CITY CLUB HAS WORK AHEAD FOR SUMMER

Members of the City club may take their accustomed vacations, but the club itself has enough work mapped out to occupy every meeting until fall. For example, at Saturday's meeting there probably will be a preliminary report from the committee on the high cost of living and a revised report in that connection, from the committee on the army educational work in France. The club membership roster continues to grow with each meeting. Seven new members' applications have been passed by the governing board. They are Jack Harris, J. H. Turbeville, E. W. Smith, D. W. Richberger, Joseph Dorsey, R. H. Spencer and E. R. King. The club now has a larger active membership than at any time since it was organized.

SIGNS GUIDE BUYERS OF SAVINGS STAMPS

Signs for the guidance of those who desire to buy war savings stamps and certificates were placed in the south corridor of the first floor of the post office Thursday. The lack of space in the new department is greatly crowded for room. War stamps may be purchased at the window just back of the two stamp windows near the end of the south corridor. Redemptions as well as sales are being made at the new stamp window, although sales are more frequent than redemptions. To redeem war savings stamps a postmaster must be addressed to the letter and presented at the window. Ten days later the order for the redemption will have been issued and the original order may claim cash for the securities at the value stipulated for the current month. The issues of 1918 mature January, 1922.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MISS ATKIN HONOREE OF ATTRACTIVE AFFAIRS.

One of the loveliest dancing parties of the summer season was that given by Miss Annie Marie Towner, one of the most charming members of the Memphis Country club on Wednesday evening in honor of her attractive guest, Miss Marion Atkin of Knoxville, Tenn.

For the occasion the popular young hostess was especially lovely in a becoming dancing frock of black tulle, embellished in silver with which she wore the corsage bouquet of certain gladioli.

Miss Towner was charming in fairy evening frock of iridescent blue French tulle over cloak of silver. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses.

She was assisted in receiving her guests by her mother, Mrs. Justin Towner, who wore a handsome evening gown of blue tulle over pink satin, the color blending in the exquisite French effect.

During the evening delicious fruit punch was served between the dances, and later an ice and salad course was served.

The guest list for the evening included about 100 members of the younger society and the whole set with whom Miss Towner is very popular.

Miss Atkin is one of the most charming women in the society leaders of Memphis, who had the pleasure of entertaining during the summer, and quite a number of delightful informal affairs are being planned in her honor.

Wednesday she was entertained with a small but beautifully planned luncheon at the Memphis Country club, which was tendered by Miss Jewett Scott and Thursday evening she will be the honoree of a delightful dinner party to be given by Miss Maxey Pumphrey.

Friday evening she and Miss Towner will be entertained by Miss Elizabeth Jordan, who will give an informal dinner party at her home on Agnes place, and on Monday evening they will enjoy a delightful boating party, to be given by Miss Helen Holt.

INFORMAL AFFAIRS FOR MRS. THORNTON'S GUESTS.

One of the most enjoyable of the many summer home parties is the small, but very delightful one which is being given this week by Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Thornton, at their home, 1232 Agnes place, in honor of their two little girls, Misses Ruth and Lillie Gillespie, of Collierville, Miss. The two other guests are Miss Elizabeth Eldor, of Collierville, Miss., and Miss Elizabeth W. of Brownsville, Tenn.

Wednesday afternoon they were the honorees of a box party which was given at the Orpheum, by Mrs. A. S. Seville, followed by an afternoon tea, and Wednesday evening Mrs. Walter H. Harrison entertained them with a dancing party at her home on Agnes place.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. Thornton gave a 6 o'clock tea and dance for them at Avorton park, and for which she has extended invitations to about 25 members of the college set.

Friday night they will enjoy a boating party, given by Mr. and Mrs. Thornton.

A number of other jolly informal affairs will fill each day and night with pleasant memories, and the house party will be given by Miss Maxey Pumphrey, for which Miss Pumphrey's parties are noted.

Miss Pumphrey's guests for the evening will be Misses Marion Atkin, Annie Ruth Thompson, Elizabeth Jordan, and Miss Mary Towner, and Messrs. William Sloan, Jack Lynn, William Stallings, John Bell, Jr., John Leatham, Ross Matthews and Moss Peun.

Sergeant Crosby left Memphis last Monday for Harrisburg, Pa., where he obtained requisition papers for Leuders, whose arrest was effected by the O'Haver Detective agency following a charge that he had obtained money from the Union Savings Bank and Trust company on June 30 last. His arrest followed a search in several cities in the East.

Chase of Stolen Auto Ends Against Solid Brick Wall

Joe Artman, 19, 438 Union avenue, is being held at police headquarters pending investigation as to his knowledge of recent automobile thefts. Artman was captured at 10 o'clock Wednesday night by Detective C. S. Bell, after an exciting chase through some of the principal downtown streets. Artman was driving a stolen automobile at the time of his arrest, according to Detective Bell and was arrested only after he had driven the car into a wall of the Beale avenue market house and was pinned under a steering wheel.

Two other men who were occupants of the car when the chase began escaped.

HOLLOWELL-JONES DAILY TRIAL BRINGS "GUILTY"

Lillian Hollowell and Mabel Jones, who have been the star attraction in the First criminal court for nearly a month, in addition to the sentence in the penitentiary for from one to five years, now have added to their credit a sentence in a workhouse, but for only ten days.

The two women were convicted by a jury late Wednesday on a charge of having stolen two shirt waists from Lucy's Tugery. The girls claim they gave for the goods, but Jim L. Barndis, of the O'Haver Detective agency, testified that they made a confession. There still remain two cases of shoplifting against the young women.

Thieves broke into the store of the Piggly Wiggly at Binghamton Wednesday night and rifled the cash register. Only a small amount of cash was in the register at the time. The intruders then wantonly threw down a large stack of sacked flour.
