hermon Huntley, who understood and met the demand of the role assigned him. Christabel Wallace, as the flighty and fickle daughter of the pair just mentioned, sustained her part to the life. One of the pleasing surprises of the play was the work of Mervis Sulham in the character of Susan Ruggs, the melancholy maid-servant employed by Mrs. Delevan. She succeeded in looking, speaking, and acting the part to perfection. As juvenile lead, Raymond Gates sustained Miss Edmunds admirably, his role being that of Cruger Blainwood, an only son. Evelyn Camp, as Mrs. Blainwood, was supercilious, bored, or haughty, as the occasion required. The "villain of the piece," Ralph Hastings, a young crook, achieved the almost impossible feat of making love and wearing a single eyeglass at one and the same time. As a matter of fact, he made love indiscriminately, plundered everyone in sight deliberately, and when in the last act he vanished under cover of darkness, fully half the audience hoped that he would make his "get-away"; Harold Willborg was the villain, his work recalling his success in a somewhat different role, in the play of last year. The rest of the cast, Marjorie Bickford as Fay Blainwood, Frances Bates as Alice Stanley, Madeline Hill as Freda Mason and Leota Howard as Mrs. Herrick, formed a bevy of society buds and blossoms whose efforts were well seconded by Wallace Peck as Bert Shaffen, a society man with unmanageable feet, and Ralph Patch as Sylvester Crane, a sad young man whom everyone liked but nobody loved. The specialty of the evening, an Hawaiian song and dance, was repeatedly encored. Eben Barrows, soloist, was supported by a chorus consisting of Dorothy Waite, Madeline Hill, Sylvia Farnham, Charlotte Slayton, Evelyn Willey, Thelma Hebb, Della Stancliffe, Florence Hodges, Glee Muzzy, Addie Goodrich, Marian Benson, Rebecca Briggs. To describe or do justice to the costuming is beyond the ability of a male reviewer; it was just a matter of youth and beauty, appropriately and uniquely garbed. Miss Rena Merrill and Mrs. Morse had charge of the specialty, Miss Bulkeley of the costuming. Violin solos by Philip Goddard were, as always, well received, and the reception accorded Miss Wagner, flautist, was not only a tribute to her ability, but evidence that Morrisville audiences have not forgotten her previous appearance. Music for the play was furnished by People's Academy orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Morse.

The director of the play is to be congratulated on the success of the undertaking. The class will realize approximately $200, and wish to thank the public for their generous support; also all who so willingly loaned the stage furnishings.

HOME DEMONSTRATION MEETINGS

Thursday afternoon of this week at two o'clock there will be a meeting of the demonstration department of Morrystown at the home of Mrs. Bedell. The agent will give a millinery demonstration and talk and plans will be made for a millinery bee to be held later in case the women are interested in millinery. If you are not interested in millinery, please come anyway and tell us what you would like to do. It is impossible to plan a program of work which may be of interest, if no one can talk to the meeting so that we can come to business. Everyone out!

Friday of this week the home demonstration agent will be at Stowe for a millinery meeting. Bring your old hats to be renovated and if you are interested in making hats to match your gingham or other summer dresses, come armed with material.

Episcopal Services Sunday
Next Sunday morning at 10:45 at N. E. O. P. Hall.

Hyde Park Inn Sold

R. W. Grant of Montreal, P. Q., has purchased the Hyde Park Inn of Charles E. Savery, possession to be given May 1. Mr. Grant has a wife and three children. He is a successful business man, having been for some time engaged as a contractor in horses for the Canadian government.

Mr. Savery has very successfully carried on the Inn for the past ten years and during that time maintained an excellent house and built up a large patronage. He relinquishes the business at this time because of ill health. He has no definite plans for the future, but it is hoped that he and his estimable wife will remain here.

73rd Birthday

E. L. Noyes was given a genuine "surprise" last Wednesday evening on the occasion of his 73d birthday. He was summoned to his home by his daughter, Mrs. John Miner, who called him up and said "a friend wanted to see him." "Ned" left his work at the Inn and went home, where he found 16 of his gentlemen friends had gathered there to give him the glad hand in honor of the event, Mrs. Miner having very skillfully arranged the event in the form of a surprise. Cards were played and congratulations extended. A handsome pipe was presented Mr. Noyes in a very felicitous manner by Charles Eddy, which was feelingly responded to by the recipient. Refreshments were served and all had a delightful time and on their departure wished "Ned" many happy returns of the day.
