MRS. PEASE ENTERTAINS

IN HONOR OF MISS LIEBKEMAN
One of the most thorough enjoy-ers of the many fraternal affairs given in honor of Miss Leone Liebkeman, was that tendered Friday afternoon by Mrs. J. A. Pease, who entertained charmingly at bridge, followed by a miscellaneous shower.

The affair was given in the home of Mrs. B. M. Going, mother of Mrs. Pease, on Challoway avenue. The rooms were opened for the occasion being beautifully decorated with American Beauty and white Killarney roses.

The prizes awarded in the game of bridge were a decorative fan, a satin vanity bag and a box of stationery. The gifts for the honoree were arranged on the table in the dining room, which was draped in elegant white satin. A shower from the electrician included a miniature bridal party of kewanee dolls, while pink tulle streamers radiated from the chandelier in the table, where they were caught in bows.

Following the shower the guests enjoyed a novel contest in which they wrote acrostics from the names of the bride-elect and her betrothed in the French, Italian and Spanish languages.

At the close of the afternoon a delicious ice cream, carrying out the pink and white color motif, was served to the guests, about thirty in number. Mrs. Pease, who was charmingly gowned for the affair in dark blue gown with a crown embroidered in gold, was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Robert Low, in a gown of blue and white, and by her daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Going, gowned in black organza.

Miss Liebkeman was lovely in a frock of black kittenear satin with draperies of silk net and bands of white lace. Her French flowers, with which she wore a black picture hat with pink plumes and a corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas and Sweetheart roses.

Euchre and 600 will be played afternoon and evening. The barbecue supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock and dancing will be enjoyed throughout the evening.

Amusements

Orpheum.

Although they are not billed top liner, Vardon and Perry, two stringed-instrument players, made away with first honors Thursday night on the new Orpheum offering. The boys make one big mistake. In their doing so, they number they bring out a young woman who not only participates in a chicken number with a most beautiful capers, but answers well to description nowadays applied to extremely good looking of the species female. The trio proved a riot.

Vardon and Perry may be a trifle slow in getting into their program, but the Spanish guitar and mandolin are working they have their audience. Especially clever was the ragtime number, the Scottish and Spanish selections and the dance and jazz number.

Position in the lights once front is assigned to Ruth Curtis and her jazz band. There have been so many jazz bands here recently that comment hardly is necessary beyond stating that Miss Curtis' outfit differs little from preceding brass aggregations. In truth the band would make most belly boys if placed in front of the theater.

An old-timer in Bert Shepard who does blackface with a shipboard lasses named O'Goody. There are certain manners about Shepard that just naturally make one laugh. His negro stuff is typical of Beale street, Hawken and Clare have an act they call "Yesterday." The title is applicable. It's rather slow and old.

Flying trapeze work, presenting several difficult feats of acrobatics with the Silverlakes.

The mystic small hours of the morning in "One Hour Before Dawn," feature film.

Loew's Lyceum.

It is but seldom that a singer of the class of Fred Hughes is seen in vaudeville. Hughes came to Loew's Lyceum Thursday for the last time in the course of the week. He is everything the press agent said of him. Delightful in tone, clear in enunciation, of elegant manner and a genius in choosing songs that vaude audience like. Hughes is without doubt the best attraction in Memphis. Loew has sent South this year.

His repertoire consists of ballads, one Irish that he plays and sings in old style, an old-fashioned love ditty and a mother song. Hughes is just a big, tall, likeable chap who wails on, and about his singing in a business-like way and kneels 'em off the seats. At the piano, Raymond Zaner proves himself an able accompanist.

The levitation approaches in a new way the cabinet disappearing trick and various feats of levitation are offered by La Temple company. Mystification veils the entire troupe, proving once again that masters of stage magic still can make the wise ones out front all up and take notice.

"Some Life" is the title of Peabody and Wallace's skit and it indeed is some life they must live to maintain their pace. The two men and woman, after a trifle stout, work like friends turning out gags and songs. All material is fresh from the workbooks of the writers. Lynn, Weston and Lynn have talent but it is used badly. Will variety acts Memphis get any more of these ancient business of working a plant from the audience?

Dainty mooners Sinciale and Gray, comedians and bike riders.

A tale of the West with situations not unlike the best seen in "The Gold of the Golden West," is William Russell's latest release, "Twins of Suffering Creek," screen feature.

EIGHT VACANCIES HERE FOR MARINE RECRUITS

The Marine Corps has eight vacancies now for recruiting service in the district of Memphis. The positions are only open to ex-marines. The district is recruiting in the last week eleven men for regular duty, most of them getting special assignments to the Marine Corps institute at Quantico, Va.

This school is rapidly growing, having up to the present date over 1,500 students enrolled for different courses.

LOCAL FIRM SUED.

Asking a decree canceling a contract for a veneer joiner machine and a further decree for $150.00 on the ground that a joiner shipped to them was faulty, the Sulphur Manufacturing company, of Memphis, Tenn., has filed a bill in chancery court Friday against G. W. Simmons, doing business in Memphis as G. W. Simmons company. Attorneys Fitzhugh, Murrain & Fitzhugh filed the bill.

EAT SQUIDS? MANY HERE DO; SHOVELBILL CAT IS LUXURY TODAY, FISH DEALERS SAY

BY C. V. McDOWELL.

Did you ever eat squids? If not you are passing up one of the real delicacies of the fish market in Memphis. Few Memphians fish, however, know much about squids and the chief cause, it is large, is made to the foreign population of the city. Greeks, Italians, Chinese and Japanese demand this variety above all others.

Squids are an interesting bit of fish. While a distant cousin of the jellyfish, they are not to be classed as such. In some places they are termed "ink fish" as they emit a black liquid when enemies approach as a warning and as protection. Squids are equipped with a set of tentacles or feelers. Through these it gathers its food and then places it in the mouth, such on the same system of an elephant's trunk. Being rarely found in shape, the vital parts are protected by the layers of meat and gristle which surround the head. This portion comprises the edible quality.

Memphis fish markets develop some interesting facts. The once lowly and despised spotted catfish has risen to new heights of glory. Today it is in demand in the Eastern markets and market is to be found for all the possibilities that can be caught.

Time was about 25 years ago when the only use for the spotted catfish was to feed them to hogs. Today they bring as high as 25 cents a pound on the wholesale fish markets. Another use has been found which opens a wide market for this variety. It is being used extensively as a substitute for sturgeon as smoked fish.

To show the real value of the spotted fish is the sale of its eggs. These bring from $1 to $3 a pound. They are prepared and sold for "Russet" and other very popular brands of caviar.

Strange as it may seem, Saturday is the biggest sale day for the Memphis markets. This is contrary to other cities where Friday is established as the day for fish. Under the fasting rules of certain religious faiths, Friday is set aside as a day when fish and not meat should be eaten.

Buffalo fish and channel catfish are the two biggest sellers in the Memphis market. These come from lakes tributary to the Mississippi river in the wholesale fish markets. Another source of supply is rapidly falling. Building of levees and other similar work has done away with sluggish backwater, which is the favorite place for spawning. Spawning in the river is now done in a large percentage of the eggs to lose their fertility, with the result the fish supply is diminishing. Lead water is necessary to provide places for hatching in order to keep any stream supplied.

Red snapper and Spanish mackerel come second best in local fish markets.

POLICE RETURN TRUNK TO LOCAL WAITRESS

Ora Walters, waitress, questioned last week by Chicago police following the death of Max C. Pindexter, Thursday night was given her trunk by local officers on her return to Memphis from the Illinois city, where she was convicted of all blame connection with the Pindexter affair.

Police Chief Joe Burney Friday said the officers here merely inspected the trunk at request of Chicago authorities. It was taken back to Pindexter's hotel, where the woman roomed when in Memphis, but returned to headquarters on request of the hotel people. The chief said he knew nothing of the woman's whereabouts Friday.

SUES RAILROAD.

Alleging that when the Union railroad company built a part of its track on ground adjoining his land that it created a grade so that water flows across his land, damaging it, James Brown filed suit for $1,500 damages in circuit court Friday.

Mothers: Isn't It a Peach of An Idea?

You mothers—who really take a pride in your boy's appearance—will certainly appreciate "The Boys' Shop" of Phil A. Halle!

There isn't a single bit of togger that was just merely bought for every boy displayed and this idea of "sale togger" has never entered our head.

Just good serviceable suits—made from hardy fabrics—and fitted by an expert fitter—are displayed and while the patterns and qualities are wonderful—the prices are just about the same that you pay the sale stores for ordinary togger!

Isn't it a peach of an idea? We'll say it is!

WAGES TOO LOW, SAYS SANITARY OFFICER

Low wages paid to city employees caused another vacancy in the ranks of the city sanitary officers Friday, when M. Bodenheimer tendered his resignation, effective Aug. 1. Sanitary officers draw $100 a month. They have petitioned Mayor Payne for more money, asking an increase to $120 a month. In his letter of resignation, Bodenheimer stated that he could not feed his family on the money he drew from the city.

About 10 days ago, Ed Murphy, another sanitary officer, who had been discharged as a matter of discipline by Mayor Payne, because of refusal to participate as a volunteer fireman during the strike, declined to return to work when his job was offered back by the city.

MAY DRAFT 'HAM' LEWIS.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 30.—Democrats of the "downstate" and Chicago Democrats gathered in a caucus here today to decide upon a candidate for governor. Indications local Democratic leaders say, are that former United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis will be drafted to make the race.

Among the dealers there is much talk about establishment of a fish hatchery. It is claimed by the government that about 90 per cent of the eggs can be hatched under proper supervision. There are several plans for a hatchery and a few years hence may see one of the largest in America in the Memphis territory.

The fish business in Memphis is rapidly increasing and the consumption of the finny tribe is far larger than for 1920 than in previous years. Its development for the future, dealers say, will see fish in an article of the average home.

As Others See Us

PIGGLY WIGGLY stores have succeeded because their appeal to the tastes and needs and comfort and convenience of people was shrewdly and accurately devised.

But, underlying all other reasons, the basis for PIGGLY WIGGLY success is that the whole system down to its minutest detail is an intensified war on waste, in one form or another.

No person who has ever seen a PIGGLY WIGGLY store from the outside can forget it or fail to spot it again anywhere. Nobody who has been through it and fixed in his mind the association with scrupulously clean foodstuffs can ever again think of groceries save from the PIGGLY WIGGLY standpoint, or fail to retain in his mind the PIGGLY WIGGLY picture as a standard of cleanliness and attractiveness.

Everlasting cleanliness pervades the whole establishment. There are no goods displayed behind the shining windows, no posters or placards, nothing to obstruct clear view from the outside of the wholesome picture within. The windows always shine. So does their casing.

The aisles are wide and well lighted, there are standard brands of popular merchandise, always in the same place in this and every PIGGLY WIGGLY. At the end of the store, beyond a low partition planned for ventilation is a stockroom and a man whose business it is to replenish the shining and strangely fascinating shelves. For every thousand dollars' worth of goods on display there is another thousand in reserve and that, too, is standard regulation.

The goods and the brand and the price tag are the salesmen of the PIGGLY WIGGLY. You do your own thinking and make your own decision and carry your own basket. There are no credits, no side-door deliveries and no C. O. D. or mail orders. And the customer, high and low, approve these regulations with joy, recognizing that this is the secret of the saving.
