

THE JOYFUL GENTILES.

The Mormons Already Disposing of Their Superfluous "Ribs."

A Variety of Items From the Junction City.

Correspondence of The Bee.

OGDEN, UTAH, April 3.—The past few weeks in Utah have been full of interest to the masses. During discussion on the Edmunds bill in congress, both parties in Utah watched the proceedings very closely, and the final passage of the bill was hailed with delight by the non-Mormons, who hope that it will be effectual in wiping out polygamy in the territory. At this time there is much anxiety over the selection of commissioners under the bill. Prominent men in Utah are spoken of as likely to be appointed, while there is a fear that the president will make his selection from among politicians in the east, who are clamoring for office and are willing to take anything for the sake of office. Unfortunately there is a feeling in the east that Utah is a sort of grave yard to send broken down politicians to get them out of the way. A bad man becomes fastened upon some department, and he has such a hold on office through some relative to his wife that he is often kept there notwithstanding the clamoring of local politicians. Finally some office becomes vacant in one of the territories, and then the senator or congressman who has been trying for years to get Jones out of the way, discovers that he is a fit man to send out to that territory, and he at once goes off and asks the president to send Jones to fill the place. Utah has been cursed with just such men in official positions, but we think the day has passed when bad men should be sent here. Our present federal office holders are men that loyal citizens are proud of, and in the history of Utah there never has been a time when it was more important to have true and good men in office here than at the present time. It is very hard to calculate the results of the bill, and yet we already see some of the effects of it. We are told of several polygamists getting rid of some of their women. One case the man was offered a divorce from his legal wife if he wished to leave her and cleave to the second; but in this the wife of his first love conquered and be sent off the other woman. In Ogden a few evenings after the passage of the bill, the city council was called together and six members resigned, one after the other, and their places were filled by the others. There are nine members in the council, and the six were all polygamists, their places being filled with monogamists. This course has been pursued by officials all over the territory where the places could be filled by appointment or election. Railway building in the West promises to be less lively than it was last year, and yet plans are out for much more than any former season. Railway complications are likely to defeat rapid building of new lines. Each of the prominent companies seem to be watching the movements of the others, like players in a game of chess, and the constructing of new lines and extension of other lines seem to depend very much on the movements of others, as in the game of chess. The winter has been a long and cold one, but now it is almost summer weather. The hills are well covered with snow and we are promised a fruitful season. The murder of E. Durnall at Park City, of which THE BEE had a telegraphic account, cast a gloom for the time over that mining town. At the sitting of the United States Court in this city in May, there will be on trial three murderers besides one mail robber and many other criminals cases. We are in hopes of having shops here for doing the work of the Union Pacific. This is the natural center for such work for the Union Pacific, Utah & Northern, Oregon Short Line and the Utah Central, all belonging to the same management, and it is hoped a large foundry, machine, and other shops will be erected here to do this work. The Union Pacific shops at Evanston were lately burned, and as Ogden is a much better place for the location of such works it is most probable that the shops will come here instead of being re-erected at Evanston. The Utah & Northern and the Cental Pacific roads have both been much annoyed with snow and water the past few weeks, but it is hoped that the delay of trains will not take place hereafter. The delays have very much interfered with business and have cost the companies heavily. Emigration to the Wood River country has already set in, but the condition of the country is such that no prospecting can be done at present, and the snow will not be out of the way for some time. Three or four weeks from this time will be soon enough for persons to start there in hopes of getting to business at once. Those who go sooner will lose time and suffer much from difficulty in getting around after having a hard trip to reach there. The emigration to Montana is already very large, the Utah & Northern trains going out crowded every day.

The Masher and the Terror.

New York Star. A woman and terror dog reached the Union depot, yesterday, half an hour before the time of the Grand Trunk line train for Buffalo, and, while the woman sat down in the waiting-room, as the best thing she could do, the dog made the tour of the room several times, and then curled up on a seat not far away, to get a wink of sleep, before being turned over to the tender care of the baggage-man. All things were so-so, when a young man, with a good deal of cane, and watch chain, and necktie, snatched in, and took a cool survey of the various females. The one nearest the dog not only had a young and pleasant face, but she was all alone. After satisfying himself of this, the young man advanced, made a graceful bow, and inquired: "Beg pardon, but do you go east?" She nodded. "Ah! I thought so. If you have any baggage, I shall be most happy—ah—shall be most happy—"

A SHOWER OF VITRIOL. Poured Over the Head of a Beautiful Girl.

Philadelphia Record, April 3. Miss Mollie Boyer, a bewitching young girl of 17, whose handsome eyes, fair complexion and wealth of dark tresses are not less charming than her gentle disposition, was brutally drenched with vitriol on Saturday evening, about 9 o'clock, as she sat in the parlor of her father's residence, No. 1910 Mervine street. The awful liquid struck her almost full in the face, and burned like coals of fire into the tender flesh. Three of her young lady friends, who were bidding her good-by from the opposite side of the street, saw the liquid fire pouring from the third-story window of the neighboring house, and witnessed with horror the awful havoc it had made, as it splashed in a torrent upon the head and shoulders and face of their friend. Had the aim of the assailant been better there would have been no escape from horrible mutilation, and probably from death, for the victim. Some of the vitriol was thrown upon the bricks of the house front, and some of it stuck to the window shutters in its descent, leaving a terribly suggestive blackening streak in its course. Miss Mollie was blinded by the blistering shower, and fell with a cry of agony into the arms of her sister, who had come to the door to admit her. The poor young girl was taken into the house, and the vitriol as quickly as possible was wiped from her face. It was found that one of her eyes had been dreadfully burned, and a portion of her hair burned from her head. Great red spots were blistered all over her cheeks, and her shoulders were badly burned. Miss Mollie's sister fortunately escaped injury, but a new and handsome silk dress which she was wearing for the first time was completely burned. The motive for such an outrageous assault is shrouded in mystery. Mr. John E. Keys and his wife occupy the house from which the vitriol was thrown, their four-year old son being the only other occupant of the residence. Some of the young lady friends of Miss Boyer who saw the vitriol thrown say that they saw an old lady, who it is supposed was Mrs. Keys, lean out of the third story window from which the fluid came, as if watching the effect of the deadly shower. Two families are not acquainted, and no trouble of any kind has occurred between them. Mrs. Keys, who is suspected of having thrown the vitriol, is an old lady, and the neighbors say possesses a violent temper. She and her husband recently moved into the house No. 1912 Mervine street, which they afterward purchased. As soon as Miss Boyer's father arrived at home a policeman was summoned, but he was not able to get into the house, which had been locked and tightly shut up. Yesterday the house was closed and all the windows barred and bolted. A warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Keys will be sworn out this morning, but as yet there is absolutely no clue to the motive of the assault, except one based upon the general belief among the neighbors that the woman is crazy.

Another Kind of Doctor's Shop.

Old Bill McGammon, who keeps a grocery store in the suburbs of Austin, is one of the closest men in the state of Texas, and he abbreviates his words in writing. He abbreviated the names on the drawers and boxes of contents in his grocery, instead of painting the names in full. For instance, he painted on the sugar barrel "Dr. Sugar" for brown sugar and so on. Last Tuesday a feeble-looking stranger dropped into Bill McGammon's store, and after looking around, said: "Is Dr. Prunes in?" Old McGammon stared, and said he reckoned not. "Is Dr. Codfish in, then?" asked the stranger. "No, he is not," said old McGammon, emphatically. "Then tell Dr. Cherries I would like to see him, if he is at leisure." "You get out of here, I believe you have escaped from the lunatic asylum. This ain't no medicine college; this is a grocery," retorted old McGammon, getting red in the face. "If this is a grocery store, then you had better carry back them doctors' signs to where you stole them from," responded the stranger, strolling on.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher, and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet, how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at Schroter & Becht's drug store.

A REAL ROMANCE.

A Capitalist from the Rocky Mountains Marries a Chambermaid. St. Louis Republic, April 4. A rugged looking capitalist from the wild canyons of the Rocky mountains, named James Jones, is now the hero of a social sensation which, since yesterday morning, has produced no small commotion among boarders at the Planters' house, where he is stopping. He retired early Sunday night, but found himself too restless to sleep. During his fitful attempts to submerge the idea, worked itself into his brain that it would be unwise for him to return to the gulches of the Rockies without a wife. This idea troubled him to such an extent that he arose yesterday morning at 5 o'clock and started out in search of a help-mate. Among the first persons he met, after leaving his room at that early hour, was a chambermaid, who goes by the name of "Dutch Mary."
