

SENT IN HIS RESIGNATION

Failing Health Cause of Prof. Lowry's Giving Up Position.

Prof. E. A. Lowry, of 412 Woodland Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn., who has been identified with some of the leading business colleges of the South, says he feels it his duty to give out a statement about the benefits he has derived from the use of Tanlac. In relating his experience with the famous medicine Prof. Lowry says:

"I have been a teacher for thirty years and twenty years of that time I was afflicted with indigestion. I have been treated by many specialists in different places where I have lived, but none of them was able to relieve my sufferings. I got into such a miserable state that I had to resign my position with the Chattanooga Business College, for I was unable to go on with my work."

"One of my friends in a neighboring city where I was visiting recommended Tanlac to me and the results after taking it have been marvelous. After taking Tanlac I was too weak to lift or carry anything heavy or even to walk any distance without getting sick and faint. Now I feel like a new man, can lift and carry quite heavy articles and my stomach trouble has entirely disappeared. My appetite is splendid, I sleep like a log and my nervousness is about all gone."

BITTER TASTE SOUR STOMACH

Pills and Strong Medicines Made This Lady's Troubles Worse, But Thedford's Black-Draught Improved Her Appearance and Took Away Her Bile.

Nancy, Ky.—Mrs. Cora Waddie, a resident of this place, gives out this statement: "I have taken Black-Draught and found it to be the best liver medicine I ever used. It has just been fine for indigestion, sour stomach and a bitter taste in the mouth."

I used to get bilious and constipated and had to take something. Pills and other strong medicines would only tear my stomach up and leave me in a worse fix than before taking. I began to have sick headache.

After learning of Black-Draught I took it and was cured of sick headache. One or two doses a week, or a pinch after meals, kept the bowels open and took away all bile. I have a good appetite, due to my use of Black-Draught."

If your liver is not acting properly you may suffer from such symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless relief is obtained serious trouble may result.

In its 70 years of successful use, Thedford's Black-Draught has been found to relieve these ailments and stimulate the liver to do its work.

Thick, Soft, Lustrous Hair Not a Matter of Chance.

There is really no secret at all about soft, lustrous hair which is so much admired by both sexes. Long, beautiful hair always wins instant admiration. Your hair is the most striking feature you possess and its soft lustre heightens the charm of your complexion.

The use of Lehman's Hair Dressing, a medicated and perfumed pomade, will make your hair grow long, soft and beautiful. You can then dress it just as you want to. It is so easy to use and so effective—it feeds the scalp and prevents falling hair by killing the hair-eater, "Dandruff."

If you value appearance you will value Lehman's Hair Dressing, which is sold at most all drug stores and toilet counters at 25c a can or postpaid on receipt of price.

SCHEMES ARE EITHER BONUSES FOR SERVICE OR PROPOSALS BY WHICH HOMES MAY BE HAD ON EASY TERMS.

BY CHAS. S. HAYDEN, (Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Soldier settlement legislation threatens to stampede congress and unless the ex-service men themselves do something to apply the brakes there is no telling how far the house and senate will go in their desire to demonstrate, before the next general election, how much they think the country owes the soldier boys. Approximately 150 bills of this character already have been introduced and hardly a day passes but that a new one is dropped in the hopper by some member who is determined to show his soldier constituents where he stands on this question.

These bills, for the most part, follow two general lines. One calls for a cash bonus for each month of service with the colors, payable in bonds, while the other would provide a 100 per cent loan on a $4,000 or $5,000 homestead, at 3 1/2 per cent interest, payable in 60 years. It has been estimated that it would require $1,000,000,000 in bonds to give each soldier $30 for each month of service in the army. While if the homestead plan were adopted and all the soldiers availed themselves of the offer, deemed a very probable contingency, the total amount required would approximate $16,000,000,000.

Want Lane's Proposal.

Conservative members of congress frankly confess they are "up in the air" on this subject and there is genuine regret now that Secretary Lane's proposal, as originally made, calling for $100,000,000 to reclaim waste, cutover or arid lands for allotment to soldiers, was not passed last winter. This suggestion finally reached the house last spring, being known as the Mondell bill, but by that time it had grown to $500,000,000. Yet the Mondell bill is virtually dead now because the amount it provides is deemed insufficient to show how much congress values the soldier vote.

The hope is expressed that the ex-service men, at the meeting of the American Legion in Minneapolis next month, will take a firm stand against such an enormous expenditure of public funds as contemplated under some of these bills. It is admitted, however, there is grave probability the American Legion, now looked upon as spokesman for the ex-soldiers, will take no such position. It is true that at the meeting in St. Louis the legion officially went on record as opposed to the bonus proposition. That was the voice of the conservative leaders of the organization and this, probably, still is their view.

Many Want Bonus.

Since the St. Louis meeting, however, thousands and thousands of men who have just been discharged from the army, have joined the American Legion and the sentiment among them in behalf of a cash bonus and if the leaders of the American Legion do not defer to this sentiment there is danger that a radical organization will be formed which will swallow the membership of the American Legion.

Now while the soldiers apparently are the only ones outside of congress to urge the cash bonus plan, there are other influences at work in behalf of the homestead proposition. If such a plan were adopted under which a soldier might borrow enough to buy a $4,000 farm or city home, together with an additional $1,500 to furnish or stock it, land-owners and real estate agents would immediately have some 4,800,000 prospective purchasers and it is deemed inevitable that land values would rise. Thus the soldiers are not the only ones who would profit by such a bill and besides, it is argued, that even if this would represent an outlay of $16,000,000,000 that it would be returned, with interest, within a period of 60 years.

Difference in Plans.

This proposition, as it now stands, has gone far afield from the one originally suggested by Secretary Lane. Under that the soldier's work was to be provided for the ex-service men in clearing or reclaiming land. For this they were to be paid wages and, when the farms were all cleared and equipped, the soldiers were to be permitted to acquire them on the partial payment plan. This contemplated the collecting of soldier-farmers in groups, one or two to each state, where they could or cooperative buying and selling as well as have the advantage of trained and expert advice for the inexperienced ones.

This suggestion of soldier colonies, however, has been lost sight of in most of the recent bills. Under these the ex-service men are to be allowed to buy their farm or city home, another innovation anywhere they want it, providing its value is approved by federal agents. Then, too, the new plan does not call for any initial payment but provides a 100 per cent loan on the property authorized to be purchased.

ENGLISH FOND OF AMERICAN PLAYS DECLARES CRITIC

Crooked Politicians, Austere Statesmen and Impossible Cowboys Appeal With Equal Force to Audiences.

BY K. WALTER, LONDON, Oct. 15. (Reciprocal News Service).—At last room has been made in the London theaters for one or two new plays in the style of the all-around theatrical season with its amazing record of continuous runs in all the theaters. But what do you think of the new plays are which have forced their way into the crowded West End? Perhaps the most interesting is a play called "Too Many Cooks," which is now being played at the Savoy theater.

You have to give it to these London critics and audiences—they are surely the most good-natured in the world. They don't feel about American plays as they do about American films—that is, if it's American it is worth seeing and if it's British it may be. Yet they swallow the present dose without one new face, all sorts of American plays, one after another, old and new, mostly old, and when their own authors turn away from all the heroic material of English history and write about American heroes they put up with a provincial production in a suburban theater and ask for more. But on the top of "Business Before Pleasure," "Three Wise Fools," and others of this year, these two old ones were at least one too many, so off comes "Too Many Cooks" this week making room for one more of the many jumps of "Czyzako" at the Savoy theater.

Too Strange for London.

The Americans in "Too Many Cooks" were too strange for London to believe in. Not as you may remember, that they are extraordinary in any way. That was just the trouble, London doesn't yet know the ordinary American. London audiences don't believe that Americans are ever ordinary. These ordinary middle-class Americans don't fit into any of the prevailing standards of Americans over here. It is absolutely useless for plain American cit-
