Harding and Coolidge Head Republican Ticket

Ten Ballots Taken to Decide the Presidential Nomination.—A Good Selection.

Warren G. Harding, United States senator from Ohio, was nominated for the presidency on the tenth ballot Saturday evening by the Republican national convention after a deadlock, which lasted for nine ballots and forced out of running all the original favorites. He received 692 votes.

As his running mate, the convention named Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, on the first ballot, upsetting a plan of a combination of the Harding backers to nominate for the place Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin. Coolidge got 674 votes.

General Wood lost heavily, however, when the Harding drift began, and Senator Johnson, the third of the trio of leaders on the early balloting Friday, also went steadily down hill.

There was no official total of the final ballot. Near the close of the ballot there was a wholesale switching of votes to the Harding camp, and then a motion to make it unanimous. This motion failed because of the opposition of the Wisconsin delegation.

Entering the convention four days before the close as a candidate distinctly of the "dark horse" class, Senator Harding got only 64 votes on the first ballot and the second he dropped to 56. When the convention adjourned Friday night, at the end of the fourth ballot he had 61.

Governor Lowden came to the convention during the ninth roll call and reversing a previous plan to go before the convention itself issued instructions from behind the scene, releasing his instructed delegates. Senator Harding also was in the rear of the Coliseum platform during the voting and conferred with Chairman Hays.

Almost as soon as the alphabetical call of states began after the recess the ground swell for Harding demonstrated that it could not be forestalled.

As the tenth roll call began delegates quit Lowden, Wood and Johnson right and left, and the big hall was in almost continuous applause as state after state announced accession to the Harding standard.

The final check up showed 692 for Harding with only 12 left supporting Lowden, 157 for Wood and 80 for Johnson. At their best, earlier in the day, the Wood people had mustered 312 votes and the Lowden forces 311. Johnson's high point was 148, registered on the third ballot Saturday.

A motion to make the nomination unanimous was passed in a great chorus of approval but when opportunity was given for negative votes there were some "noes" from Wisconsin, whose delegation throughout the day had voted amid hisses and cat calls almost solidly for Senator Robert LaFollette.

Enthusiasm For Coolidge

The plan to nominate Senator Lenroot for the vice presidency had the backing of many of the men who had helped put Harding over, but the name of Governor Coolidge stirred the delegates and galleries to repeated cheering and he was swept into second place on the ticket before the first roll call had gone two-thirds of its length.

Governor Coolidge got 674 votes to 146 for Senator Lenroot and 67 for Governor Allen of Kansas. Several others got scattering support without being placed formally in nomination.

MENEREY-BEADLE

At one-thirty this afternoon, Thursday, June 17th, 1920, occurred the wedding of two of Yale's best known and most popular young people. At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Katherine F. Menerey, her daughter Isabel was given in marriage to Frank D. Beadle.

Dressed in a beautiful gown of white satin and lace, carrying a bouquet of sweet peas, the bride was as sweet as her flowers.

Attended by Miss Jessie McCall and the groom assisted by Mr. Albert Menerey, brother of the bride the marriage ceremony was spoken by Rev. Eldred Charles, of Caro, using the impressive ring ceremony.

It was a very simple, quiet and unostentatious wedding, only the nearest relatives being present. Their congratulations were sincere and hearty. The wedding dinner, a delicious repast was then served, and soon afterward Mr. and Mrs. Beadle left for a short wedding trip, after which they will make their home in St. Clair, where Frank has a good position in the St. Clair Savings Bank.

Isabel Menerey is one of Yale's own daughters, having been born and living here all her life, except for one year in Ann Arbor. She graduated from Yale high three years ago and took a position as bookkeeper for the Yale Lumber & Coal Co. The past two years have been spent in the First National Bank. She is loved by everyone.

Frank D. is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beadle, of Melvin. He attended the Yale school and is also a graduate, after which he was employed in the First National Bank until he was called into service in the late war. He was in France about a year. A short time ago he was tendered the position of cashier in the St. Clair Savings Bank at St. Clair. He is a young man of promise and the best wishes of the whole community, united with the Expositor force go with them both on their single journey through life.

As a reminder of love and respect, many beautiful gifts have been received by the bride from her many friends.

RETIREES WITH HONORS

With the closing of Yale public school for the spring of 1920, the superintendency of N. J. Drouyor ends. We have to say it over and again to really believe it, and then it will be only possible when a new superintendent steps into our school next fall and the familiar figure of Mr. Drouyor is seen there no more.

It is with sorrow and regret on our part, and we know on the part of the majority of our citizens that he leaves the post he has so ably filled for thirteen years. He has so become a real and necessary part of the whole machinery that one feels as though it could not run as smoothly without him.

Although, like the head of any institution of the kind, or of any kind, he has had his troubles and perplexities and problems, he has mastered them all, and stands today, in the estimation of Yale's thinking people and all who know him, as one of the best instructors and superintendents in our state.

During Mr. Drouyor's thirteen years in our city he has graduated one hundred and ninety-seven young people. Does that speak well or ill for our school and its superintendent?

For the school and for the city, for the church and the home, and for the social life, his interests, his aim and his influence has always been felt for the welfare and the uplift of each and everyone.

The young people under his instruction, especially, have nothing but words of praise for his work with them, so as we said before, it is with actual regret that we part with Mr. Drouyor.

We do not know his plans for the future, but the best wishes of all are with him and his family if they leave us or decide to remain here for a time.

A meeting of Sanilac County Farm Bureau will be held at Roseburg Monday evening, June 21st, at 8:00 o'clock. All members cordially invited to attend. Matters of importance will be discussed and transacted.

STOWE'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" COMPANY

John F. Stowe's mammoth production of the immortal American drama, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the most correct and impressive scenic production of the late Harriet Beecher Stowe's everlasting legacy to posterity ever seen in America, the only version that has been accepted by the pulpit as a moral instructor. No such amount of money as John F. Stowe has spent on this play has ever before been expended on this neglected and abused American drama. They have taken great pains in the selection of the cast and have engaged actors for their special fitness for their various parts, rather than for their ability to play some instrument in the band which has been the rule with managers of like attractions. The company which Mr. Stowe will bring to our city is said to number over 50 people. A special train of twelve auto cars and trucks are required to transport this famous monarch of them all. One grand night performance only at Yale, Friday, June 18. Tents are positively waterproof.

BIG PROGRAM IS NEARLY READY

Will Be Published in Full in the Expositor Next Week.—It Is By Far the Best Yet

The program for the monster Caledonian Celebration to be held at Riverside Park, Yale, on Monday and Tuesday, July 5th and 6th is just about completed and will be published in next week's Expositor. It is by far the best one yet, and we know everyone will be in attendance, for at the price of admission it is the biggest bundle of entertainment for a little money ever staged in Yale.

The athletic program will be pulled off each morning, and the contests will pay good prizes.

Promptly at one o'clock in the afternoon the doings will be turned over to the Henderson Kiltie Lads and Lassies, and for two or three hours they will put on good clean wholesome entertainment. There will be selections by the pipe band, Scotch and other dancing. Sam Munro, Canada's Juvenile Harry Lauder, Alice Dunbar, the queen of lady comedians and Oliver Sinclair, concert tenor.

Ralph M. Crisman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Port Huron and Rev. Alfred Martin, of Yale are the speakers for the first day, and Congressman Cramton, the second day. If railway connections can possibly be made to reach Yale, Milo D. Campbell will also be here on the 6th.

Each evening there will be a big concert on the grounds, and you will get your money's worth and then some at each performance.

There are only a few of the advance tickets to be sold yet, and if you haven't secured yours yet, you'd better call at the Expositor office this week and get one.

Bear the dates in mind—July 5 and 6, and make plans to attend the fifth annual celebration which will be "bigger and better."

Met Death By Drowning

The Detroit Free Press of Monday morning published an article stating that Lyle Davis, a Freshman student of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, was drowned while bathing in Huron river, Saturday, June 12. Our people could hardly believe that it was true, but were compelled to when W. H. Learmont received word from his son Victor who was at the scene of the drowning shortly after it happened. The young man who met the sad fate was a student in our schools for many years and graduated in 1919 with honors. He was bright in his studies and was a favorite with all his classmates. About a year ago his parents moved to Ann Arbor and Lyle entered the University. His prospects for a bright future could not have been better and the sad ending of a young life brings sorrow not only to his parents but his many friends in Yale.

Commencement Program Is Given At Auditorium

LETTER FROM FLORIDA

Lutz, Fla., June 11, 1920

Yale Expositor,
J. A. Menzies, Publisher,
Yale, Michigan

Friend Jim:—I guess I am a little overdue and hope the remittance reaches you before you cut me off, for I could not keep house without the weekly visits of the "Old Expos."

I rather expected to get back to Yale again this summer, but am a little afraid that it is going to be a little difficult. They have made some changes in the duties of station agents on this line which will necessitate my presence here until I can get a clerk experienced enough to leave in charge.

Business of all kinds has been increasing quite rapidly during the past eight months. It is estimated that there is upwards of 2,000 acres out in citrus trees within a radius of five miles from Lutz. Of course there is only about one third of the land as it runs suitable for citrus culture, the rest of it being truck land and lakes.

There has been one thing pretty thoroughly demonstrated during the past three years and that is that there is no better land for citrus culture in Florida, than this particular part. It is that good that the Buckeye Nurseries, the largest concern of the kind in the state, are putting in two nurseries right here at Lutz. Their manager told me personally that the land here was a little safer from frost than in the vicinity of Winter Haven, which some claim to be the best part of Florida and where you have to pay $150.00 per acre for raw land.

I would like very much to see some of my old Yale friends get a nice grove started in this vicinity to settle down on when he was through hustling in the cold and frozen northland.

Sometime in the near future I will write you at greater length a few particulars which may be interesting to some of your readers, although few are much interested in Florida until the winter winds begin to blow. Until then, au revoir.

Yours truly,
E. H. DRAKE

OBITUARY

The body of William James Holden was brought to Yale on Monday evening and funeral services were held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith on Tuesday, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., Rev. Mumby pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiating.

William J. Holden was born on August 31st, 1850, in Strathroy, Ont. He was married to Marian Alice Thompson, of Listowell, and one son was born to them. About twelve years ago the family moved to Flint, Michigan, where the death of Mrs. Holden occurred. Her body was interred in Elmwood cemetery, Yale.

About a year ago the son also died. For several years Mr. Holden has been living in Detroit. His death occurred at his brother's Dr. Hiram Holden's home in Trenton, and interment was made in Elmwood cemetery beside his wife.

Three brothers, H. H., of Yale; Dr. Hiram, of Trenton; Frank, of Imlay City, and two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Hisey and Mrs. Bert Smith mourn the loss of their eldest brother.

Card of Thanks

For the many kindnesses offered us in the recent bereavement in the death of our brother; for the words of comfort and hope brought to us by our minister and for the sweet music rendered at the funeral services, we desire to return our heartfelt thanks.

Class of Nineteen Twenty Present ed With Diplomas Thursday Evening Last

Commencement evening, Thursday last, the final event of Yale high school for 1920, came with lowering skies and suggestion of rain and coolness, after the hot day.

The Auditorium was filled with an audience deeply interested in the graduating of Yale's twenty young people.

The front of the stage was prettily festooned with crepe paper in the class colors and huge bouquets of snow balls and spirea graced either end.

The curtain rose showing the large class seated in a semi-circle. Prof. N. J. Drouyor being at one side, and the speaker of the evening, Prof. F. B. McKay, of Ypsilanti, at the other.

The young ladies, all gowned in white, and the young men in dark suits, formed a beautiful picture. McKanlass orchestra, of three pieces, opened the program and Rev. Alfred Martin gave the invocation, followed by orchestra music.

Prof. McKay was introduced by Mr. Drouyor, and after a preliminary opening gave his hearers a fine talk on the subject,

"Educating for Democracy"

The speaker contrasted the co-operation and united enthusiasm developed during the nineteen months of the great war with the spirit of profiteering and money-grabbing which has grown up during the nineteen months since the war closed. He declared that there were three attitudes toward present conditions and illustrated with the story of the Jersey farmer visiting on Broadway, New York, who thought the excavation for a skyscraper was the result of an earthquake. What we want today is not the attitude of seeing the hole merely nor of building an air castle over the hole, but of helping to build the skyscraper of Democracy.

Democracy must be realized through intelligent thinking and the spirit of service. The speaker made a plea for all agencies that help us to understand the problems involved in helping 110 millions of people to live prosperously and happily together. He especially emphasized the educational crisis which the country now faces and the need for making a real business of education. "Salaries for teachers must compare favorably with those offered in other business," he insisted. He further emphasized the necessity for a more equal sharing of all burdens according to ability.

He closed with a plea for loyalty to the American ideals and deprecated the fact that many of our citizens are unwilling to secure their ends by means of agitation and the ballot, but insist upon the un-American method of resort to force.

It was a discourse full of deep thought for the thinking mind and his hearers received it with great interest.

The diplomas were delivered to the graduates by Superintendent Drouyor with a few pleasant words, reminiscent of their high school days together and with some sage and good advice he launched them out beyond the high school into a world where each must choose for herself or himself their own way.

The orchestra played a closing number and Rev. Mumby pronounced the benediction.

Record Subscribers Paying Up

During the past week many subscribers of the Record have called at this office and squared up their indebtedness and paid one year in advance.

Yet there are many more on the list who are still in arrears that we would be pleased to have call in and let us know whether or not they wish the paper continued to their address. If any do not care for the paper longer we will stop it if they will only so instruct us. The last issue of the paper you will get will be June 24.

Those subscribers in arrears July 1st will positively be cut from the list and the accounts sent to a collection agency with instructions to force collection if necessary.

Call before June 30.
