CRUSHED TO DEATH

While Coupling Cars Two Miles West of Yale on the P. M. R'y Yesterday.

A sad and fatal accident occurred a couple of miles west of Yale at 11 a. m. yesterday. A construction train was operating on the Pere Marquette, and M. V. Meredith, foreman of the construction crew, was coupling the pile driver to the train. In a manner not known to us, he was so horribly injured that he only lived an hour and a half from the time of the accident. He was taken to Melvin where he died. Mr. Meredith was at one time a man of prominence, having been post-master at Saginaw. Formerly he was superintendent of the west division of the P. M. R'y. He was about 66 years old.

A Prosperous Year.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. J. A. Menzies is the retiring president, held its first meeting for 1901, at the home of the president, on Wednesday afternoon, January 9th. There was a good attendance. As the meeting was the annual one, the society elected the following officers to serve for 1901:—
President—Mrs. Chas. Rounds.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. E. B. Fuller and Mrs. J. A. Menzies.
Secretary—Mrs. G. W. Allen.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. R. Beecher.
Mrs. E. R. Holbrook, the retiring secretary, made a very encouraging report of the work of the year which we summarize as follows:—When the year began the treasurer's books showed a balance on hand of 42 cents. Since that time six suppers have been held, netting the society $114.45. The carnival resulted in a gain of $138.13. Other sources have yielded smaller sums, such as the dues paid, and fees for work done. The total for the year was $285.97.
The society is ready to receive sewing.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. E. W. Farley, Wednesday, January 23rd.

Brought Good Fortune.

A small item in his own paper lately brought amazing good fortune to Editor Chris. Reitter, of the Saginaw (Mich.) Post and Zeitung. He and his family had the grip in its worst form. Their doctor did them no good. Then he read that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds was a guaranteed cure for la grippe and all throat and lung troubles; tried it and says: "Three bottles cured the whole family. No other medicine on earth equals it." Only 50c and $1.00 at Grant Holden's drug store. Trial bottles free.

We All Enjoyed It.

The book that was not published for years after its author's death, and when it did appear, the critics told us it was very commonplace and would never be popular, is now widely read and among the most popular of American novels. David Harum is true to life, and more especially true to an American type of life, of which its leading character is a fitting picture. Interest in the book as well as the repute of E. H. Frye, the Monologist, drew a large crowd to Central Hall last Friday evening.

The occasion was the third entertainment in the 1900-1 lecture course. If we are to judge by the aftermath of what every body says, the monology was fine. It had to be—such a subject. All that was needed was the skill to portray it, and the artist showed that he had abundant skill. In the glimpses given of David himself and the side characters of the story, Mr. Frye thoroughly captivated the crowd. Solemn people laughed, and even the merriest had to cry at times. He carried his hearers along the line of life pictured by the author, and all seemed real. The rapid change from character to character in the intonation and the facial expressions were very pleasing.

Under his skillful working of the moving picture machinery, years of real life were made to pass before the audience in what seemed a few moments of time, but what in reality was almost two hours. At the close of the first part of the program his hearers were figuratively in the air. The problem was to get them down to the level of commonplace life—and home. Mr. Frye was equal to the task. Little by little, and with joke after joke—and a few chestnuts thrown broadcast—they folded their wings and settled down to the fact that they were not at Homeville with David, Aunt Polly, the Widow and the Deacon, but here in Yale—and it was bedtime.

Mrs. Mary Morgan.

Mrs. Mary Morgan, who died at her home two miles west of Yale, on Tuesday morning, January 8, 1901, had about reached the allotted period of man's life on earth—three score and ten years. She was born in Dromore, County Down, Ireland in 1831. Her maiden name was Mary English. She came to this country when about 20 years of age, landing at New York City. After some time she came to Buffalo, where soon after she was married to Wm. J. Morgan, who died a year ago the 29th inst. To this union was born seven sons, only two of whom yet survive, James, who resides at Laurel, Sanilac county, and John W. who resides at Yale.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan first settled in Canada, but came to Michigan almost 40 years ago, settling upon the farm where they both died. The mere statement of this date tells us the story of pioneer toil and privation incident to the settling of a new country. In this they each shared the lot common to all settlers who came to these parts at that early date. Mrs. Morgan had not been in good health for some years, having suffered with what seemed a slowly progressive form of consumption. It is the conviction of those most intimately acquainted, that by sheer force of will she had prolonged her life for some years.

In early life she was associated with the Presbyterian church; though of late years she has not been able to attend the church, excepting rarely. Her funeral service was held on Thursday, January 10th, conducted by Rev. Wm. Coulter. These rites were performed in the Menerey Church, two miles south-west of this place, and at their close the interment was made in Elmwood cemetery at Yale.

The children of the late Mary Morgan desire us to say in their behalf that they very much appreciate the kindness shown, and are thankful to all who rendered aid during the last sickness and burial of their mother.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, melancholy, sleeplessness, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Petoson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my household work." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grant Holden's drug store.

Wanted.

Hickory, oak and black ash poles from inch to 4 inches at top end; seven and eight feet long. Will pay good price for the same. For further information call on J. C. Hart, Yale. 2

A CARD.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded. Grant Holden, Yale.
