

THE ABERDEEN DEMOCRAT

23. NO. 7.

ABERDEEN, SOUTH DAKOTA, SEPTEMBER 4, 1903.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

OLDEN TIME

One Year ago this Week
Aberdeen and Brown County.

Files of the Republican.

Aberdeen Republican of Sept. 2, 1902, in the absence of the issue was issued under the editorial supervision of J. H. Hauser.

It was announced that plans and specifications for the new $10,000.00 house were ready for bids and must commence shortly.

It reads: "The wife and son of Williams arrived here from Michigan, last week to this place their permanent home. Mr. Williams will be chief of the land office. A very companion and a capital fellow."

Local: "The artesian well, which has been filled up since July, was dug last week and on removal of the water-gate and with the water-gate closed, the water was forced. Improvements were made to prevent it from again filling up."

Announcement read: "A new house is now running to Snake Lake leaving the Sherman house on Fridays at 8 a. m., returning at 6 p. m. Mail and supplies for settlers. $1.00 for round trip. C. VALLETTE, Manager."

Stage line ran about twelve miles directly west from Nicollet. At the other end was a tent meals lodging and whiskey had.

Local reads: "The new land office building and ready for occupancy. Built by the Hastings & Dakota under the supervision of Davis. The building is 40x70, 100 feet high, built of white brick, finished and corncolored with red. The west half and part of the story will be used for a general store. Ducomb, Stearns & Co.; the east half for the land office, and the second story part as a residence for Mr. Dun-

The building cost $10,000 and is the best land office building, if not the best building in the territory. Two years after this building was completed, the building then being vacant by reason of the removal of the merchandise stock. The county seat had been removed to Columbia and the new court house was not ready for occupancy. Days after the county officers moved out the building caught fire, totally consumed on the 18th of November, 1887. The site was occupied by the Aberdeen club which is now the residence of Fletcher on the corner of Main and Nicollet avenue.

Remarkable Record
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been used for over thirty years, during which time many millions of bottles have been sold and used. It has long been standard and main reliance in the treatment of coughs in thousands of cases. Yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to cure. When given as soon as cold becomes hoarse or when the cough appears, it stops the attack. It is pleasant to use, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful ingredients and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. Available by all druggists.

Teachers' Interstate Examination Course.
Teachers wishing to prepare for examinations should write at once to J. L. GRAHAM, LL. D., 152-154 Randolph Building, Memphis, Tenn., for particulars concerning his Teachers' Examination Course.

A course is taught by mail, and teachers for examination in the State in the Union. Leading teachers pronounce it the best ever offered to the Teaching profession, and all teachers wishing to improve in their profession should take this course. Send for the circular.

His Life Saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"B. L. Byer, a well known cooper of this town, says he believes Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy saved his life last summer. He had been sick for a month with what the doctors call bilious dysentery, and could get nothing to do him any good until he tried this remedy. It gave him immediate relief," says B. T. Little, merchant, Hancock, Md. For sale by druggists.

AT THE CARNIVAL

The $10,000 Prismatic Electric Fountain is one of the greatest attractions of Carnival week. It is one of the most beautiful sights and exhibitions ever seen and far superior to any other free attraction put on by any Carnival company. A beautiful young lady does a spectacular fire dance within the fountain each evening, the entire performance concluding with a brilliant display of fire works.

The Story of Wales and Its People

(John Jones, from Wales).

I need not tell my Cambrian friends where Wales is situated. How often, during their sojourn on this side of the Atlantic have they not taken those vivid mental journeys—and found themselves in thought right at home! Yes, there, in the old ingle-corner, beside the round table on the hearth, where the peat-fire lazily smolders itself to death in a shroud of ashen dust.

Columbus is given the credit for discovering America. Spain was a great power then. Nevertheless we know the story of Madoc, that prince of illustrious fame, who fitted up in the twelfth century at his own cost, a small squadron of thirteen wooden vessels, and sailed away from Bardsey—a merry crew of eighty souls—whither bound? No one knew. But it came to pass after many days that they were within sight of land where they cast anchor. They were kindly received by the inhabitants who were the Indians of southern Mexico. Madoc returned to his native land, but some of the crew settled out there, and to this day, some of the Celtic words introduced by them are in use among the Indians.

A glance at the map of the British Isles will at once show that Wales is the smallest and most mountainous country of Great Britain. Indeed it seems to be composed mainly of mountains, high or low, and it is also the "oldest" bit of country in the British Isles. Long before "England" arose from out the azure main" a little cluster of islands rose in the midst of the ocean where Welsh mountains now are; and as a proof of this, sea shells may be found near the summit of Snowdon—the hoary king of the Cambrian heights. The mountains of Wales are the nucleus of its anatomy, as a nation; its history is distinct from that of Cornwall and the North of England, though the same conditions of language and geography exist. How is this? Because its mountain rise between a sea and a plain, and these are breaks in the ridges where the Severn and the Dee reach the sea. Not only do the mountains explain why Wales has a history, but they say quite plainly what it is. Independence and division are the prime factors. Wales is not an elevated plain, but a land of ridges and peaks—a confusion of mountains and gorges, and those breaks or passes, in bygone days, created a barrier between prince and prince, and it was not always easy to keep North and South Wales united.

Snowdon or the Hill of Snow is the highest mountain. "Eryri," as it is called in Welsh, is the abode of the Muse. "Whoever sleeps a night there will awaken a poet or a madman, say the bards. Tradition says that a celebrated giant-killer is buried near the top, who put so many giants to death that he was able to make a coat of their beards.

Cader Idris—the "seat or chair of Arthur"—another giant who retired to these lonely mountains to study astronomy. His bed, a pile of stones, some hundred feet long is still shown, together with the "lake of three grains." Here some pebbly grit got into his shoe and hurt him. He shook them out near the lake, while stopping there to take a drink. The grains grew into prodigious rocks which may still be seen.

Pinnacled hills, with five peaks of cloud-piercing hills is the source of the Severn, Wye and Rhedol. The Kerry hills form the boundary between North and South Wales. The Black mountains are between the valleys of the Usk and Wye. They are so called from the dark appearance of the heath and lign which grow over them, and they are distinguished for their mineral wealth.

The geography of Wales is prophetic of its history. Cadwallon's dream of a greater Wales, Edward's dream as part of a Norman kingdom, the Tudor's dream of Wales as part of an English kingdom—they have all come to naught. The mountains ever assert their presence—the boundary of Cambria must be at their feet, the people who live among them must have characteristics of their own. What wonder then if the Welshman is fond and proud of his old mountains. How often have they not done him good service, affording him shelter from his enemies and providing him with natural strongholds when attacked! Many a prisoner has been carried away to their recesses, and many a king of England has returned in despair at being unable to get at his Welsh foe hidden among his native mountains.

"Two voices are there: one is of the sea. One of the mountains: each a mighty voice: In both from age to age thou didst rejoice; They were thy chosen music—Kymru."

Owes His life to a Neighbor's Kindness

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Sumner counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was most hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any, relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours.

The New York World.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read Wherever The English Language is Spoken.

The Thrice-a-Week World was a brilliant success in the beginning and has been steadily growing ever since. Time is the test of all things, and has set its approval on the Thrice-a-week World, which is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and wherever there are people who can read our mother tongue. This paper for the coming winter and the year 1903, will make its news service, if possible, more extensive than ever. All events of importance, no matter where they happen, are reported accurately and promptly.

The subscriber, for only one dollar a year, gets three papers every week and more news and general reading than most great dailies can furnish at five or six times the price.

The Thrice-a-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages, truthful accounts of all the great political campaigns. In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market reports and other features of interest.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the ABERDEEN DEMOCRAT together one year for $1.50. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.
