The National Republican Text Book for 1894, just issued, is one of the most complete volumes ever presented to the people. It contains 330 pages arranged in the form of a political encyclopedia. Send twenty-five cents in postage stamps to Thos. H. McKee, Secretary, 210 Delaware Avenue, N. E., Washington, D. C., and get a copy.

Monday evening, after the regular services of the Christian Endeavor Society of the M. P. church, the members were invited to go over to the parsonage to spend the evening and thus become better acquainted with the pastor and his family. Although it was a stormy evening, about 35 or 40 young people congregated and were soon comfortably located, enjoying themselves in social chats, plays, music, etc. A bounteous repast was served of oysters, coffee, fruit, and other delicacies, and of course the Endeavors "endeavored." Well, to say the least, the evening was profitably and enjoyably spent.
