PALMER GOES AFTER PROFITERS AS BIG CRIMINALS

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
Special Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Criminal profiteers are being treated as big criminals by Attorney-General Palmer to reduce the high cost of living. An effort will be made to secure jail sentences for the men who have been operating in restraint of trade and in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act and profiteering or hoarding laws.

Thus far the announcements concerning profiteers have created the impression that only civil proceedings would be instituted and that the department of justice would not be satisfied with the mere payment of fines but will be compelled to serve time.

This drastic policy allows the discovery of evidence that the American people have been scoured by profiteers who have made enormous price agreements in defiance of existing law. To impose fines would mean an infinitesimal subtraction of profits and might not have a sufficiently deterrent effect.

So the attorney-general presumably at the request of the president Wilson has decided to enter the criminal courts in an effort to relieve the public of economic burdens unlawfully imposed.

Clothing as Well.
Just which trusts or association of producers will be charged with violations of the Sherman law and which will be charged with violations of the statutes cannot yet be announced. But the department of justice is preparing cases against dealers in wholesale and retail and as soon as more law is obtained from congress it will be possible to proceed against the dealers but those who handle wearing apparel.

Although the attorney-general has already indicated that he would get after the cement trust and thereby help to relieve the backlog in the building situation throughout the country which is the cost of living through high rents, the main target is the direct and indirect dealers in food and clothing—the two biggest items on the family account.

Already officials here think they see results through to be sure, they frankly admit much less to be gained through prosecutions than through the fair-price committees which are being established throughout the country by state and county food administrators. On these committees are representatives of who are housewives, of wholesalers, of retailers, of manufacturers.

They are voluntary committees who will have the benefit of the experience gained by the government in the food administration at work in every city and town. The importance of these fair-price committees is the fact that when prosecutions are begun, the government will be able to bring suit against the profiteers.

Plans of the department of justice are somewhat in abeyance. Curiously enough, there has been no action taken since the day against profiteering in food. During the war the penalty was withdrawal of license, but now the law is against doing business in foods without a license. But the license system was not enforced.

It is regarded as too laborious and expensive to maintain the license system when a simple amendment by congress will provide penalties for profiteering. Another amendment asks for an extension of the power of the fair-price act to include the sale of wearing apparel. These two simple amendments are before the senate and house committees respectively, but they are not likely to pass.

Blame Misunderstanding.
It is difficult to say whence proceeds the opposition, but in some cases it is based on a misunderstanding of the function of the department of justice. For instance some members of congress have had the idea that the department of justice is to be a fair-price committee made up of the people's representatives would say what the price should be and the profiteers would follow only against persons who varied the prices to such an extent that it would be obvious that there was profiteering.

In the case of sugar, a remnant of the war administration is in the way. It is known as the sugar equalization committee, so inasmuch as the price of sugar is fixed to the wholesaler, the federal government there is to be a price for retailers charging more than 11 cents a pound. Indeed, since the agitation began, the price of sugar has been reduced to 10 cents and below, which accounts for the retail price of 11 cents.

If uniformity of price has been obtained in the case of sugar by establishing what is the existing law, to seize hoarded goods. Some requests have come to the department of justice to permit the seizure of hoarded goods pending trials in the courts. The department has consented, as its fundamental object is to get the goods into circulation and distribution.

Prosecution is vital as a deterrent but co-operation is the best way and the government is going to reduce the cost of living. Action by the fair-price committee will be taken in the city is expected throughout the country within a month on many commodities. The price of flour is being reduced and it is reported one of them is probably fatally hurt.

PEERESSES LONG FOR U. S. BECAUSE HUSBANDS ARE BROKE

News comes from abroad that some of the richest of the American women who married into the titles of the nobility in their native countries are now being held in custody as alien property. The majority of these stately housewives are being permitted to discard their titles and to become American citizens.

They are grasping at every rumor and suggestion having to do with the possibility of their getting enough money to divert themselves of their titles and to become American citizens.

The word was gone about that they may be permitted to repatriate themselves, fetching with them impecunious husbands and children, and that their titles and honors would be naturalized processes become plain "mistresses," thereby retaining for their distressed widows the wealth now held by the alien property custodian, Francis P. WOLF ROAD CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

Blowout of Tire Causes Auto to Veer and Roll Down Embankment.
The funeral of Charles E. Johnson, 31 years old, 410 Harvard street, Birmingham, killed instantly Sunday afternoon when an automobile he was driving was upset by a tire blowing out on the North Second street near the Wolf river bridge, was to be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon from the Johnson home. The condition of Arlie Capps, 21 years old, Johnson's companion, who was severely injured, was much improved Monday at the St. Joseph's hospital. Capps, who lives at 303 Princeton street, Birmingham, suffered a crushed ankle and lacerations on the body and legs.

Johnson, who had been a paint foreman at the car and foundry plant for several years, and Capps were out for a spin. They were coming toward Memphis and running at good speed along the levee road leading to the bridge approach when a rear wheel burst. The car veered and rolled down the ravine. Johnson was catapulted through the wind shield and fell on his head. Johnson was struck by the heavy car falling on top of him. Capps also was partially caught by the automobile.

An ambulance from Thompson Bros. raced from the city and took Capps to the hospital. Johnson was taken to that point this past few months. The road is narrow and the levee approaches to the bridge twist and turn.

Johnson leaves his widow, Mrs. Ora Johnson, and two children, Charles E. and Audrey. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Johnson. His sisters and brothers are: Mrs. T. E. Free, Mrs. J. E. Hearn, Mrs. A. E. Free, S. E. Johnson and Everett E. Johnson.
