

The House Wife's Burden

Mrs. Ada M. Herr, of 439 N. Charlotte St., Lancaster, Pa., suffered terribly from female disorders. Her nerves became unstrung, she endured intense pain, the slightest labor wearied her and household duties became a burden. Frequent fainting and dizzy spells would come upon her and she would fall prostrate in a swoon. After trying several physicians without success Mrs. Herr began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She says: "The pills brought immediate relief, and after taking six boxes I was cured. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People had done what all previous treatment had failed to do."—From the Examiner, Lancaster, Pa.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an infallible specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, and all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold by the dozen or hundred, but always in packages. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box, 6 boxes $2.50.

Common Council.

Common Council Chamber, Orosco, Mich., July 15, 1899.

Regular meeting of common council with Mayor A. M. Hume presiding. The Board of Public Works, Aldermen present at roll call, McLean, Harmon, Curry, Jordan, Walsh, and Washburn.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved as read.

Ald. Walsh presented the following petition which was referred to the committee on streets and sidewalks.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Orosco:

We the undersigned taxpayers do petition your honorable body to have a sidewalk built on east side of Elm street between W. Main and Clinton streets and crosswalks to connect same with walks already built, as we deem it a public necessity and your petitioners will ever pray.

J. F. Mabin and 18 others.

Ald. Washburn presented the following petition which was referred to the committee on streets and sidewalks.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Orosco:

Gentlemen—We the undersigned residents and taxpayers residing on Exchange street, Orosco, Mich., humbly petition your honorable body to cause sidewalk to be built on the north side of Exchange street between Oak and Dewey streets in front of lots three (3), five (5), six (6), seven (7), and eight (8) of A. L. & O. Williams sub-div of outlot seven (7) of the city of Orosco, and your petitioners will ever pray.

C. J. Matthews and 9 others.

The following petition was presented and referred to the Board of Public Works.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Orosco:

Your petitioners would ever pray that a sewer way be laid south on Elm street from Main, past the Orosco Casket Co. factory to Estey factory B. There is no location in the city of Orosco so important for the welfare of so many people and the health and prosperity, both of the factories and the laboring people, as this short sewer and we should be able to furnish you ample means we believe, that will warrant your speedy action. I think we can furnish at least 50 per cent and perhaps all of the owners of property aside from a great many other people that are deeply interested in a sewer on this street. We will gratefully appreciate it if you will grant the petitioners this sewer at a very early date. Signed: Estey Mfg. Co. and 65 others.

The following claims and accounts were presented and upon motion were referred to the committee on claims and accounts.

From Contingent Fund—W. H. Smith $11.00, W. H. Smith 4.00, A. Simpson 2.00, W. Carpenter 2.00, Geo. Wingard 20.00, Ira G. Curry 23.00, same 5.83, Police Fund—A. J. Burke 1.00.

Fire Department Fund—Miller Smoke Fabricator Co. 16.00, M. F. Blair Sec. A. J. Burke 31.00, John Ashford 16.00, Orosco Fire Dept. 16.00, C. M. Carpenter 2.00, Frank Manning 16.38.

From Highway Fund—Chas. Bailey 9.50, David Moss 5.75, Frank Mack 8.25, H. Byerly 1.25, W. Scott 8.25, W. Herrington 7.50, W. Hall 5.70, W. Marvin 4.25, H. Weston 6.00, Bell 1.85, S. F. Sewell 8.00, Jas. Dyer 2.50, Jas. Dill 1.87, O. O. Chase 1.25 and 62c, Ira G. Curry 10.31, L. J. Symes 8.82, A. W. Holmes 74.17, J. J. Sopp 7.15, D. G. H. & M. H. 11.75 and 7c.

SI. ewalk Fund—A. W. Holmes 13.20, H. Ashford 2.64, Albert West 31.16, N. Ball 62c, Frederick Heise 5.85, G. E. Lyon 6.10, R. P. Bignell 13.40, A. W. Holmes 25.00 and 7c, L. C. G. 20.00 and 6c.

Water Works Fund—H. Robbins & Son 819.25, Ira G. Curry 16.44, 2.80, and 6.29, H. Robbins & Son 1.75.

Paving Fund—Orosco Press Pub Co. $1.40, Bridge — M. E. O'Neil, $2.25.

The clerk read the following communication from Mr. Williams which upon motion of Ald. Jordan was referred to the Board of Public Works with power to act.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Orosco:

Gentlemen—For some unaccountable reason there was no curb built abutting a portion of the west 23 of lot 12 block 7 of the original plat. This property was assessed the same as other property that was furnished a curb and as I have no reason why it should be left without one. Mr. Riggs disclaims any knowledge pertaining to the subject more than the Council committee had had in charge. My object in calling your attention to the situation is that while the paving company here you can arrange to have a curb curbing placed in the vacant spot. Hoping that you will so arrange, I remain yours truly,

A. LER WILLIAMS.

The following resolution was forwarded to the council from the Board of Public Works. Ald. Jordan moved the resolution be referred back to the Board of Public Works with power to act; motion prevailed.

Resolved by the Board of Public Works, that by and with the approval of the Common Council we proceed to try and increase the water supply of the city, proceeding as follows: 1st, removal of obstructions from a few of the best producing wells at or near the water works, running a drill down to the bottom of the pipes. If thought best then to sand pump the wells to increase the flow of water. Also to dig an ordinary well on the city's land in the Abrey farm at or near the place selected by the Council of the Council and Board of Public Works about June 19, 1899. Also to dig the best to sink a new well in the vicinity of the water works and a good well is found at 90 to 95 feet deep. If not, to go through the rock for a 4-ft well. In case all these efforts fail to give a sufficient supply then, if thought best, to procure an air pump which can be used during the dry season or when the natural flow is not sufficient.

The Board of Public Works submitted the following report on the Elm street sewer and Mr. Jordan's motion in relation thereto. Ald. Jordan moved the report and motion be received and placed on file; motion prevailed.

Orosco, Mich., July 15, 1899.

Board of Public Works, Orosco, Mich.

Gentlemen—The petition of the Estey Mfg. Co. and the Orosco Casket Co. for a sanitary sewer to provide sewerage for their factories and which was referred to me for estimate. I return with the following report:

The plans and profiles of Mr. Riggs now in the city's clerk's office provide for a sewer 8 inches in diameter to start from Factory B, extending north on Elm street 400 feet to center of Clinton street, discharging into a 12-inch sewer which in turn will extend east along Clinton street to Shawanese street a distance of 420 feet, when it is to discharge into Shawanese street sewer from there north in the center of Shawanese street to Main street, discharging into the 14-inch sewer already built. I estimate the cost of this sewer as follows:

PANORAMA OF WAR.

In a Man's Mind That Occupied Exactly Four Seconds.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: The story was told over luncheon by a man on 'change. "One day years ago," he said, "shortly after laughing gas was introduced as an anesthetic, I got a case of rip-roaring toothache and went to a dentist on St. Charles street to have the molar snatched out. I remember leaning back in the chair and taking a few whiffs of something that tasted sweet and then, in the twinkling of an eye, I found myself on the quarter deck of a man-of-war. There was no middle period of drowsiness or confusion; the thing happened in a flash, and, strange to say, it seemed perfectly natural. I understood, without the slightest bewilderment, that the civil war was in progress; that I was an ensign on a Federal cruiser and that we were in search of the Alabama. I was in the navy, you know, before I came to live in New Orleans, and the routine of a ship was as familiar as my own name. I seemed well acquainted with everybody on this particular vessel and as I paced to and fro I chatted with my fellow officers about the weather, the war, the chances of the chase and many other topics of the time. The day wore on, evening fell and I went to mess, where I had a long debate with the doctor on certain operations for wounds. After my watch that night I turned in dog-tired and slept till dawn, and, not to fatigue you with my story, a week rolled by, filled with all the innumerable incidents, details and duties of life aboard ship. We told stories, sang songs, lounged for long hours under the stars and speculated on the probabilities of a fight. One afternoon, to come to the point, we sighted the Alabama, and, after a chase about which I could write a volume, overhauled her and the battle began. It was no long range contest, but a duel to the death at pistol shot, and at last riddled, torn and littered with dead, both ships close in and the order rang out to clear for boarders. I was one of the first men over the side and as I landed on the blood-soaked deck an enormous negro suddenly loomed above me with an upraised club. To this moment I can recall my rage and horror at that uncouth assault. I tried to dodge, but too late; the bludgeon struck me squarely on the jaw and with a force that seemed to rend my very skull in twain. I could feel my bones crack like egg shells. The whole side of my face was driven in. I knew I was killed. Then I opened my eyes and saw the dentist holding out my tooth. I had been unconscious exactly four seconds."

SHORT SERMONS.

There is nothing that Universalism affirms more positively than the inevitable and impartial punishment of sinners.—Rev. I. P. Coddington, Universalist, Rochester, N. Y.

Character is that which makes a noble life; no life is perfect in which God is not the center of its being, the ruling motive of its character.—Rev. W. H. Carwardine, Methodist, Chicago, Ill.

That definition of God which describes Him as pure Spirit carries in it the danger that we may lose ourselves in speculative contemplation.—Rev. Dr. Behrends, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The church that fails to obtain a hearing and impress to noble purposes the people about it is a failure and ought to be reformed or destroyed.—Rev. J. A. B. Wilson, Methodist, San Francisco, Cal.

It would be glorious to have one Christian federation. Perhaps in the days that are to come such a Christian federation will be made possible. God speed the day.—Rev. Dr. Eaton, Universalist, New York city.

Our ideas of property and economics are burdens imposed on us by the dead. Whitman wanted to live with animals, because "not one of them was afflicted with the mania of owning things."—Rev. B. Fay Mills, Evangelist, Boston, Mass.

The church will hold Christ as its sovereign authority. All power is given unto Him. Authority is not in reason, not in the church, not in the Bible, but in the imperial Christ.—Dr. G. H. Combs, Independent, Kansas City, Mo.

It is something like blasphemy to ask God to give to the church the Holy Spirit, which He has already given once and forever. What we want is anointed eyes to see the gift.—Rev. F. J. Van Horn, Boston, Mass.

If we do not keep our souls filled with God's spirit the devil can enter in and dwell there. We are not concerned merely with overcoming evil habits, but in building up active virtues.—Rev. Dr. Christian, Episcopalian, New York City.

This consciousness of and hunger for immortality are the strongest possible evidences of the fact. The Bible teaches it. The Book of Job is a poem of immortality. The Psalms throb with the hope. The prophets are spokesmen of the other world.—Rev. J. F. Carson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Detraction injures the detractor himself, injures the listener, perhaps awakens in his victim—for sooner or later he will hear of it—sentiments of hatred and revenge that will cause him to detract in turn, or drive him even to the crime of murder.—Rev. Father DuBoise, R. C., San Francisco, Cal.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

Rev. Theodore Cuyler, D. D., signed the total abstinence pledge when 10 years old, and has kept it ever since.

On the west coast of Africa and far inland, bottles of gin and demijohns of rum are used as the common currency; and on the Congo, one-half of all that the natives produce is paid for with liquor.

Two hundred women at Chattanooga, Tenn., went to the city council chamber and defeated a movement started by saloonkeepers to extend the closing hour at night from 10 o'clock to 12 o'clock.

Hoopster, Ill., boasts of never having a saloon within her border, and yet visitors declare she has more paved streets and good sidewalks than any city of her size in the state. She has electric lights, water works, Greer College, splendid high schools, and the largest canning factory in the world.

A movement to exclude liquor dealers from church membership has been started in Louisville, Ky., by Rev. T. T. Eaton, D. D., pastor of one of the wealthiest churches in that city. Resolutions were passed urging them to give up their business and allowing one year in which to abandon it or leave the church.

The famous Benedictine monks at Beatty, Pa., have discontinued brewing beer for the market. For forty years they have brewed this beer and peddled it among the saloons all over the western part of Pennsylvania. The growing temperance sentiment among Catholics is responsible, though it is said they will still brew beer for their private use.

RUNNING SORE ON HIS ANKLE.

After Six Years of Intense Suffering, Promptly Cured By S. S. S.

Obstinate sores and ulcers which refuse to heal under ordinary treatment soon become chronic and deep-seated, and are a sure sign that the entire circulation is in a depraved condition. They are a severe drain upon the system, and are constantly sapping away the vitality. In every case the poison must be eliminated from the blood, and no amount of external treatment can have any effect.

There is no uncertainty about the merits of S. S. S.; every claim made for it is backed up strongly by convincing testimony of those who have been cured by it and know of its virtues by experience.

Mr. L. J. Clark, of Orange Courthouse, Va., writes: "For six years I had an obstinate, running ulcer on my ankle, which at times caused me intense suffering. I was so disabled for a long while that I was wholly unfit for business. One of the best doctors treated me constantly, but did me no good. I then tried various blood remedies, without the least benefit. S. S. S. was so highly recommended that I concluded to try it, and the effect was wonderful. It seemed to get right at the seat of the disease and force the poison out, and I was soon completely cured." Swift's Specific.

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD

—drives out every trace of impurity in the blood, and in this way cures permanently the most obstinate, deep-seated sore or ulcer. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed purely vegetable, and contains not a particle of potash, mercury or other mineral. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Cancer, Catarrh, Eczema, Rheumatism, Sores, Ulcers, Boils, or any other blood trouble. Insist upon S. S. S.; nothing can take its place.

Valuable books mailed free by Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

For a SUMMER CRUISE take the COAST LINE TO MACKINAC

NEW STEEL PASSENGER STEAMERS

COMFORT, SPEED and SAFETY

The Greatest Perfection yet attained in Boat Construction—Luxurious Equipment, Artistic Furnishing, Decoration and Efficient Service

To Detroit, Mackinac, Georgian Bay, Petoskey, Chicago

No other Line offers a panorama of 400 miles of equal variety and interest.

Four Trips per Week Between Toledo, Detroit and Mackinac

DAY AND NIGHT SERVICE BETWEEN DETROIT AND CLEVELAND

Fare, $1.50 Each Direction.

Berths, 75c, St. Stateroom, $1.75.

Connections are made at Cleveland with Harriet Trains for all points East, South and Southwest, and at Detroit for all points North and Northwest.

Sunday Trips June, July, Aug., Sep., Oct. Only

EVERY DAY AND NIGHT BETWEEN Cleveland, Put-in-Bay and Toledo.

Send for Illustrated Pamphlet. Address A. A. SCHWARTZ, S. P. A., DETROIT, MICH.

Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Pletcher

The big furniture factory to locate at Standish September 1 will employ 125 to 150 men and boys.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Sanguis Pills cure all kidney ills. Sample free. Add. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

Houghton will spend $60,000 this summer in improving her streets and water system.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascara Candy Cathartic, 10c or 25c. If C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

A rural free mail delivery will be started for the territory about Ypsilanti.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hope less victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at W. E. Collins & Co. drug store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Pletcher

The forthcoming numbers of Harper's Weekly will be invaluable to those who wish to follow the progress of events in the world of sport. The golf tournament at Chicago, the trial races for the selection of a defender of the America's cup, and the track games between the American and English university men will be treated in detail. A new story by John Kendrick Bangs, entitled "The Enchanted Typewriter," will appear as a serial in the Weekly during the latter part of summer.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

Sooner or later the world comes round to see truth and do the right.—Hillard.

There is no substitute for thorough good, ardent and sincere earnestness.—Dickens.

Not to be able to bear poverty is a shameful thing, but not to know how to chase it away by work is a more shameful thing yet.—Pericles.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried by any outward test, that is surely to be found in the answer to the question, not how a man dies, but how he lives. It will be well for those who believe in Christianity to leave no advantage to the sceptic in that species of argument.—Principal Caird.

It is by the goodness of God that we have the possession of three unspokeable precious things—freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence of using neither of them.—Mark Twain.

Some men are very entertaining for a first interview, but after that they are exhausted and run out; on a second meeting we shall find them very flat and monotonous; like hand organs, we have heard all their tones.—Colton.

If religion is to be tried