RAISE DRAFT HORSES.

Some of our readers seem to think that the livestock department of The Ranch is given over to swine entirely. We have no such intention. We desire to make this department useful as well as interesting to the various departments of livestock suitable to the farm.

There was a time in the history of Kansas when farmers depended almost entirely on grain raising. There came a time when it was necessary for other departments of agriculture to be engaged in, or Kansas would eventually have become bankrupt. Among the men who endeavored to teach about a change, was F. D. Coburn. It was Mr. Coburn who first advocated diversified farming, and the advisability of farmers taking up all kinds of livestock, and feed the grain at home instead of shipping it. Since that time Mr. Coburn's light has dimmed all others, and his teaching has borne such fruit that Kansas as a livestock state is among the richest in the Union. She has great establishments for breeding pure bred horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. Pages might be written of any one of the half dozen of the breeds of pure bred cattle alone that has helped to enrich the state. She numbers at least a dozen women who have made small fortunes in breeding pure bred cattle.

"SAVE THE HORSE" SPAVIN CURE.

96 Munn Ave., Newark, N. J., Aug. 15, 1910.
Sometime ago I purchased a horse, believing him to be a real good one. At the time I did not know that he had been fired and blistered. He became very lame from a Bone Spavin, and the prospect was not very favorable, owing to his advanced age. However, having a bottle of "Save-The-Horse" on hand, of which I had used very little in satisfactorily curing Puffs on another horse, I ventured to think it would help the Spavin on my new purchase. I was ashamed to drive the horse in the daytime, he was so lame. I used about half the bottle. Suddenly the horse forgot his lameness, and to this day he acts and looks as sound as a colt. Now should you want a recommendation you are at liberty to refer to me. © Jos. Wm. Bunton.

The states of the Pacific Northwest should profit by the experience of Kansas. Farmers east of the mountains and in many parts of Oregon seem to be using their entire energy in the growing of apples. Many of the small ranchers west of the mountains seem to use no efforts but raise fruits. The small fruits as well as apples. There is no state in the Union whose climate and conditions are better suited to the growing of livestock than the Pacific Northwest. Our coast climate resembles that of Great Britain to a greater extent than that of any other state in the Union. Great Britain today has the world's best trade in all kinds of pure livestock. In the matter of breeds, the American Registry Association has been talking for years of getting South America trade away from Great Britain, but small progress has been made. Farmers generally over the United States think home bred, pure bred draft stallions are not nearly so good as an imported horse.

Our conventions and our shows have demonstrated and exhibited specimens equally as good as the best ever imported. However, the kind of climate common to Great Britain and that part of the Northwest on the coast, west of the mountains, is particularly adapted to the raising of a superior quality of live stock of any kind.

The dampness with our prevailing, but mild degree of cold, grows a better coat of hair on horses and cattle. The writer does not know whether this is true of the wool of the sheep and goat, and would like to hear from our readers on this subject, as well as any other that may interest them in these columns. The uniformity of the climate, together with the ability to get green grass almost the year round is certainly an added value. From time to time we hope to give attention to various classes of livestock in this department. In this issue we are going to give some attention to the horse.

OUTLOOK FOR DRAFT HORSES

It has been heralded widely that the advent of automobiles would drive the horse breeders out of existence. Time, however, has proven the fallacy of this prediction. Several weeks ago the largest dealers in high priced harness horses in the country failed. They had stables in New York and Chicago. This was the Tichenor-Grand Co. While they dealt in fancy harness horses principally, they tried to spread themselves over the entire field of horse merchandising. With such a wide spreading, disaster was inevitable. A large part of their money was in fancy carriage horses, and time has proven that the automobile has largely supplanted these.

All that is left of our great California racing stables is a few deluded breeders who still think there is money in raising race horses, fancy saddlers, and beautiful drivers. Another class that is living on the mistakes of these wealthy breeders are the gamblers and hangers on of the race track. On the other hand, the draft horse has steadily increased in popularity and demand. All over the country today, high prices are being paid for good draft horses. In almost every state in the Union a draft horse from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds if sound, will bring from $250 to $350. Canada cannot get enough of them. It is said that a draft horse of any quality at all, along the line of the Canadian

FREE-FARM ACCOUNT BOOK

KNOW HOW MUCH YOU MAKE THIS YEAR

No one shall pay a cent for Bickmore's Farm Account Book. It will be sent free to any farmer who will be good enough to tell who and where he is. The cost of a crop never demanded closer attention. Business farming puts money in the bank. This book is arranged to keep all accounts in simple form—more simple, and certainly more practical, than trying to remember them; shows what to charge against crop production; has a laborer's time record; and section for personal accounts. 64 pages; for ink or pencil. Not a cheap affair. It is meant for business. Its quality is in keeping with Pacific Ry. will bring $250, but they can hardly be had at any price. The great wheat farming sections of Alberta and Saskatchewan finds them in great demand.

Percheron Societies Consolidate.

The climax of advancement in the breeding of pure bred Percheron horses in America was reached in Chicago recently when the Percheron Registry Co., of Columbus, Ohio, and the Percheron Society, of America and Chicago, were joined. It is well known to most horse breeders that these two recording societies have long been at outs, and that this fact has made it difficult for the breeder of Percheron horses to dispose of his surplus stock. The prospective buyer was just as likely as not to have his horses recorded in the other books, and trouble was almost sure to arise. The advent of the government last year in putting its mark on all imported stock put the affairs of the association in such condition that great progress was sure to result. In times past an untold amount of trickery and fraud was practised by the lesser lights and even by some of the higher-ups of the importing countries. This action of the government will do much to prevent frauds in the future. The election of Wayne Dinsmore, a college professor of marked ability and diplomatic qualities to the secretaryship of the Percheron Society, of America, raised the white flag of peace to the other association. It has now come into the fold, and the breeding of Percheron horses in America bids fair to have greater progress in the next five years than in all past history of the work in this country.

recently established at the stock yards, and what it will be in the future.

Heavy Spring Work Means Sore Shouldered Horses.

Unless you take the greatest care of your horses, sore shoulders are inevitable. It is well to have some good remedy on hand so you may treat promptly. Probably there is nothing better to be had for this purpose than Bickmore's Gall Cure. It is the old reliable remedy which is put to test year after year by thousands of horse owners. And it has the reputation of never being found wanting. The famous old remedy cures galls, cuts and sore shoulders while the horse works. That makes it doubly valuable. The fact that it is to be found on sale with dealers all over the United States and Canada shows that its use is nearly universal. In order to introduce it with horse owners who have never used it, a free sample is being sent out by the manufacturers. Enclose 5c in stamps to pay postage and packing and send to Bickmore Gall Cure Company, box, 12R, Old Town, Maine, and the sample box will be sent you by return mail.
