VILLAGE PEOPLE

ENGAGE IN FUN

West Brattleboro's First Community Picnic

Games of Odd Character—Children's Amusements, Sporting, Lanes, Ghost Banquet, Lantern Parade.

West Brattleboro had its first community picnic and outing Wednesday and a large number of children and adults were on hand to see and take part in the fun. The morning program, which was prepared especially for the small children, was given on the common, while the afternoon and evening events took place on the grounds in front of Academy hall.

In the morning some 50 children were on hand in four sorts of costumes to play games. Dodge ball was played and a peanut hunt and toss were staged. During the games several of the larger girls, costumed as gnomes, told stories to the small children. The morning program closed with a parade by the children under the direction of Mrs. L. W. Jackman.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon activities started again with a game of volley ball between teams captained by Frederic K. Brown and W. E. Bartlett. Mr. Bartlett's team emerged victorious after a hard game.

The younger children meanwhile were attempting to walk the balancing pole, a large number of boys and girls, a post and parallel with the ground. The trick was to walk the length to the limb, which swayed under even the lightest weight, without being suddenly blown off to the ground. The winners of this contest were given molasses kisses.

At 3 o'clock the sports started. A large number of people gathered at 6 o'clock and enjoyed their picnic lunches. With the coming of night 100 Japanese lanterns were hung about the grounds, furnishing a pleasing lighting effect.

NOTABLE WEDDING.

sent the maid of honor a string of pearls and to the bridesmaids earrings of various colors. The bridegroom presented the best man a silver-headed cane, and to the ushers he gave pearl-handled knives and cigarette cases.

The bride attended the Winchester (Mass.) high school and later attended the Elias in Springfield, Mass., from which she graduated. In 1916 she entered Putnam Hall, a preparatory school for Vassar, where she studied one year, and immediately afterward she entered Vassar, where she remained a year and a half. Later she attended Radcliffe college at Cambridge, Mass.

The bridegroom is a graduate of St. Luke's preparatory school at Wayne, Pa., and in 1914 he entered Harvard university. In May, 1917, he entered the service and became allied with the American Field Service, attached to the French army. While in France he received a commission as first lieutenant in the ambulance service. In May, 1919, he returned to the United States and later entered Columbia law school at New York city, from which he graduated last month with the degree of LL.B. Mr. MacDonald already has taken his examination for the bar, and he plans that he will practice law with Edwin Updike, who has offices in the Singer building, New York city, and who formerly was a member of the law firm of Mitchell, Miller & Updike. Mr. Mitchell was John Purroy Mitchell, former mayor of New York, who it will be recalled, was killed in an airplane accident in Texas after he had enlisted as aviator in the service of the government in the World war. Mr. Mullin is now a justice of the supreme court of the state of New York, and he had been appointed to that office several months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald have not planned any definite wedding trip, but they may tour New England and possibly some of the other states in their new automobile.

Mr. Brown, father of the bride, needs no introduction to the people of Brattleboro. He is a man of inestimable worth to the community and state and has a multitude of friends and acquaintances to whom he has endeared himself during his long residence in Windham county. He is treasurer and general manager of the Parker-Young Co. of Boston, manufacturers of lumber and paper. This concern owns 150,000 acres of timber land located in 29 different towns in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, and operates two large mills in the state of Washington, besides eight large mills and many smaller ones throughout New England. Mr. Brown also is treasurer and general manager of the Woodstock Lumber Co. of Boston, which has the largest spruce dimension mill in New England at Booke River, six miles from Plymouth, N. H. He is president of the Brattleboro Trust Co. Mrs. Brown was Clara M. Holbrook of Whitehall, Vt.

Edward MacDonald, father of the bridegroom, is president of the Queensborough Corporation of New York, which is engaged in building large apartment houses on Long Island. At present he is building a large number of houses at Jackson Heights, L. I.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Brown was the scene of a pretty social event Friday evening, the occasion being a dinner given to the bride and groom in honor of the approaching marriage.

The event took place in the Playhouse at 7.30. The dining hall was attractively decorated with potted spruces and the tables presented a pretty scene with cases of field flowers of various colors. Boyden's of Northampton, Mass., catered. Miss Brown presented each of her guests an old-fashioned nosegay of sweetheart roses and larkspur. Following the dinner an orchestra furnished music, and dancing and a social evening were enjoyed until a late hour.

Certain conditions are named in the will, which the beneficiaries will undertake to fulfill. Mrs. Sears has retained Barber, Barber & Miller of Brattleboro as her counsel. Attorney F. E.
