Differed With Truant Officer.
The trial of Fred Heise, for refusal to send a son of school age to school was taken up in the court of Justice Walsh Thursday. Prosecutor Hicks claims that in response to threats by the teacher that he would report Mr. Heise to the truant officer, the defendant replied: "Send up your truant officer; I'd like to see what he looks like."
Later, the truant officer, when he did call, was assigned to a place where schools are notable chiefly by their absence.
Justice Walsh on Thursday afternoon found Heise guilty, and fined him $5 and costs, or twenty days. Defendant paid.
