

Dr. Wagner's Removal.
Dr. Wagner has removed his office from No. 313 Larimer to No. 338 Larimer, where he will be pleased to see his friends. The Doctor is to be congratulated on the completeness and elegance of his new building. It is one of the best in the city. [Denver Republican, Jan. 31, 1884.]

DR. H. WAGNER,
THE LEARNED
Specialist!
338 LARIMER STREET.
REASONS
Why you should try the celebrated Dr. H. Wagner's methods of cure:

1. "Dr. H. Wagner is a natural physician."
2. "The Greatest Living Phrenologist."
3. "Few can excel you as a doctor."
4. "The World's Greatest Phrenologist."
5. "You see Wagner's profession in your knowledge of disease and medicine."
6. "The afflicted find relief in your presence."
7. "Dr. H. Wagner is a regular graduate from Bellevue Hospital, New York city; has had very extensive hospital practice, and is thoroughly posted on all branches of his beloved science, especially on chronic diseases."
8. "Dr. H. Wagner has manufactured himself by his wonderful discovery, specific remedies for private and sexual diseases." [Virginia City Chronicle.]
9. "Thousands of invalids flock to see him in San Francisco, California."
10. "The Doctor's long experience as a specialist should render him very successful." [Rocky Mountain News.]

Plain Facts Plainly Spoken.
At one time a discussion of the secret vice was entirely avoided by the modesty and timidity of its authors. To-day the physician is of a different opinion; he is aware that it is the habit of the times, and he speaks plainly about it; and intelligent parents and guardians will thank him for doing so.

Young Men
Who may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretions will wish to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. Dr. Wagner will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of seminal weakness or impotence of any kind and character, which he undertakes to cure and to aid him to cure.

Middle Aged Men.
There are many at the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits aropy sediment will be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of this milky hue, again changing to a dark and turbid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. W. will guarantee a perfect cure in all cases and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

A FRIEND TO ALL.
One Who is Needed and Nobly Fills his Place.
Denver is more fortunate than she knows in the possession of the talents and energies of a man who has given his time and talents not merely to the perfection of his skill as a practitioner of his profession of medicine, but to the study of those profound things of science and nature which are the more complete understanding of the problem of life and of the laws of our existence, gaining the greatest practical results to mankind from the information thus acquired in the abstract. Such a man is Dr. H. Wagner, who is located at 338 Larimer street. Dr. Wagner devoted many years to the acquisition of the knowledge necessary to his profession in a number of the best schools and universities of the most eminent and profound teachers, such names as Dr. Gross and Dr. Parson appearing among his preceptors. In the course of his study he continued in the field of the practicing family physician and in the experience of a man of extensive travel. He has visited every section of the United States paying particular attention to the different characteristics of the various portions of our country particularly with regard to their effect, climate and other upon health and the different forms of disease, with the combined powers of close study, a tentative observation and almost untiring practice. Dr. Wagner came to Denver three years ago, and has since that time he has been in the city, and he has since that time he has been in the city, and he has since that time he has been in the city.

The experience in the treatment of Cancer with Swift's Specific is so well known to warrant us in saying that it will cure this most dreaded scourge. Persons afflicted are invited to correspond with us. I believe Swift's Specific has saved my life. I had virtually lost the use of the lower part of my body and my arms from the poisonous effects of a large cancer on my neck, from which I had suffered for 20 years. Dr. S. S. has relieved me of all cancers, and the poison is being forced out of my system. I will soon be well.

Tired of Greek.
There are a number of college graduates here, a larger number probably than is generally supposed. Among these are a goodly number of graduates from the state university at Iowa City, and many more that have taken a partial course there. At present there is among them quite an interest manifest in the discussion of the study of Greek, as laid down in the course, and it seems that a large majority of the "college bred" men of this city favor the position taken by Charles Francis Adams, Jr. It is not unlikely that their feelings in regard to the study of Greek may result in a formal expression by petition or otherwise with a view of getting Iowa's university to make the study of Greek no longer a requisite, but leave it as optional in the course. It would be well if a meeting could be called of all college graduates in the city and vicinity and some action by which their exact views on this question could be ascertained. It is predicted that such a meeting would result in showing that a large majority of all graduates are in favor of making Greek simply optional. Few graduates, who have taken a classical course, find any practical help from the smattering of Greek, and a man is not likely to find that most of them have left by which to remember their college life. On the other hand they do feel the need of such information which they might have gained in the hours spent on Greek. The world of thought and of action is so much larger than years ago, when Greek was held so sacred to scholarship, that a real student, aiming for success in life, and seeking the best helps to gain that success, must needs use his time and exert his energies to the best possible advantage. The man of to-day, with the rapid strides of scientific thought, cannot afford to spend time preparing to dwell with the ancients, but must equip himself so as best to keep pace with the modern. Those who have the management of the colleges and universities seem timid about making at least the experiment of having Greek placed among the optional studies. It is a concession on their part that the classes in Greek would dwindle down to a very few students—a concession that the demand is for a modernized system of education. Conceding that such is the demand, why not meet it? It would be interesting to all college graduates here, from whatever institution, could gather some evening and give expression to their own views. They are in better condition to judge than students just entering upon a course, for they have had experience in the world as well as the school room. Such a formal expression would be of interest and of help.

Wabash Baggage Car Fire.
Yesterday morning, shortly after the Wabash train arrived at the transfer platform to depart for the south the baggage car attached to the train was discovered to be on fire. There was no baggage in the car but a couple of mail pouches which were saved. The fire is supposed to have originated from an overheated stove and badly damaged the car.

CRESTON'S ELECTION.
Pen Sketches of the City Officers Just Chosen There.
Correspondence of THE BEE.
CRESTON, Iowa, March 4.—Your correspondent has a few words to say after the battle on Monday, the 3d of this month. The city election has resulted in the choice of the following officers for the ensuing year:
Mayor—Charles C. Fisher.
City Attorney—W. A. Spurrier.
Treasurer—Phillip Darr.
Assessor—Lynan Waterman.
Mr. Fisher was until quite recently an engineer on the "Q," but by some means was asked to resign; so the boys thought that as he was such a good man, and had been so long such a good engineer and got his uncalled for g. b., they would compliment Mr. Fisher by placing him at the head of the ticket and elect him mayor, if possible. The result was that a majority of 147 votes told the delightful story. We are not personally acquainted with the mayor-elect, but are cordially informed that he is in every respect a high-toned and respectable gentleman, and will without doubt fill the office with dignity and to the best interests of our rapidly growing city.
Mr. F. S. Taylor, the present incumbent, has acquitted himself nobly and has done very much for the city's good so he retires with the satisfaction that he has done the best he could.

A WILY WIZARD.
A Baltimore Lady Conjured Out of Her Money by a Bogus Ghost.
Special Dispatch to the Globe, Democrat.
BALTIMORE, Md., February 28.—The police here are looking for a wizard and a conjurer, who has been playing awfully pranks in this section. Mrs. Caroline Jentener appeared before a magistrate and charged Elizabeth Weber with conspiring with others to defraud her. The mother of Mrs. Jentener died a short time since, and Mrs. Jentener believes she left $4,000, which, however, cannot be found. Mrs. Jentener confided in a Mr. Weber and received here $200 if she would find the money. Mrs. Weber consulted a wizard, who agreed to find the concealed wealth by his mystic power. He was to call up the spirit of Mrs. Jentener's mother, who would bring her the money. At midnight last Monday night, according to appointment, Mrs. Jentener and her husband went to an old oak tree in a clump of woods on the outskirts of the city, where they were met by the wizard. After some conjuring words, the wizard called up the alleged spirit, and a ghastly figure robed in black with a white veil over its head, appeared from the tree. It reached out a tin box, which the wizard took on his bended knees, and giving it to Mrs. Jentener, said: "Your money is in this box, you must not open it till you get home." The ghost disappeared, and the trembling couple hurried into the city, and opening the box found it full of rubbish. The wizard was paid a handsome fee. Mrs. Weber, whom the police magistrate that she really thought the man was a wizard, could call up the spirits, and could get Mrs. Jentener's money for her. She had no intention to defraud Mrs. Jentener.

Mr. W. H. Robb, of The Independent American, was the winner by about 103 majority. We presume he will fill the office well.
The election passed off nicely and quietly and all seemed jubilant, and nothing that we learned of, happened to distract voters from voting, nor was there anyone that had the legitimate right to the elective franchise but what they could exercise it fully.

A ROMANCE OF STOLEN HORSES.
After Eighteen Years of Searching the Thief Proves to be a Wealthy Colorado Ranch Owner.
Kansas City Times.
"I have just found a for man whom I have been looking 18 years," declared Detective George W. Cole of St. Louis to a Times reporter yesterday.
"What are the particulars of this extraordinary case?" was asked at once.
"Well, in October, 1866, Hugh Cross, president of the First National Bank of Jerseyville, Ill., lost two very valuable horses. They were thoroughbreds and very fast, and one was worth about $5,000, the other being valued at $1,500. The horses were evidently stolen, and circumstances made it very probable that the men, well-known hard cases in the community, had committed the theft. The horses were heard from again, but one of the suspected men afterwards returned to Jerseyville. As there was not sufficient evidence against him he was not arrested. Three years ago I located the other suspected man in Colorado. About that time an old negro woman died in Jerseyville, and just before her death she declared that a negro who had been a servant in the Cross family could tell all about the robbery. What had become of this negro no one knew, and he disappeared from the neighborhood just about the time the horses were lost. Until yesterday it was impossible for me to locate this negro, but at last my labors have been rewarded. I found the colored man at Atchison, and proved such an excellent witness that I will at once cause the arrest of the long suspected horse-thief."

Mr. Derr is comparatively a young man, and an excellent accountant, and judging from his long residence in the city of Creston and the host of good, substantial friends, he will give entire satisfaction.
Mr. Lyman Waterman, sr., is one of Creston's most substantial and honored citizens, and will fill the assessor's position in an honorable and substantial manner. Mr. Waterman had no opposition, hence he received the full vote of the city—1,435.

SOME OF NATURE'S FEARS.
Extraordinary Births Recorded at the New York Bureau of Vital Statistics.
New York World.

The bureau of vital statistics is a place of record of perhaps more extraordinary occurrences in the matter of life and death than even the memoirs of such a distinguished personage as M. Lecocq, the French detective, made famous by novelties. On the books of the bureau are registered all births and deaths. Glancing over the pages of the records one finds here and there a mention of births that, were it not that the parent of the child or children were averse to publicity, their offspring would furnish leading attractions to museums. In the list of extraordinary births come twins, triplets, quadruplets, double-headed, and four-legged children.
Of those the first mentioned are the more common. Triplets, though rare, are not sufficiently so to call for more than passing notice, while four children or more at a birth are mentioned as occurring but a half dozen times during the year. The others mentioned are rightly called monstrosities, and are caused by accident or fright to the mother. They are exceedingly rare. Two cases of children born with double heads are recorded, and but one of them survived. The other is now on exhibition at a dime museum in this city.
One birth is registered of a child with four legs, and the parents of that child have allowed it to be placed on exhibition in a traveling show for a consideration.
Another birth is registered of a child with two bodies and but one head, and it died almost immediately after birth.
Instances have been recorded where children have been born with the heads or bodies of domestic animals, but only one case is known where such a monstrosity lived. A few years ago a German girl, a domestic employed by a Long Island farmer, gave birth to a child whose head resembled that of a Newfoundland dog and whose body was covered at birth with long black hair. It is asserted that in the interests of humanity the being was allowed to die within twenty-four hours of its birth.
In England a marvelous case of a woman giving birth to a child, with all the attributes of a monkey, even to a tail, is said to be recorded, but careful search by some of our eminent physicians failed to discover any evidence of the case.
The Germans are said to be more prolific than any nation except the Chinese, and among them a multiple birth is of common occurrence. In this country, however, cases of numerous progeny at a birth are rare. Physicians have made many attempts to rear unexceptionally monstrosities in the interest of science, but in every case have been unsuccessful.
A noted physician attached to one of the hospitals some time ago assisted at the birth of a child with webbed toes and fingers, such as are necessary to aquatic fowl, but the child died in two hours and was placed on a dissecting table, where it was found that its interior formation was the same as a water-fowl. The circumstances and evidences of the fact caused much comment in medical circles at the time, although the affair was not really made public.
In conversation with a physician of high repute a World reporter elicited the fact that nearly every case of extraordinary multiple birth is a fiction, and that the tale of a water-fowl formation was the same as a water-fowl. The circumstances and evidences of the fact caused much comment in medical circles at the time, although the affair was not really made public.

GRAPE CULTURE.
Adaptation of the Vine to Out-of-the-Way Corners.
The wild grapevine may be found growing almost everywhere except in swampy places. In the thickest woods, among old fence corners, clinging to the tallest trees, or covering a thicket of underbrush, forming the most bountiful of rustic bowers, it seems everywhere at home. Its peculiar habits serve as an admirable illustration of the divine forethought of the Creator.
Lying, as it does, upon the waste of the more rugged denizens of the wood, its delicate rootlets feeding close to the surface, the tendrils clinging to their giant trunks for support, it beautifully exemplifies the "supremacies of things" in nature. Wherever we go we find fresh evidence that "God lives," and that He works with a purpose in view. This habit of the grapevine, in common with other plants of feeding near the surface, upon decaying vegetable matter, brings to mind the injunction of our blessed Saviour, "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost," and which should be borne in mind by tillers of the soil. We find everywhere so many nooks and corners of premises, both in towns and country, given over to weeds, that night and should by all means be made to bring forth fruit by the growth of vines, or some other kind of fruits, flowers or vegetables. As the country becomes filled with a denser population it becomes the duty, as it will after a while become necessary, for all who are fortunate enough to own a piece of land to put it to its utmost productive capacity. This can only be done by putting to good use every spot and corner, allowing no waste places about the farm or lot, as the case may be. Fortunately the grapevine will grow and form an object of beauty in many places where nothing else will, such as a narrow space between the fence and a house, or under the corner of an out-house, and by being trained up under the eave it finds a home admirably suited to its wants. It may also be so trained as to produce an abundant shade, or, if that is not wanted, it may be so trained on the wall as to produce but little or no shade at all.
CLIFTON, Greene county, O.

HUMAN BLOOD.
On the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system. Disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause. A remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Hood's Sarsaparilla undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use.
