ANOTHER INDUSTRY.

E. B. Fuller & Co. to Build a Creamery in Yale the Coming Spring.

Besides being one of the prime movers in establishing a canning factory in this place, E. B. Fuller has found time to consider the possibilities of a creamery in Yale.

The idea materialized the first of the week after a visit from his cousin Henry Dickson, of Silver Springs, N. Y., who is an owner and manager of a large creamery in that place. While Mr. Dickson was here he very satisfactorily explained to Mr. Fuller and others the many advantages a creamery successfully managed, would have to the farmers of this locality.

It is not necessary for us to state to the farmers the benefits derived from a creamery; that it would be a boon to the village and community at large goes without saying. From the past experience some of our former friends have had, the question will naturally arise: "Can a creamery be successfully run at a profit to the farmers and its owner?"

The fact that Mr. Fuller will own and manage the enterprise should be sufficient to convince every person who knows him that it will be a decided success. He is not by any means "jumping at conclusions," having visited New York last August with the above object in view and having considered well his undertaking.

Also having had over eighteen years experience in a business way with the farmers enables him to know what is a real benefit to them, and in establishing a creamery in Yale Mr. Fuller fully realizes that his success depends wholly upon their patronage. A committee is canvassing the country this week to learn just what support Mr. Fuller can get and the number of farmers who will be consistent patrons of the creamery.

Mr. Fuller informs us that with a little assistance from the farmers he will build a creamery second to none in the state, and have it in operation by the first of June, 1902. Let us encourage him.

Grangers Organize.

As announced in last week's issue of The Expressor a meeting was held in Forester Hall, Yale, on Saturday, January 25th, at which time a subordinate lodge of the State Grange was organized and the following officers were elected:

Master—T. H. Parkinson
Overseer—Wm. P. Darling
Lecturer—Del Waldorff
Steward—Albert Carlyle
Assistant Steward—Stephen Williams
Chaplain—Alex Lowe
Treasurer—Gus Smith
Secretary—Mrs. A. Carlyle
Gate Keeper—Wm. Hyde
Pamona—Mrs. Nicholas Owens
Flora—Mrs. Wm. P. Darling
Ceres—Mrs. Del Waldorff

The next meeting will be held on Saturday, February 8th, at one o'clock in the afternoon in Forester Hall at which time the charter will be closed. All that wish to join as Charter Members are invited to attend and help the good work along. Over twenty members have already joined and as many more are expected to be ready at the next meeting.

The Event of the Season.

Rev. Francis B. Doherty, Catholic priest of New York City, will lecture in Central Hall, Yale, seven nights. First lecture Sunday evening, February 2d, at 7:30. All about confession, infallibility of Pope, etc. All questions answered. All are cordially invited. Admission free.

CHILD WORTH MILLIONS.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird of Harrisburg, Pa. "I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. Grant Holden.

The Old Poet's Tribute.

Many of our readers, and especially the older residents of the village, will recall the better days of James S. Kennedek, surveyor, civil engineer, poet and pungent newspaper correspondent. It was he who plotted a part of the village and for him was named Kennedek street.

Soon after this work was done and about the year 1883, Kennedek moved to Sanilac county where for years he traversed the forests, waded the rivers and almost inaccessible swamps and marshes for which that region was at that time remarkable, and suffered the many hardships incident to a surveyor's life in a new country. These, with a habit of too frequent use of the cup that has ruined many another bright intellect, soon had their direful effect, and the once erect and vigorous frame became stooped, the once striking features haggard, and the keen eyed dimmed.

But notwithstanding these ravages and abuses we were frequently treated to occasional flashes of ability, culture and pure moral sentiment from his pen, many of his poetical efforts being of especial merit.

The recent history of the old man's return to Ireland, his native home, is well known. Since his return Harvey Tappan and the old man have kept up frequent correspondence, and last week he received a letter containing a tribute to a sister, recently deceased, and which was published in the Kilkenney Journal, edited by a relative of Kennedek. The following are extracts from the old man's tribute:

The skylark was soaring, warbling sweetly,
On that bright summer's morning so soft and dear
To me,
When I pressed her soft hand with fervor and farewell,
By the weird moaning waters of the high rolling sea.

Born in a beautiful vale of rare beauty,
By the sound of the sea and in sight of its foam,
She grew like a flower amid blooming red roses,
Which shed loveliest incense on our dear native home.

O, deck her cold grave with garlands of flowers,
Smooth down the emerald shroud of her grave;
May the holiest halm of Elysian bowers,
Shed incense from heaven her pure soul to save.

Her spirit is with me in my nocturnal slumbers,
And sweet is the vision of CATHIA MACHIE;
O, 'tis heaven to be with her in vision most holy,
In our childhood's sweet home by the balmy blue sea.

And sadly I weep for my venerable sister,
Now resting in peace in the grave's silent cell;
O, happy is she near the throne of high heaven,
Farwell, my own loved one, farewell, ah! farewell.

"Truth and Shams."

The fourth number of the entertainment course of the high school was as rich in success as the preceding ones. Hon. Joseph G. Camp graced the platform at Central Hall, on this occasion, Friday evening last, and the audience as usual, was very large and appreciative. Mr. Camp is a prominent orator of the south and although suffering greatly from a severe cold this night, he fully demonstrated his ability as an eloquent speaker. His subject "Truth and Shams" was presented in a most logical, forceful manner and brought to light very plainly the truths and shams of every day life. The moral and elevated tone of the whole lecture can not fail to leave a good impression on his audiences. Although not overflowing with witticisms, as was our last speaker, still the occasional jokes were brought out with such expression that they were exceedingly relished by his hearers. Mr. Camp's manner of speaking is fine. One loses no word of a sentence through his easy, natural way of speaking. His lecture "Truth and Shams" is certainly good and abounds in great and elevating thoughts.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that people who use the streets as a dumping ground for coal ashes or other refuse must abate the practice at once. By order common council.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 1st

Will be a great day at the store—it's muslin underwear day and we shall expect to see you here. Our entire second floor will be given over to the display. You may come expecting to see the finest collection of dainty under muslins ever shown in the store—you will not be disappointed. If you are unable to come to the store, write us for the muslin underwear catalogue—it will be ready about that time. The new spring and summer shirt waist goods will be also shown for the first time Saturday. Write for samples but be sure and state exactly what you want—strips, plaids, plain shades, in gingham, percale, or as the case may be.
