"THIS RING HAS A HISTORY"

Detective Groden's Golden Circlet Which Has Wedded Many Couples.

"This ring has a history," was the remark made by Detective Groden, as he held up a little golden circlet for a Star man's inspection at the Castle Garden yesterday.

"How so?" the reporter asked. "Well, sir, it has been used in the marriage ceremony by 185 couples or 370 people, within the past two years," was his reply. "I keep it in a small leather box, and when it is not in use it is placed in Superintendent Jackson's iron safe. I would not lose it for ten times its intrinsic value."

"How does it happen that it is so often required for marriage ceremonies?" "Because many of the young men and women among the immigrants conclude to marry soon after their arrival in this country. Whenever a recent arrival deserts a young woman I follow the fugitive, and I usually succeed in bringing him back to marry the girl."

"Does he return willingly?" "Not always; but I am a very persistent match-maker, and, if he will not come of his own accord, I apply a little of the law to his case. In other words, I place him under arrest. Then I procure the services of a clergyman, and the marriage ceremony is performed without any unnecessary delay. I loan the ring to the groom, and at the proper time in the ceremony he places it upon the finger of the bride."

"But you don't make the couple a present of a ring?" "Of course I don't. I take it back and save it for use at the next wedding."

"I presume it has cost you a great deal of trouble to bring about some of these marriages?" "You are right; it has. On one occasion I followed a man more than a thousand miles before I found him. I told him that there was a young lady who had recently arrived at Castle Garden, who was anxious to be his wife. He said he didn't care what she wanted, but he didn't mean to go near New York. Inasmuch as he had betrayed the girl in Germany and induced her to come to this country with him, I made up my mind that he should not be permitted to desert her in a strange land; so I arrested him. He fought like a tiger, and I was compelled to handcuff him before he would surrender. Well, to make a long story short, I escorted him to New York, and he was married to the young woman at Castle Garden."

"Do these forced marriages often turn out happily?" "Oh, yes; I could tell you the names of a score of couples who, after being wedded at Castle Garden, lived happily together and raised large families of children. I have a list of these couples, but I never show it to outsiders, for it might result in much harm and embarrassment to the parties if their names were published. I would not have you understand that all of the people who are married at Castle Garden are induced to enter the marital state through my agency. It often happens that there is no case of abandonment. Young immigrants frequently make up their minds after being landed in this country that it is better to face the battle of life in a strange land with a companion than it is to fight single-handed. The Castle Garden missionaries do a good business marrying people, but, as a rule, the fees are not large. Now you will have to excuse me from talking any more, as I have a prospective wedding on hand which must be attended to at once—for delays are dangerous."

With this remark the good-natured detective turned on his heel, and briskly walked away, as if he had not a minute to spare.

Showing Her How to Do It.

MAINTOWN, Wis., January 23.—Henry Bakenect, a well known citizen, rushed into the sheriff's office late last night, saying that he had shot his wife while showing her how to handle a weapon in self defense. The woman was found dead sure enough. The husband was locked up on suspicion of foully murdering his wife. The bullet passed through the woman's brain and out at the top of her head. She must have died instantly.
