

The Hood River Glacier.

One Historical Nov. 207 2d St

VOL. XXVIII

HOOD RIVER, OREGON, THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916

No. 8

Koberg's
Non Pareil
Vegetables and Plants

This is the time of year that nearly everyone has more than plenty of vegetables in his own garden or at least should have; it is our earnest opinion that every family should have a good home garden plot, not only for making a material saving in the cost of living, but also for the healthful exercise a well kept garden demands; it also develops a joyful disposition in seeing the things grow, especially with the children. But, alas, gardening has more trials and troubles, more things to contend with, than any other occupation and here is where we come in. Through our years of experience and specializing in this line of farming, we are able to steer clear of good many obstacles, are right there with the goods in season and our goods are

NON PAREIL

The Twentieth Century Truck Farm
J. H. KOBERG, OWNER

Bring Us Your Films

For developing, printing Prompt twenty four hour service. Velox paper used—work finished by an expert. Eastman Kodaks and Supplies.

Kresse Drug Co
The Retail Store
Victor Victrolas and Records.
Come in and hear the latest July Records.

This store never wobbles on the question of greater-value-giving. Our merchandise is purchased on a quality basis from such quality clothes makers as

THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

We believe in the thorough goodness of these suits. We have judged them by careful comparison and actual tests and we know that at $18, $20, $22, $25

we are giving men more for their money in these clothes, than is possible in any other make at the same price.

We know also that these suits could stand a higher price. We know that on inspection you would pay three to five dollars more than we ask, and you would get your money's worth. But this store never wobbles in its decision to give GREATER value.

J. G. VOGT

See Hood River

and adjacent points of scenic interest and see them right by traveling in one of the large comfortable cars of the FASHION LIVERY CO. Whether your journey is for pleasure or for business, let us transport you to your destination. Don't forget to tell your friends that is perhaps the best equipped concern of its kind in Oregon outside the city of Portland. Tell your out of town friends. No party too large and none too small.

The Fashion Livery Co.

TELEPHONE 1201

Thirst Quenchers

Cliquot Club Ginger Ale, 20c a bottle, $2 dozen
Red Wing or Welch's Grape Juice 25c and 50c
Lo Ju Loganberry Juice 25c a pint
Dole's Pineapple Juice 25c a pint
Hood River Soda Water, 5c bottle, 50c dozen

at

The Star Grocery Perigo & Son
"GOOD THINGS TO EAT"

Rubber Stamp Ink at Glacier Office

WE FURNISH Fishing and Hunting Licenses

We are showing a full line of the famous hand made Shakespeare Fishing Goods. Don't cost you any more than the other kind.

A large assortment of new and second hand rifles offered at wholesale cost.

The Franklin air cooled car eliminates nearly 200 parts as useless, except to create repair bills. Easiest riding car made. Most economical in gasoline, 32.8 miles to gallon. 1050 on 1 gallon oil. 12,000 miles on set tires.

Sporting Goods
Lawn Tennis, Baseball, Croquet, Golf—the proper goods for any game.

Lubricating Oils
We carry 30 kinds of oil. The correct oil for any purpose—ask for the right oil for it is often one-half the price of a kind not suited to the need.

Our Furniture Department was never so full of bargains 5% allowed for cash on lowest market prices.

Stewart Hardware & Furniture Co.

Cleaning Pressing Repairing
Phone 3342

Have you tried Dale & Meyer for cleaning and pressing? If not, try us. We will give you perfect satisfaction in every way.

Dale & Meyer
108 Third Street

Tailors to Men

Tailors to Women

Birthdays Mean Gifts

Why not Make Your Birthday Gift in 1916 something that will endure and serve as a reminder of this particular anniversary year?—

A Dainty Lavallier, the Birthstone in a Handsome Setting or a Fine Bit of Silver make charming gifts.

The name "LARAWAY" on your gift is in itself evidence of your thoughtfulness and is positive assurance of the quality, distinction and worthiness of the gift. We will appreciate your valued inspection.

W. F. LARAWAY
Jeweler

BILLY SUNDAY ON VACATION

NOTED EVANGELIST AT ODELL HOME

Rev. Sunday and "Ma" Spend Days Engaged in Farm Chores—Swimery Has Sleeping Porches

Billy Sunday the noted evangelist, whose first fame came when he was star baseball player for the Chicago White Sox, way back in the late eighties, is again spending his summer vacation on his Odell country place. For the time being, apparently, baseball and evangelistic meetings, too, have been forgotten.

The man who goes to call on Billy Sunday and "Ma," his faithful better half and partner, who along with their two children, Billy, Jr., and Paul, were also for the summer, will find them out in the open air weeding flowers, picking berries, helping with the hay, opening the rills of irrigation ditches, watching the antics of the pigs or ponies or engaged in some open air sport.

When the writer, in the company of Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Young, called at the Sunday ranch last Thursday, Mrs. Sunday was picking raspberries and currants, who were being made into delicious sun-cooked jellies and preserves.

"Our currant jelly," said Mrs. Sunday, "puts to shame the famous concoctions of the region of the Blue." Mr. Sunday was nowhere in sight.

"But come on," said Mrs. Sunday, as she carried her boxes of precious fruit up to the house, "we will go and find Dad. He is off tending to the water on the valley over the meadow."

There is no confining Billy Sunday and his wife to the four corners of a closed room in the summertime, when they are enjoying the splendors of the Hood River valley. The visitor is taken on long walks over the meadow, down to the barn. He is shown the pines, the chickens and the pigs. Verily, Rev. Sunday is a believer in the open air. He has just had carpenters finish building a new swimming trough, the extent of the swimming trough should see this new home for the Sundays' herd of pure bred Poland Chinas. The floors are neat as kitchen tiles of a fastidious housewife. You have heard about how he got their feet in the trough. Nothing like this happens out on the Sunday ranch. Contrivances of Mr. Sunday's own suggestion have been installed to keep the troughs clean. When Mr. Pig has finished his bran mash, the gates lift over the food container.

But the emphasis of the sentence beginning the preceding paragraph has been lost in the description of that clean trough. Again let it be said, "verily, Billy and Ma Sunday believe in the open air. That new house has individual sleeping porches for its porcine occupants. No hogs ever had such an opportunity to lead clean, healthy lives as those fat, contented porkers of the Odell district. And thus Mr. Sunday spends his summers. From daylight till nightfall he is pottering about the place. Putting into effect some whim or idea there. All of his thoughts are for the comforts of his animals, and more so for the tenants of his place. His half-brother, L. C. Heizer, is the real farmer of the Odell place. But many farmers have the privilege and enjoy as comfortable quarters as those provided for Mr. Heizer. Much of his work is done like that of the chauffeur of the 1916 model automobile. He can just press buttons and turn faucets and do a lot of the work that requires more physical effort on the ordinary farm.

A deep well, provided with the latest pumps, lifts the domestic water of the ranch place to a huge tank set artistically above the ranch home. No open irrigation ditches are seen on the Sunday place. The water has been placed under pressure in pipelines. Roses and vegetables, flower gardens and meadows may be watered by sprinklers.

The Sunday place grows most attractive each year. It is a new place, even in the Hood River valley, a locality for the most part made up of new places. Each year the rose plants, the Dorothy Perkins pink ramblers and the shrubbery gets larger. The natural attractions are each season brought out a little more vividly. The croquet grounds, the tennis court and the swimming pool, with the rough edges left by construction and stone masonry, appear more convenient and comfortable. The huge sugar pines that rear themselves at the south end of the Sunday place seem a little taller; the tent house home of Mr. and Mrs. Sunday set beneath the shade of these trees seems more a part of the natural surroundings and little less artificial.

When you go to see Billy Sunday he will take a delight in showing you these things of farm life. For the things they seem to hold the greatest interest for him. If you ask him about matters of evangelism, he will answer you, but soon his mind wanders away to other things. Suddenly he will quit discussing the meeting at Kansas City and tell you to look at that fine pony, his boy Paul's saddle animal.

"I want to get away from everything for a while," he says. "This Oregon atmosphere gives me the strength to do what I am doing. It is possible for me to recuperate here beneath the pines, breathing in the aroma of fresh resin and the perfume of fields of curing hay." He may not express himself in just those words, but that is the gist of what he means. It is the year Mr. Sunday, with the aid of Ma, who advises with him on all matters, conducted meetings in five large cities, Omaha, Syracuse, Trenton, Baltimore and Kansas City. More than 1,000,000 people heard his forceful sermons, delivered in a slang that is shocking to some, yet seems to have the appeal to draw thousands to take the "Sawdust Trail." Mr. Sunday to his day seems more enthusiastic over his meetings at Syracuse than those of any other point the past year. College men and women, it is said, take lightly the thought of spiritual welfare. Billy Sunday is proud of the hold he has got on the students of the university town.

"We had them with us from the beginning," he says. "A number of the prominent faculty men were on the committee in charge of our meeting. Ma appealed to them by her addresses at the gymnasium. I won their hearts by boosting their football game with Colgate. All of our party went out to the game and rooted for Syracuse. It was the biggest game they have ever had. Over 12,000 people paid to see the victory."

Rev. Sunday and his family will remain here for several weeks. About the middle of August they will leave for Ocean Grove, N. J., where he will hold a short session with sinners. On September 10 a series of meetings will begin at Detroit. Mr. Sunday says he is looking forward with great interest to the Detroit sermons. "We have the good people of Detroit with us," he says. "The vice president of the Ford Automobile Co. and the manager of the Cadillac Company are members of the committee in charge. I have just had a letter from the latter concerning the Cadillac limousine, especially equipped, will be at the service of myself and family during the meeting."

Since ministers of Portland, Ore., recently tendered Rev. Sunday an invitation to preach in the Rose City, he says that such offers have been made by every city of any consequence in the United States.

Billy Sunday does not take very kindly to the Portland invitation. At least he doesn't discuss it with enthusiasm. In fact, he makes the flat statement that he will never go to Portland. It is a hard city," he says, "not with the meaning that it is sinful, "it is hard to line up the different factions. They have tendered this invitation and have done nothing toward getting ready for a meeting. What's the use of going to a place unless you have everything lined up for you and everybody behind you?"

The evangelist says that he has declined to go to New York to hold a series of meetings.

"No, that talk of trouble with the labor unions has nothing to do with my decision. That's hot air, sensational newspaper talk. Why the unions are among my best friends. In every tabernacle in which I have ever preached over mail has been driven by union labor, every board has been sawed by a union carpenter, every bit of the literature I have issued has the union label. That so called opposition among the labor unions of the country does not come from unions as a whole. It emanates from some of the organizations allied with the brewing and distilling business. Certainly they have been hollering their heads off, but just let them howl."

Mr. Sunday gives as his reason for turning down New York the statement that the committee wanted him to talk in Madison Square Garden. "The place is too small," he says. "It will only seat 12,000 people. I wanted a larger tabernacle, and when the question of building it came up, the committee got into a tangle."

When Mr. Sunday arrived in Hood River last year he was suffering from a nervous breakdown. There were crew-foot lines around his eyes. "Today he is apparently in perfect health."

"Have you ever given any thought to ultimate retirement from your work?" he was asked Thursday. "No sir, I am not going to retire. I am going to keep right ahead preaching and taking my summer rests just as I have been doing. When I am worn out I guess I will have to quit, but that time doesn't give me any bother."

Perhaps the casual visitor and acquaintance will not notice any difference, but in the inner circle of the Sunday family this year there is a feeling of loss of sadness. For the first time since the Sundays have been accustomed to spend their summer vacation on the Odell place, Mrs. Mary Jane Stowell, the mother of Mr. Sunday and L. C. Heizer, is absent. A few weeks ago, a day or two before the family were ready, according to their plans, to leave the Winona Lake, Ind., home, Mrs. Stowell was stricken suddenly with heart trouble.

"Death came easily for her," says Mr. Sunday. "It was on Sunday morning that I found her. She was late in rising, and I went to her room. I thought she was asleep, but her eyes were closed for the last time. "We carried her body to the old home of my father at Ames, Ia., where she was laid to rest in the old family burying ground, according to her wish. The old cemetery is on the place that my father purchased from the government back before the fifties."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

case. It was the biggest game they have ever had. Over 12,000 people paid to see the victory."

Rev. Sunday and his family will remain here for several weeks. About the middle of August they will leave for Ocean Grove, N. J., where he will hold a short session with sinners. On September 10 a series of meetings will begin at Detroit. Mr. Sunday says he is looking forward with great interest to the Detroit sermons. "We have the good people of Detroit with us," he says. "The vice president of the Ford Automobile Co. and the manager of the Cadillac Company are members of the committee in charge. I have just had a letter from the latter concerning the Cadillac limousine, especially equipped, will be at the service of myself and family during the meeting."

Since ministers of Portland, Ore., recently tendered Rev. Sunday an invitation to preach in the Rose City, he says that such offers have been made by every city of any consequence in the United States.

Billy Sunday does not take very kindly to the Portland invitation. At least he doesn't discuss it with enthusiasm. In fact, he makes the flat statement that he will never go to Portland. It is a hard city," he says, "not with the meaning that it is sinful, "it is hard to line up the different factions. They have tendered this invitation and have done nothing toward getting ready for a meeting. What's the use of going to a place unless you have everything lined up for you and everybody behind you?"

The evangelist says that he has declined to go to New York to hold a series of meetings.

"No, that talk of trouble with the labor unions has nothing to do with my decision. That's hot air, sensational newspaper talk. Why the unions are among my best friends. In every tabernacle in which I have ever preached over mail has been driven by union labor, every board has been sawed by a union carpenter, every bit of the literature I have issued has the union label. That so called opposition among the labor unions of the country does not come from unions as a whole. It emanates from some of the organizations allied with the brewing and distilling business. Certainly they have been hollering their heads off, but just let them howl."

Mr. Sunday gives as his reason for turning down New York the statement that the committee wanted him to talk in Madison Square Garden. "The place is too small," he says. "It will only seat 12,000 people. I wanted a larger tabernacle, and when the question of building it came up, the committee got into a tangle."

When Mr. Sunday arrived in Hood River last year he was suffering from a nervous breakdown. There were crew-foot lines around his eyes. "Today he is apparently in perfect health."

"Have you ever given any thought to ultimate retirement from your work?" he was asked Thursday. "No sir, I am not going to retire. I am going to keep right ahead preaching and taking my summer rests just as I have been doing. When I am worn out I guess I will have to quit, but that time doesn't give me any bother."

Perhaps the casual visitor and acquaintance will not notice any difference, but in the inner circle of the Sunday family this year there is a feeling of loss of sadness. For the first time since the Sundays have been accustomed to spend their summer vacation on the Odell place, Mrs. Mary Jane Stowell, the mother of Mr. Sunday and L. C. Heizer, is absent. A few weeks ago, a day or two before the family were ready, according to their plans, to leave the Winona Lake, Ind., home, Mrs. Stowell was stricken suddenly with heart trouble.

"Death came easily for her," says Mr. Sunday. "It was on Sunday morning that I found her. She was late in rising, and I went to her room. I thought she was asleep, but her eyes were closed for the last time. "We carried her body to the old home of my father at Ames, Ia., where she was laid to rest in the old family burying ground, according to her wish. The old cemetery is on the place that my father purchased from the government back before the fifties."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

"I have heard from a number of people at points in the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Young, when inviting Mr. Sunday to fill the local pulpit "and they want to know when you will preach for us, so that they can be here that day."

Mr. Sunday will deliver his annual Hood River sermon this year next Sunday morning at the Abury Methodist church. The service will be a union one and the congregations of all churches will join in the event.

HOOD RIVER WILL JOIN

THE VOTE IS ALMOST UNANIMOUS

Growers Favor Fruit Growers Agency and the Board of Directors Will Act Despite Lack of Quorum

While a quorum was not obtained at the meeting, so unanimously favorable was the vote of the large number of members of the Apple Growers Association Saturday afternoon that it is an assured fact that the board of directors of the Association will proceed immediately to take formal action in affiliating with the Fruit Growers' Agency, of Spokane. The Association board of directors, as was announced by President Davidson, were unanimous in their recommendation of an affiliation. Already 24 of the most prominent sales agencies of the Northwest had affiliated with the central agency. Hood River was the last large district to join, its growers and board of directors having held aloof because of certain bylaws of the central agency being in conflict with those of the local organization. Following a number of meetings between the local board of directors and representatives of the Growers' Agency, the latter organization's board of trustees adopted amendments proposed by the Apple Growers Association.

Capt. Paul H. Weyrauch, of Walla Walla, Wash., president of the central agency, who was here to address the growers, stated that the tonnage turned in for assessment by growers and sales concerns already affiliated reached 7,800 cars. The affiliation of Hood River will add an additional 1,200 cars of fruit.

"The Growers' Agency," said Mr. Weyrauch in his address, "is not a sales agency. It will not sell one box of fruit, as many seem to have erroneously thought. One of its benefits will be derived from the crop estimates, market information and other data that it will accumulate working with representatives of the government. The task of securing all of the sales of our members to adequate systems of sales accounting that are essentially similar, thus making it possible to make comprehensive comparisons of the prices received by the different agencies."

"We will also receive great benefit from the power we will be able to wield as a collective body in securing readjustments of freight rates that will be beneficial to the northwestern fruit grower."

"We will cooperate in the opening up of Canadian markets and a foreign outlet for more of our product."

Mr. Weyrauch corrected the impression that the Agency was to be supervised by the government.

"It was formed," he stated, "along lines suggested by the Office of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Federal Trade Commission, and it will work with government officials in securing valuable data, but hereafter its government will be maintained exclusively through action of its members."

Mr. Weyrauch stated that the annual maximum cost to growers would be $100 per carload of fruit.

"We have already collected," he said, "the sum of $2,300 from initiation fees. Our budget, as already made, reaches a total of $8,500. More than this amount will be derived from tonnage assessments."

H. F. Davidson, who addressed the meeting, characterized W. H. Paulhamus, of Puyallup, as the man responsible to a greater extent than any other for the success of the Fruit Growers' Agency.

"Last summer," said Mr. Davidson, "Mr. Paulhamus, in his capacity of president of the Northwestern Fruit Growers Council, kept hammering on this proposition along the lines that have been adopted until the government tent was a hand and promoted the organization of the Agency."

The board of directors of the Growers Association held a special meeting yesterday, when they acted on the unanimous vote of the grower members of the organization, who expressed their willingness of affiliation with the Fruit Growers' Agency, Incorporated, of Spokane.

Northwestern fruit shipping concerns already aligned with the central agency are as follows:

North Central Washington Growers' League, Wenatchee, Wash.
Commercial Club, North Yakima, Wash.
Cashmere Fruit Growers' Union, Cashmere, Wash.
Oregon Apple Co., Corvallis, Ore.
Wenatchee North Central Fruit Distributors, Wenatchee, Wash.
Blalock Fruit & Produce Co., Walla Walla, Wash.

Idaho-Washington Fruit Growers Association, Payette, Wash.
Spokane Valley Fruit Growers' Association, Opportunity, Wash.
North Pacific Fruit Distributors, Spokane, Wash.

Peshastin Fruit Growers' Association, Peshastin, Wash.
Montana Fruit Distributors, Hamilton, Mont.
Northwestern Fruit Exchange, Seattle, Wash.

College Place-Blalock Fruit Growers' Association, College Place, Wash.
Onak Fruit Growers' League, Onak, Wash.
Yakima Valley Fruit Growers Association, Yakima, Wash.
Producers Fruit Co. of Oregon, Medford, Ore.

Yakima County Horticultural Union and Yakima Fruit Growers Co., Yakima, Wash.

Passive members have signed the Agency as follows:

Leo M. Lampson, Kennewick, Wash.
W. W. Phillips, Greenacres, Wash.
M. L. Dean, state horticulturist, Missoula, Mont.

Entiat Fruit Growers' League, Entiat, Wash.
J. C. Wood, Big Fork, Mont.
Mosier Fruit Growers' Association, Mosier, Ore.

While Mr. Davidson was speaking, Prof. J. W. Critch, principal of Hood River high school,

(Continued on Last Page)