

BELLOWS FALLS NEWS.

Miss Maud Fleming of Springfield is visiting in town.

Miss Anna Williams visited relatives in Bethel last week.

Mrs. C. L. Wheeler visited Mrs. Charles Walker in Chester last week.

Mrs. George Dickinson and family of New York are visiting Mrs. Dickinson's father, George F. Evans, at his home on the J. H. Lockwood house on School street. Mrs. F. D. Stillwell will occupy the house vacated by them.

Mr. and Mrs. Swain, Mr. and Mrs. Black, Mr. and Mrs. Labaree and Miss Labaree spent Sunday at their respective cottages at Lake Sunapee.

The ladies' union of the Congregational church are issuing invitations to their friends to attend each one their own birthday party, Thursday, May 21.

Miss Lohr, who will be well remembered as a former music teacher at St. Agnes hall, and organist of Immanuel church, will spend the summer in town.

A large photograph of Bellows Falls, 22 by 24, is on exhibition in the window of Clark Chase's furniture store. It is taken from table rock, and is the work of F. J. Blake.

The unimproved land belonging to the cemetery in this spring being put in order, and drives in the old cemetery portion. The main avenue will terminate in a rose garden.

The Commercial House was raided Wednesday for the first time under the new management. Liquors were found, and the proprietors were mulcted on a total of $105 fines and costs for keeping and selling.

Sample examination papers of last term's work in the High school were sent to the foremost colleges in New England, and in response to requests, Wellesley and Smith have placed our school on the list of those accredited with certificates.

The Congregational double quartet choir goes to Westmoreland next Thursday, accompanied by the organist and violin orchestra, to give a concert in the church, Mrs. Wilder, Mr. Barber, Mr. Vian and Miss Day being soloists.

Dr. E. R. Campbell and Conductor H. J. Woodfall have been conferring with F. K. Robbins, agent of the Yarmouth Steamship company, regarding another excursion to Nova Scotia next summer by a party similar to that which took the trip last year.

The young people of the Baptist church, who have, in connection with the Christian Endeavor society, the Congregational church, carried on the Rockingham Sunday school work, have withdrawn, and the school will be continued by the Congregational young people.

The eight members of the junior class, Bellows Falls High school, who have been chosen to take part in the exhibition are drilling under Mrs. J. H. Blakeley, who has for several years had charge of this department of the work in the school. The exhibition will probably occur week after next.

A warrant is out for the arrest of L. T. Lovell, Lewis S. Lovell and S. J. Gray, for breach of peace. A row occurred a week ago Monday, in which all three were concerned, the bone of contention being a bill which Gray was attempting to collect of Lovell. A hearing was set for yesterday but was held over until one week from today.

The children from No. 2 school building have been persevering in their efforts to purchase a new flag for their school building by selling shares. They have at last completed their canvass, and the new flag will be unveiled next Memorial day, at which time Capt. W. H. Taylor will speak to the children, with whom he seems to be a great favorite.

Prof. O. L. Beverage of Brattleboro will give a lecture this evening at the High school, his subject being, "Two weeks along the St. Lawrence river." A musical program will precede the lecture, which will be followed by refreshments. The proceeds will help pay for the new picture which has recently been hung in the assembly room.

Hon. F. C. Partridge of Rutland, ex-minister to Venezuela, gave a talk in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday evening on "Venezuela." He described the characteristics, and the customs and manners of the inhabitants of Venezuela, and closed by giving a minute explanation of the troubles and the causes which led to the dispute over the boundary lines.

The "World's Fair" Bohemian glass blowers come here for a week's run at Union hall next Monday. The program consists of instrumental music, a farce, dancing, with the usual exhibit of glass blowing, spinning, and weaving. The program to be varied each evening. A matinee and baby show will occur Saturday afternoon. A prize is offered for the handsomest baby. This company comes here under the management of the Owl club.

Major D. L. Whittle, who has been associated with D. L. Moody in his evangelistic work, gave an address in Union hall Sunday evening, before a full house. He took as his topic, "The young man's question of Christ." Major Whittle is an earnest speaker and won and held the attention of his audience throughout the evening. The music was furnished by a chorus of 25 under the leadership of C. L. Barber, and by the Y. M. C. A. male quartet. A pleasing bass solo was rendered by Mr. Flint of Providence.

CAMBRIDGEPORT.

Miss Rose Torry has work in the wrapper factory in Chester.

The Loyal Temperance league will meet Saturday afternoon with Maud Derby.

The ladies' benevolent society were entertained Wednesday evening by Mrs. F. Wood.

E. T. Wood of Lyndonville made his brother, F. S. Wood, a flying visit on Tuesday.

SAKTONS RIVER.

Mrs. Snow is going West shortly.

Walter Glynn is enlarging his barn.

Geo. Cory has upwards of 90 cows in his pastures.

Mr. C. S. Frost early in the week took a trip to Lowell and vicinity.

There were showers delightfully refreshing Sunday and Monday nights.

William Warner is home for a few days from Worcester academy, Worcester, Mass.

Miss Mabel McCollom from Somerville, Mass., came Monday for a visit at the Spaulding's.

The Farnsworth auction on Thursday fully occupied public attention. The attendance was large and the bidding spirited. The sale must be regarded as successful, for these times. The fine mansion and grounds sold to Mrs. Lewis Tenney of this village for $4500.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty cents a bottle. Be sure to ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

WESTMINSTER.

W. P. Leach and W. S. Penn have sold their '93 crop of tobacco and shipped it this week.

Mr. Hanpurn of Putney was quite ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. S. Taylor, yesterday, Thursday.

Clarence Wright, youngest son of Alvin Wright, put his arm out of joint Wednesday by falling from a chair.

G. H. Walker's bicycle was discovered in the horse shed at the church Sunday morning by Eddie Brigham. It looked tired.

A sum of money was left at the church a week ago Sunday, to be the monthly offering of the Christian Endeavor society. When the money was looked for the next time the church was opened, Thursday evening, it was gone, and upon looking around the small envelopes were found back of the church scattered on the ground, with the contents missing. Perhaps the same person who stole the bicycle visited the church, but there are some queer points about the affair. The reward of $25 offered last week apparently brought the bicycle back, only the thief forgot to offer himself up and get the bounty.

As a woman accompanied by her child, a boy of about four years of age, was driving up through our street from East Putney, Saturday, the bolt that held the shafts came out, letting them upon the horse's head, when the animal started to run and turning short around tipped the wagon and occupants over in F. I. Lane's yard. They were badly frightened and the mother thought her child was injured and summoned Dr. Newton of Walpole, who found no serious, and they left a little later for their home. The wagon was broken somewhat.

GRAFTON.

Arthur Kingsbury is again at home.

Mrs. Chas. Sherwin is in Springfield, Mass.

Fred Sherwin and wife spent Sunday with their parents here.

The measles have subsided—no new cases in the last two weeks.

The farmers in town will send their milk to Boston the ensuing summer.

Mark Fairbrother and sisters have moved to their new home, the Chas. Sherwin place.

Calvin Sherwin has been in to winking up the last remnant of his household effects.

Mrs. Minerva Amsden has returned from Massachusetts. Her daughter, Mrs. N. Amsden of Clinton, came with her.

HINSDALE, N. H.

An instructive lecture on Education.

Prof. D. L. Mauley of Tufts college gave the ninth lecture in the High school course at the town hall last Friday evening. His subject was "Education," with special reference to the questions, "When shall education stop?" and "Does a college course pay?"

After stating and answering the objections commonly raised that a college course unfit for business and practical life, that it requires too much time, the speaker said that the number of the professions in which is required the highest kind of skillful and educated labor is constantly increasing. Not only must the minister, the physician, the lawyer, be fully prepared, but the architect, the journalist, the engineer, the electrician, the biologist, the chemist, the teacher, and others. Women, too, are entering all these professions, no door is closed against them. Those who wish to make the most of themselves, to be satisfied with only the best, they can do, are crowding the 400 colleges of our land.

In a more general way college fills and develops the mind giving both information and discipline, the former valuable in setting the student abreast of his time, the latter in giving him effective control of his faculties.

The general principle at the base of all needing emphasis is that mind must conquer. It is only by dealing with principles that one can take the place of a leader. Such grasp of principles is to be obtained in a modern college course, when the student may pursue a favorite subject for several years.

The question of means, always an important one, resolves itself into the old maxim, "There is no free lunch." It is a way, and opportunities for self help were never so great as now.

A POINTER FOR KIPLING.

(From "Literary Notes," Philadelphia Ledger.)

Perhaps Rudyard Kipling might get a pointer from Stockton's clever story, "The deceased wife's sister." In it an author writes a tale, it will be remembered, so preeminently superior to anything else he had ever done that he is ruined by his own inability to reach the same standard again. So he changes his name, and when he again writes a story that he considers equal in excellence to the former one he seals it up for publication after his death. Just at present the critics are jumping on Kipling. Some of his recent poetry, they say, is nothing but doggerel, and they call his later stories poor stuff. They advise him to go back to India and write some more "Barrack-room ballads" and jungle stories. While it is true that some of Kipling's work is not up to the standard the public expect from him, notably is it true of the verses produced by the Sunday paper syndicate about "How Hans Breitmann ran for president on the bicycle ticket," which is hardly worthy of a writer of Kipling's reputation, yet there is no denying the fact that he is one of the most original and brilliant prose writers and one of the most agreeable verse writers living today, and whether he lives in India or Vermont, he will continue to have admirers and a multitude of readers. His poor work is better than the good work of many other writers. Like the man in "The deceased wife's sister," his mistake has been in causing us to expect too much.

Several marine animals propagate by voluntary self division. A piece breaks off and floats away. For a time it shows no sign of life, but when it has recovered from the shock of separation it develops into a perfect animal.

MRS. LORINDA FARRAR.

In the last edition of The Phoenix was a notice of the death of Mrs. Lorinda M. Farrar and a few words descriptive of her that were excellent, but her's was such an unusual character I feel that I must add my tribute of love and admiration for the true, strong, loyal life that has passed from us. True, because to form, for no cause was decent tolerant to her. Upright and honorable herself in the smallest detail, she demanded the same from others. Strong, because through all the struggles and sorrows of her life she bore herself so bravely that her example and words of encouragement and cheer have been a help to all who knew her, and few women in private life have had greater demands made on them for sympathy and for advice.

She had a superior mind, clear, logical and broad, and a wonderful memory that enabled her, while she kept up with all the events of the day, to read, to write, to think, to feel, to act, to sympathize and to social all interested in her as she interested them equally well. And she was loyal through word and deed, through life and death, to a friend. She was fond of the young, and kept always in touch with them, but the strength of her sympathy, the tenderness of her love, and her unswerving loyalty to the old friends, the companions of her youth, so few of whom are left, so many who are welcoming her on the other side.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARIA MORSE CHENEY.

The death of Mrs. Maria Morse Cheney, which occurred on the sunset of her 91st birthday anniversary, removed one of the oldest of the town's inhabitants. Mrs. Cheney was born in Newfane May 4, 1805. On October 27, 1825, she was married to Nathaniel Cheney of Jamaica. She moved to Wardsboro, where Mr. Cheney engaged in the mercantile business, which he subsequently transferred to Jamaica and Townsend. Mr. and Mrs. Cheney came to Brattleboro in 1856, where Mr. Cheney and his eldest son, George, became successful grocers. In February, 1859, Mr. and Mrs. Cheney returned to Townsend, only to come back here the following autumn. Two years later, in February, 1861, they again went to Townsend, where they remained eight years, returning to Brattleboro for the last time in 1869, since which time Mrs. Cheney has lived at 6 Chase street. Mr. Cheney died August 9, 1874, at the age of 75 years.

Mrs. Cheney is the last of her father's family and was a sister of Austin Morse, the late High school janitor. She was a member of the Centre Congregational church, in whose affairs she was always deeply interested. She was intelligent to marked degree and possessed great force of character. She always enjoyed the best of health until last winter, when she began to fail, her death being due to the general breaking down of her system. Her remains, after being held at the house yesterday, were taken to Townsend for burial. Mrs. Cheney leaves two sons, George A., now of North Carolina, and Charles A., of Housie Falls, N. Y. Her other children were Henry W., who died in San Francisco 20 years ago, Nathaniel, and Albert A., formerly a member of the well-known firm of Cheney & Clapp.

ISAAC F. CLEVELAND.

Isaac F. Cleveland died at his Canal street home Monday morning at 3:30. He was stricken with apoplexy at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning and remained unconscious until the end. Mr. Cleveland was born in Williamsburg, Mass., June 7, 1821, and was a son of Waldo Cleveland, a hotel-keeper of the same name. He received a common school education and lived on a farm until he was 21 years old, when he served an apprenticeship of three years at the wheelwright's trade. He continued in that business in his native town for some years. He afterward carried on the same business in Greenfield and other places and was at one time in partnership with the late Edward Edwards on Flat street in this village. He was expert in the use of tools, faithful in every undertaking and won for himself a large number of friends.

In 1870 he married Mrs. Louisa B. Howe, a daughter of the late Levi Boyden of Guilford, and the greater part of his married life was spent in Guilford. He moved here in the spring of 1891 and was engaged in the oil and coal business and a half ago, when he was compelled to give up active labor on account of rheumatism. Mrs. Cleveland died October 1, 1894. Mrs. Cleveland's two sisters went as missionaries to Africa, where one died. Hattie A. Cleveland, the other sister, now lives in South Deerfield, Mass. He leaves also a brother, Edward E., of Jacksonville, Florida, and a son, Charles W., a clerk in Starkey & Wellman's store. Funeral services were held at the house at 2 P. M. Wednesday, Rev. W. H. Collins officiating. The burial was in the family lot in Guilford.

MRS. SARAH HUBBARD CLARK.

Sarah Hubbard Clark, wife of George H. Clark, died at her Canal street home Saturday morning. Mrs. Clark was the youngest and the last survivor of the children of Col. Erastus and Abigail Nims Hubbard, and was born in Sullivan, N. H., July 6, 1817, the family afterward coming to Vermont. Mrs. Clark's home had been in Brattleboro ever since her marriage, which took place in November, 1842. Her death will carry sadness to many a heart outside her immediate family. She will be mourned because of her womanly grace, kindness of heart and sweetness of character. Though retired and unassuming, she was one of usefulness and honor. She bore her long and wasting illness with Christian fortitude, cheerful and patient to the last. Of her it could be truly said:

None knew her but to love her
None named her but to praise her.

Beside her husband she leaves one son, Henry C. Clark, one of the best known farmers in town, and four grandchildren with whom she always sustained loving and confidential relations, and to whom the loss comes with great severity. The funeral was held at the house Monday afternoon, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Mr. Leavitt of the Unitarian church, of which Mrs. Clark was a long time member.

MRS. MARY ANN MORRIS.

Mrs. Mary Ann Morris, wife of Isaac B. Morris and daughter of the late Israel Wood of West Brattleboro, died at her Elliot street home at 12 o'clock Tuesday morning, of bronchial consumption. Mrs. Morris was born in West Brattleboro, Oct. 1, 1820, and since her marriage had lived in Guilford and Vernon and, for the past 15 years, in Brattleboro. She was a member of the Methodist church. She has buried three brothers and has three brothers living, also a half brother, B. M. Wood. Beside these and her husband she leaves an only son, Albert Morris, now employed by the Fire and Police Notification company of Boston. Funeral services were held at the house yesterday afternoon, Rev. C. O. Day officiating. The burial was at West Brattleboro.

MRS. ABIE DOOLIN.

Mrs. Abbie Doolin died Tuesday afternoon at the Elliot street home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Higgins. Mrs. Doolin was the widow of Patrick A. Doolin, who died in 1880. The end came suddenly to Mrs. Doolin. She had suffered with asthma for two years and on the day of her death was attacked with severe pains in the region of her heart. Mrs. Doolin was 94 years old and had been a resident of Brattleboro for over 30 years. Besides three brothers and one sister she leaves an only son, Timothy Doolin of South Framingham, Mass., a former employee of the Brattleboro Telephone exchange. Funeral services were held yesterday morning at the Roman Catholic church, Rev. Father Cunningham officiating. The burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

D. A. C. SMITH.

Don Alonzo Cushman Smith, 54, died Saturday night at the home of Casper Roeder in North Hardsme, where he had lived for the past 25 years. He was one of the 14 children of the late Floyd Smith and was born in New York city. He leaves four sisters, Mrs. F. W. Brooks, now in California, Mrs. Shea, Mrs. Judah and Mrs. Mendon of New York. The funeral was held at Mr. Roeder's Monday, Rev. Mr. Collins officiating. The body was taken to New York city Tuesday for interment in Trinity churchyard.

The New York "Struck Jury" System.

The new "struck jury" law of New York is a novelty in criminal jurisprudence which has not yet been tested in practice, but there can be no doubt that it will accomplish much in the way of improving the jury panels and expediting the trial of cases. The tedious delays in selecting juries to try certain cases growing out of the Lexow investigations led New York judges to frame a law providing for the selection from the general jury lists of 2000 men, between 30 and 70 years of age, who reach a certain standard of mental ability, who are without conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and who believe themselves "to be able to lay aside opinions or impressions formed from newspaper reading or hearsay, and to render an impartial verdict upon evidence uninfluenced by such opinions or impressions." The jury commissioners charged with the duty of selecting these special jurors are to ascertain, by personal examination, whether the 2000 on the requirements of the act, and when selected they are not obliged to serve at more than one trial in a year. The selection of a trial jury from the 3000 is to be permitted by the court only upon special application, and only when it appears that the totality of publicity which the case has assumed would make the selection of a satisfactory jury from the general list a matter of difficulty. Under this system it will still be possible to challenge the special jurors as to their mental qualifications, but the judges believe that challenges will be relatively few; that much time and money will be saved, and that the verdicts given will be more worthy of confidence. The operation of the new law will be watched with much interest.

The Nicaragua Canal.

Ex-Senator Henry L. Dawes of Pittsfield, Mass., has been delivering a course of lectures in Hanover, N. H. In his last lecture, which was on "Inter-oceanic commerce," he spoke of the importance to the United States of the Nicaragua canal. "Like Nicaragua," he said, "will become a naval station of the power whose capital builds this canal, and one of the most formidable characters on the globe. It can float the largest navy in the world, and lies midway between and less than 24 hours distant from the entire commerce of the United States with the Atlantic and the Pacific. It would be to the United States what Gibraltar is to the British empire. It would be an act of the blindest folly, if not of the most humiliating cowardice, for this nation to quietly fold its arms and permit to the greatest of naval stations, to pass out of our control, compelling every ton of our coastwise commerce, already exceeding the ocean tonnage of all Europe, to pass under the guns of a foreign power as it is transmitted from port to port on our own coast."

The statement is of interest in this connection that the Panama canal scheme is not dead yet, but that a new company has been formed, with a capital of $10,000,000, for the purpose of making borings along its route and building a miniature trial canal along the most difficult part of the system. If the outlook is encouraging when this is done, it is said that financial institutions are ready to advance $100,000,000 to complete the great work. The United States cannot afford to have either of these canals built without having something to say about its control.

Keep Your Weather Eye on the Currency Issue.

(From the New York Advertiser.)

There is a comfortable conviction abroad in the ranks of the Republican party that the St. Louis candidate is bound to be elected president of the United States, and this feeling of perfect security tends to indifference in matters of party policy. But the fact remains that the issue between gold and silver cannot be evaded or put off. The Republican party must face and settle this issue for itself at St. Louis and then fight it out with its opponents at the polls next November. The choice of a candidate is a secondary consideration. He must stand or fall on the platform adopted by his party. There is an almost absolute unanimity in the party upon all questions of public policy except that of the currency, and upon this the majority is unquestionably in favor of the gold standard. But there is danger that its supporters at St. Louis may be outgeneraled by the aggressive and never sleeping silverites. Every declaration like that in California adds to the certainty and the intensity of the contest.

Crawfishing.—She—What did you mean by saying that I had a face that would stop a clock? You need not deny saying it.

He—I know I said it, but I didn't get to finish. I meant that even a clock would pause to hold its hands up in admiration when it saw your lovely countenance.

"I'm the Man Who Shot You."

Veterans Meet Thirty Years Afterward and Identify Themselves.

J. H. Wyman of Chicago went to Newport News recently, and while waiting for a ferryboat a stranger, a man about Wyman's age, came up and shared his seat. They were waiting for the same boat.

"You were in the Union army," said the stranger, glancing at a button on Wyman's lapel. "Where did you serve?"

"I was in the First Wisconsin Heavy Artillery, and put in a good share of the time guarding the big bridge over the Green river in Kentucky," answered the North-erner.

"You did! I twice helped to blow up that bridge, and was there when the third attempt, which you fellows stopped, was made. It was a black night in winter when we went up the third time. There were only a few of us, but enough to do the work if it were done quickly, and we could pass through the Federal pickets. We reached a point 1000 yards south of where we thought your picket line was, and I was sent forward alone to locate the line and find some place through which we could pass. I walked along freely until I thought I ought to take some care, and then I dropped to my hands and knees and went that way for a while. It was so dark I could see absolutely nothing. All at once I struck a dry brush and snapped a stick under my knee at the same time. Then a rifle shot came from a picket at a point not twenty yards away and my right arm was broken by the ball. The fellow had fired at the noise and made a good shot. It alarmed the guard, and our third attempt to blow up the bridge was a failure. Were you there then?"

"Yes," said Wyman, "I am the man who shot you. I never saw you, but I heard the moving of the brush and the breaking of the twig. After I shot you walked straight to the right for about ten yards and then ran back for your command."

"That I did exactly," said the Southerner.

"We found your tracks in the sand the next day. I did not know I hit you. I am glad I did not kill you, and I'm mighty glad to see you."

Then they shook hands and took up the journey together.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The financial pledges upon which the National Democratic convention was voted to Chicago have not been redeemed. The treasurer of the local committee says the amount pledged was $40,000. Of this amount $10,000 has been paid over and he has $40,000 more in hand. The total subscription is $25,000, so that if every cent subscribed is collected there will still be a shortage of $14,000.

"Old Hundred" first appeared in print, so far as known, in the "Greenwich Pasture," published in 1551, where it was set to Psalm cxxxiv. When this book made its way to England and was reprinted there this melody was set to Psalm c, and when a new edition appeared, tunes that were retained from the former were designated "old," to distinguish them from such as had been added.

The proposed disposal of the property of the late John Stetson, the millionaire theatrical manager, is causing much comment in Boston. Mr. Stetson died a few weeks ago and the death of his wife, Katherine Stokes, a former noted circus performer, occurred Saturday. Mr. Stetson left all his property to his widow. Adah Richmond, an actress, appears as claimant for the property, and presents evidence to show that she was Stetson's legal wife. A mysterious Mrs. Lane also makes a similar claim.

Is life worth living? Yes, so long as spring revives the year.
And hails to us with the cuckoo's song.
To show us that the year is new.
So long as May of April takes,
In smiles and tears, farewell,
And withers' dapple all the brakes,
And promises the fall.
While children in the woodlands yet
Adorn their little lake,
With lily-snook and violet,
And daisy-clovers and the like,
While over orchard daffodils
Cloud-shadows float and fleet,
And oases' pipes and larkens trill,
And young lambs buck and bleat;
So long as that which turns the bud
And awakes and turns the rill,
Makes springtime in the maiden's blood,
Life is worth living still.
