He left his home for his work in Fitzdale at an early morning hour and the work of the forenoon found him in his usual good cheer. The lunch hour was passed among friends. Suddenly, just before the work of the afternoon was to begin, without warning and with no apparent pain he passed on.

Mr. Morgan was born at Concord, Vt., Oct. 29, 1850, one of 15 children of William Storrs Morgan and Samantha Spaulding Morgan. Early in life he married Mary Jane Stone, widow of George Stone, who lived only a few years; no children resulted from the union. Later he married Mary Elliott Savage and with her he lived till his death. The last forty years of his life were spent in Lunenburg. For almost half a century he was a faithful worker at the casket factory in the village.

Glenn Douglass officiated for the Congregational church of which Mr. Morgan was a member. The Moose River Lodge of Masons conducted the burial service. He was laid to rest at Riverside. Surrounded by the widow, Mary Elliott, two sons, Rev. Walter Amos of Washington, D. C., and Lloyd Elliott, of Lunenburg, besides two brothers, six sisters and many nephews and nieces, he will be missed by many hearts.

Mrs. James Beattie passed away at the home of her daughter on Tuesday morning after an illness of several months during all of which she was tenderly cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Spaulding, being assisted during the last days by Miss Susanne Dodge, another daughter. Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Spaulding on Thursday, Sept. 24th. Rev. Glenn Douglas officiated and the interment was in the family lot in Riverside cemetery.
