Burglars broke a window in the front part of A. E. Wood's hardware store near Whitestone bridge yesterday morning and reached through and took two revolvers, the selling price of which was $4.30 each. It was a bold burglary and was committed by two persons, who were seen by at least two others. Elmer Hall opened Hall's restaurant across the street soon after 4 o'clock and in a short time he heard a crash of glass and looked out in time to see two persons running across Whitestone bridge. "Bill" Bailey, who was at the Brattleboro House, saw them cross the bridge to New Hampshire. When Mr. Wood arrived at his store at 7 o'clock he found under the window an iron used on the railroad, with which the glass had been broken. He notified Officer Hinds of Hinsdale and Chief Hall notified Deputy Sheriff Bixford of Winchester. The burglars have not been caught, but it is believed that they passed through both those towns.

An interesting feature of the work of putting in a new vault in the People's National bank was the installation of two vault doors and vestibule from the depot Tuesday afternoon. The three pieces came fastened together and were billed as weighing 10,000 lbs. They were in charge of the job. He had the steel hoisted on a heavy truck, which, with the blocking timbers, made the total weight of the load about 15,000 lbs. The horses were attached, the village horses being the leaders. While going up the hill from the railroad to the Brattleboro House, some one loose on the road the evening ahead of him and was carried up the hill on his hind feet, but he was not hurt. It had stopped it would have been impossible to get it up again. After resting on the bridge the horses centered up the American House hill, which was a long and hard load and at that point the steam roller was attached to the rear end of the truck to draw it back toward the depot. The bank building, through which the doors and vestibule are being taken by blocking.
