Mr. Kipling's study occupies the full width of the south end of the house. In the fail story, which forms a part of the affile lies reason bulled. aftic, is a spacious billiard room, lighted by dormer windows. Above the stone basement the house is covered with shingles stained a dark olive, the idea being to have the whole blend with the background without contrast. As a result, the building is scarcely noticeable from a distance, and while it seems isolated and almost obscured, just as the author would have it, still it is one of the most restful and at the same time most sightly locations to be found. In the effort to find good water an artesian well has already been sunk 180 feet just south of the house, though as yet without satisfactory results. The house was originally contracted to J. P. Helyar, who subsequently died, and whose admin istrator, E. A. Gould, completed the work. John Galvin did the plumbing. The plans and architectural design were furnished by Henry Rutgers Marshall of New York, who embodied in them Mr. Kipling's own ideas. Work has now been begun on a stable. We are indebted to the courtesy of the Springfield Republican for the excellent engraving of the house and its surroundings, as well for the greater part of the rith apologies to Byron. That is, it was base ball Friday after-noon, with all of the old-time virility and hilarity gone. The Northamptons were here and our sympathies were with their rivals, but after we had seen them for a few innings we didn't care whether another game of base ball was played in Erattle-boro this year or not. And, somehow, this feeling seemed to be infectious, and all the speciators caught the infection.

The threatening weather and the ab-sence of 150 or more of our base ball lovers at muster reduced the attendance some what, not over 400 people paying admissions to see the "first championship game of the season.

Bowers and Ranney had been advertised as the Holyoke battery, but Ranney was at Claremont or some other place, and Bowers did not arrive until the fourth inning. He supposed the White mountain train stopped at a city of 30,000 inhabitants like Meriden, and he reached the station in time to see it go by. When he arrived on the field he went into the outfield and Riley retired to the bench.

The game opened with the Northamptons at bat, Lauder was in the box for the Holyokes. It should be said in explanation that the Lander in question was not the pitcher; Lauder the pitcher was not here, and his brother, who ordinarily plays behind the bat or in the infield, went into the box. He started in by striking out Coughlin. Then Bergen hit for a sin-gle and Kinsella for three bases, the ball going over right field fence; Kinsella came home on O'Neill's wild throw to the plate. Then Lauder struck out Nadeau and Ma-

Then Lattier struck out Nadeau and Ma-honey, both heavy hitters.

For the Holyokes Murphy led off and he was greeted with applause. He bit a hard one to left field, which Carr captured. Lauder hit safely, but O'Neill's grounder forced him out at second. Fitzmaurice's two bagger and McCauley's single brought O'Neill home, but Fitzmaurice was caught between third and home and run down. Lander's second inning was his Waterloo as a pitcher. After Fitzmanrice had dropped Carr's fly, Lauder gave two bases on balls and was hit for two singles. Lacey then came into the box. Lacey is an unpretentions youth, but he pitched good ball, and in what amounted to eight innings he was hit safely only six times. Be fore the Northamptons were retired, how-ever, they gained three more runs, the re-sult of Lander's work. The Northamptons added one score in each of the fifth sixth and ninth innings. In the latter Na deau put the ball over the left centre field fence for the prettiest hit of the game, but first individual prize with a score of 24, Private Baird of Montpelier second with 21, and Private French of Brattleboro third the ball was so quickly fielded by Fitzmau-rice that a home run was cut off.

The Holyokes made nothing like a goo rally after the Northamptons obtained the lead. "Dinny's" voice was hushed, and the crowd was very quiet. The innings dragged along until the weariness was end-ed. The rain which fell in the first four innings increased the gloominess.

There were some splendid plays dusing the game. Little Murphy's work at short was gilt-edged, as usual. There is no getting away from the fact that Murphy is king in his position, outside of the league, and even in the league ranks he would not be outclassed. And Lauder, too, at third base is all right. This boy is a comer. in the list were Corporal F. P. Gannon is evidently a second-rate pitcher, but in this game he was The Montpelier Watchman, whose representatives were on the grounds, says:
