

Is your Life Worth a Dollar?

Perhaps that seems a high price for it, considering how poor your blood is, and how your whole system is prostrated, debilitated, and enfeebled. People have been heard to say, under such circumstances, that they would not give the toss of a copper for the choice between life and death. But when it comes to actually drawing near the grave, a man naturally draws back, and says he does not want to die. Life is very precious, and even to a broken-down man it is worth saving. One dollar will buy a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters. That one dollar may start you on the road from misery to recovery. A man must take a very mean view of himself who is not willing to invest that much in making one serious effort to rescue himself from deadly debility, and to step into the enjoyment of solid health. Brown's Iron Bitters vitalizes the blood, tones the nerves, and rebuilds the system. Its work is well known. Invest that dollar in a bottle.

Sticking to His Post.

"Suppose," said the fireman, resting his back, "And wiping the soot from his face: 'Suppose you should meet a train on the same track. And it making a two-minute pace. And suppose that you hadn't enough time to get out of the way? And there was no side track to run on. And you saw that the whole thing was in for a top. Then, what do you think to be done?'"

"None," cried the engineer, smiling disdain. "That's the safest trick in the line. I'd just send you back to uncouple the train. And I'd just let the damned engine whizz. Of course, it would wind up my earthly career. For I couldn't help being lost; But I'd always be known as the brave engine-driver. Who'd, like a man, at his post!"

The engine sped on, like a star with a tail. And the fireman whistled in content. But he owned that he'd much rather get into jail. And into that kind of a hole. And into the grin of an engine gave the throttle a jerk. Pushed the lever a little ahead. And seemed as content as his dangerous work. As if he were tucked up in bed.

"Look out," screamed the fireman, "there is a train!" And over the tender he went; And he uncoupled the train! Go ahead! It's all right! Just show me the way that you meant! But the brave engineer, somehow, reached the car first. Jerked the pin out and then let it drop. The engine, released, made an elegant burst. And then an inglorious stop.

"I thought," said the fireman, "I thought you would stay. And make good your generous boast. You said you would make the world point with dismay. To the man who had died at your post!" "Shut up," growled the engineer, "don't make me sick! Some day you will find that I will; But how do you think a man's going to stick to a post, when the post won't stand still!" —[Drake's Magazine.]

HONEY FOR THE LADIES.

Shirred yokes and full waists are again in vogue. Cloth bonnets are much worn with cloth costumes. Dark royal blue is this season a very fashionable color. Costumes of velveteen, tailor made, will be worn on the street this winter. Felt corduroy bonnets are a pretty novelty for mourning and traveling wear. Plaited camel's hair bonnets will be worn with cloth and cloth costumes.

Waistcoats or plastrons, plain or plaited, appear almost as new costumes. For the short coats, the Melton and West of England cloths are very popular. In London this autumn fashion dresses ladies' hair shall not be cropped. Embroidery cut out and applied on woolen and silken stuffs will be much worn. Scotch shawls and Irish fringes will be the favorite materials for winter jackets. Large balls and spots are the newest designs for Oriental and Spanish laces. Velvet spots are introduced into Spanish laces intended for dresses and bonnets. Cheviots come in stripes, checks and large checks, in the combination of colors.

Mrs. Langtry is to play under the management of the Frohman in San Francisco. The bald-headed man of New York are flocking to a shop where there are four girls for hire. Mr. Irving's plays for next week at the Star Theater, New York, are "Louis XI" and "The Merchant of Venice."

Boilers made of a material much thicker than the skirt will again be very fashionable for full-dress occasions. Long close-fitting coats, trimmed with five-inch bands of fur, are being made by the tailors for the coming winter. Bands of velvet worn around the throat are ornamented with a diamond crescent, a locket or some bit of jewelry in front. The gallic cock in metals of all colors—gold, steel, bronze, or silver—and also on feathers, is a very fashionable ornament.

Mr. Irving remains three weeks longer in New York than he expected to stay for a fortnight, and then goes to Boston. Moscow-green, Russian-gray, Cedar-brown, and Cossack-blue, which is almost gray, are the preferred colors for Muscovite velvet. Russian-Pechut and elephant-gray, Cedar-brown, royal blue, and Moscow-green and violet-purple are very fashionable colors. One of the handsomest silk fabrics of this season is black satin de Lyon brocaded with fine jet beads, woven into the fabric.

The season is upon us when young men will give for the winter. Young ladies, try not to laugh. Of 45,000 persons arrested last year in Paris, 6,000 were women. The proportion of women annually arrested in London is much larger. A Chicago belle was referred to as having "big blue eyes." Investigation disclosed that they were shell-like—saddle rock oysters shell like.

A dish or vase of fresh water should be kept in every room where there is a fire, especially an open fire. The water absorbs the gas arising from the coal and other impurities in the air. A slightly damp cloth rubbed over a dusty carpet brightens it wonderfully and gathers all the dust. This is an excellent way to cleanse the floor of an invalid's room, where noise and dust are objectionable.

Mme. Trebelli, Mr. Abbey's contralto, who made such enormous successes in New York, is to be the soloist at the first concert of the Brooklyn Philharmonic Society under Mr. Thomas direction. Geothoven's "Eroica" symphony, Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and the principal orchestral numbers.

A shoe bag is a very handy article for a bed room. A useful one can be made of some pretty cloth. Cut a piece a half yard wide and two-thirds of a yard long, and put on the pockets, attaching it in three divisions, the smallest in the center for slippers. The most convenient place for this article is to nail it on the inside of the closet door.

The beauty of a French lady is thus described: "It was entirely covered with looking-glasses, on which were painted tufts of lilies and roses. The floor and the broad divan were covered with silk plush, made expressly at Lyons, which inflated grass dotted here and there with flowers. The room was lighted from the roof, and blue and white gauze, draped irregularly, formed a transparent ceiling, through which penetrated a light like that of the moon on a misty summer night."

The crazy quilt mania is devastating the North-west. The young ladies ask for hat linings, scarfs and even the linings of apple coats. If high-buttoned vests should go out of style the men would have to buy new scarfs. Many of them have now no other than hats. The scraps thus gathered are thrown in an alleged careless way into a quilt that becomes after it is embroidered, a sofa cover. The man is very prevalent and absorbing. It absorbs the best goods of the young men.

For tall, slender women, no wrap for cold weather can be found more comfortable or becoming than the long French mantle, cut in exceedingly graceful curves in the back, and full fitting in front. The medium priced wraps in this style are made of black ottoman silk, and trimmed with full feathered fringe and ruffles of chenille. The more expensive garments are made of large-patterned brocades, the designs being of raised flowers in velvet or chenille. Heavy quilted satin linings are more popular this season than those of fur, on account of the annoyance caused by the shedding of hairs where fur is employed.

There are some very curious laws in Saxony regarding servants, girls more especially. The mistress is obliged by law to allow the servant one pound of butter and one of coffee per month, if the mistress is in money. If the girl furnishes her own bedding she secures one and a half cents per night for so doing. Servants are not allowed to wash their faces, and receive five cents upon all purchases she makes. She is required to give one month's notice before leaving her place. The law also requires that each servant keep a book for recommendations, in which, upon her leaving the place, her mistress is compelled to state the cause and the girl's character.

The new fashion of hair dressing which removes the classical knot from almost the jaws of the neck, is now the favorite. The hair is not received with very general favor. There is a stiffness and bareness about it which is hardly likely to be becoming to many young faces, and probably some relief and shadow for the face will be arranged and adopted, in the shape of curls behind the ears, that will soften the hardness and coldness of this style of coiffure. To the ladies of mature age, on the contrary, the new fashion is excellently well suited, as it gives them, a style, and, as Jane Carlyle says, "an air," which is the substitute for the lost freshness of youth.

Miss Helen Close has begun a suit in Chicago against Mrs. M. J. Gresham, who advertises her business as that of a "scalp surgeon." The plaintiff alleges that she was in possession of a head of fair hair in color, length and thickness; that while having it treated in Mrs. Gresham's office it was so entangled that the defendant was unable to straighten it out; that while pretending to straighten it she had cut half of it away with shears; that afterward she parted it with a preparation which turned the scalp black, and that plaintiff has since been unable to get the hair to grow again, and had been compelled to cut it off close to the head. Miss Close lays her damages at $3,000.

Current Poetry. HIS APPEAL. She felt his claim her as his own, For woman's wit is quick to see The growth of seeds by Cupid sown Just after tea.

She blushes red when slow she hears, The low-toned words he just has said, And trembling on the verge of tears, She blushes red.

And started at the look she bears, For ere he finished her soft words she had dropped at his shoulder hers. He hastens to say, 'midst ghosts of fears, 'I love— I love that gingerbread! Your dainty little hand prepares!' She blushes red.

WORDS FOR WORKERS.

There will be a labor congress in Canada in December. A building league is being formed at Guelph, Canada. At Dallas bricklayers receive $10 a day. The general rate in Texas is $5. Nine trades union representatives have been elected to the Ohio Legislature. The chiefs of the several State bureaus of labor statistics will meet in St. Louis at an early day.

The Ladies' Shoe Assembly, Knights of Labor, number 1,300; another of buttonhole operators 200. W. H. Forster, ex-Secretary of the Federation of Labor, has removed from Cincinnati to Philadelphia.

The National Tailors' Association have elected Robert Crow, President, and Chas. Sparks, Secretary. In Milwaukee many machinists and iron workers are idle. Workshops are overcrowded. Wages are low.

The sausage-makers of Cincinnati had to work sixteen and eighteen hours a day for from $5 to $8 a week. The labor unions in St. Louis have re-opened their headquarters at 950 Broadway, and have established a reading room and a lyceum.

The International Cigar-makers' Union has increased the weekly dues to twenty cents, the death benefit to $40, and the sickness benefit to $5 a week. Philadelphia mills and factories are full of work, and some of them are loaded with orders twelve months ahead of time. Small houses are in demand.

The Legislative committee of the United States Penitentiary, Eastern division, addressed to women workers to organize for protection, and to associate themselves with the labor unions.

The St. Louis harness makers recently out on a strike secured the advance demanded. There are 475 harness makers in that city, and a strong union is being formed, but they have to compete with prison labor.

Gettysburg. You wore the blue and I the gray On that historic field, And all throughout the dreadful fray We felt our hearts steeled For deeds which history may never know Nor words of history ever show.

My father, ah, with soul to dare Throughout the day and night, Stood on old Little Round Top there And watched the battle's light, And, with a hoarse, inspiring cry, Held up the stars and bars on high.

At last the flag went down, and then— 'Ah, you can guess the rest— I never saw his face again— My father's wounds, his hair, his eyes, His strown with these sweet flowers, I wot, That seem to love this sacred spot.

The smoke of battle cleared away And all its terrors, too, And as I clasp your hand to-day, O man who won the day, On yonder hill I seem to see My father smiling down on me. —Chicago Daily News.

SINGULARITIES. A beautiful white deer with pink-colored eyes was killed near Marinette, Mich., a few days ago. An old lady named Brown, of Hilton, Mich., has the grayest of gray hair that is now turning to its original color.

The floating garden at Kashim, Eastern Asia, seems to be one of the wonders of the world. They carry an expense of water about nine miles in circumference, and on a subsoil of glass and aqueduct plants they grow melons, and cucumbers and a crop is raised of great value.

In Elizabeth, N. J. Samuel Morgan awhile ago had his arm amputated, but afterward complained of a swelling and pain in the stump. The amputated limb was still on and the hand cramped and aching. He caused the arm to be dug up, when it was found that it was bent at the elbow and the hand partly closed. The arm and hand were straightened out and buried again. Since then he says the unpleasant sensation has disappeared.

A servicable match-holder may be made for the hall chandelier by crocheting a small bay of pink and white crocheted cotton, and fitting in it a goblet from which the handle has been broken. Two tassels should depend from the bottom and a prettily twisted cord fasten it to the chandelier.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate. Valuable in Indigestion. DR. DANIEL T. NELSON, Chicago, says: "I find it a pleasant and valuable remedy in indigestion, particularly in overworked men."

Music Everywhere. That wonderful musical instrument, the ORGANETTA is advertised in this issue. It is the ideal home instrument. You can dance to it you can sing to it. It is a musical play it; it incites a love of music in old and young, and develops and cultivates the ear. The music is perfectly accurate, and the wonderful organetta will play any tune. At the price, $3.50, it is within the reach of all.

M. Musin is the name of a new Belgian violinist, who will make his first appearance in America at the concert of the New York Symphony Society. He will be heard in Mendelssohn's concerto, and Bach's prelude and fugue in G minor.

Evidence of the Best Kind. Richard T. Robinson is a druggist living in Racine, Wis. Here is what he says: "I am afflicted with laryngitis I was unable to articulate a word distinctly for fully two months. A liberal application of Thomas' Electric Oil completely cured me. Am pleased to recommend it."

Mapleson and Abbey's Italian Opera Companies will appear in Philadelphia during the same week in January; the one in the Academy and the other at the Chestnut-street Opera house. How happy could I be with either, etc.

An Undoubted Blessing. About thirty years ago a prominent physician by the name of Dr. William Hall discovered, or produced after long experimental research, a remedy for diseases of the throat, chest and lungs, which was so wonderfully efficacious that it soon gained a wide reputation in this country. The name of the medicine is DR. W. H. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and may be safely relied upon as a speedy and positive cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, etc. Sold by all druggists.
